———Plea of — Extinguishment of prior rights.

Where there is accord and satisfaction by a substituted agreement, the antecedent rights of the parties inter se are abandoned in consideration of the acceptance by all of a new agreement. The consequence is that when such an accord and satisfaction takes place the prior rights of the parties are extinguished. They have in fact been exchanged for the new rights; and the new agreement becomes a new departure and the rights of all the parties are fully represented by it. (Lord Moulton.) SAMINATHAN CHETTY v. PALANIAPPA CHETTY. 18 C. W. N. 617 = (1914) A.C. 618 = 26 I. C. 228 = 41 I. A. 142 (P.C.)

Cause of action.

———Cause of action—Limitation.

Where there are dealings between two parties which give rise to a continuous account so that one item, if not paid, shall be united with another and form one continuous demand, the whole together forms but one cause of action and cannot be divided. (Jenkins, C. J. and Woodroffe, J.) KEDAR NATH MITTER v. DINOBANDHU SAHA. 42 Cal. 1043 = 31 I. C. 626 = 19 C. W. N. 724.

———Cause of action—Splitting of—Test.

If the items in an account are so connected together that it appears the dealing is not intended to terminate with one contract, but to be continuous, so that one item if not paid, shall be united with another and form one continuous demand the whole together forms but one cause of action and cannot be divided.

It is a question of fact, to be determined on the merits of each case, whether there was an intention to keep only one account for all the dealings. (Kemp, A. J. C.) FIRM OF LILARAM MADHAVDAS v. FIRM OF HUSSEINBHOY KARIMJI AND SONS. 67 I. C. 44 = 15 S. L. R. 207 = 1922 S. 15.

Liability.

———Liability to render—Agent of guardian of minor—Liability of agent to minor.

ACCOUNTS—Liability.

An agent appointed by a guardian of a minor is not liable to account to the minor for acts done by him as agent, the principle regarding trustees de son tort not being applicable to him. (Abdur Rahim, O. C. J. and Ayling, J.) RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR v. MUTHIAH CHETTY.

Principal and Agent.

See also (1) CONTRACT ACT, S. 213.
(2) LIM. ACT, ARTS. 89 AND 90.

———Principal and agent—Whole accounts to be taken.

Although an agent must render accounts to his principal of all his dealings in the various transactions carried on by him as agent on behalf of the principal, yet, unless there is a special contract in that behalf, the principal is not entitled to select capriciously a single transaction and obtain the fruits thereof without an adjustment of the rights and liabilities of the parties in relation to their transactions. (Mookerjee and Holmwood, JJ.) GODHAN RAM BHAKAT v. JAHARMALL.
40 Cal. 335=17 C.W.N. 67=16 I.C. 583=17 C. L. J. 636.

———Principal and agent—Suit for sums due.

A suit for money found due from an agent on an account being taken, and a suit for rendering an account are really identical. 32 Cal. 719, Rel. (Saharfuddin and Coxe, JJ.) JHAPAJHANESSA BIBEE v. BAMA SUNDARI CHAUDHURANI.
16 C. W. N. 1042=16 I.C. 414=16 C.L.J. 288.

———Principal and agent—Suit for accounts—Mode of proving items in dispute.

In proving accounts, the best mode is to call upon the defendant to show what items he disputes and then ask the plff. to prove them. (Chevis, J.) TULSIRAM v. KARMCHAND.

———Settled, Reopening of.

A person, who, has executed a second account and a promissory note to pay the dues under the previous account, he having first examined the previous account and acknowledged its correctness, cannot be allowed to question the settlement and reopen the accounts. (Ryves and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) BENAYAK PRASAD PANDE v. BISHUN DATT PATHAK. L. R. 3 A. 308.

———Settled, Re-opening of—Fraud—Error.

Accounts settled between parties may be re-opened on the ground of substantial error or fraud. If the errors are sufficient in number and importance whether caused by fraud or mistake or where the parties occupy a fiduciary relation e.g., trustee, agent, guardian, etc., it is easier to re-open the account. (Mears, C. J. and Bannerji, J.) BHAGWAN BAKSH SINGH v. JOSHE DAMODARJI.
42 A. 230=59 I. C. 20=18 A. L. J. 100.

ACCOUNTS—Settled.

———Re-opening of—Some fraudulent entries—Proof of—Re-opening of whole accounts.

If in a settled account a single fraudulent entry is shown in the case of persons occupying the position of principal and agent or trustee and cestui que trust, the Court will actually re-open an account extending over a great number of years. (Walsh and Stuart, JJ.) PURAN MAL v. FORD AND MACDONALD CO. LTD. 41 All. 635=52 I.C. 373=17 A.L.J. 805.

———Settled—Reopening of—Fraud.

In a suit the plaintiff prayed that the defendant No. 1 might be ordered to render correct accounts of the profits of certain property and that upon the taking of those accounts, the document should be held to be valid only for the amount that should be found due on taking the accounts. The document itself and the circumstances of the case do not suggest fraud but that a certain debt was fraudulently entered as consideration :

Held, that the plaintiff alleged no fraud entitling him to go into evidence to reopen the accounts which were settled at the time the mortgage was executed. (Richards, C.J. and Banerji, J.) RAMJI v. KOMAN DAS. 35 I.C. 603 (All.)

———Settled—Re-opening of—When allowed.

Where accounts are impeached on the ground of fraud, two or three instances of particular items, which can be taken as false and fraudulent, must be brought to the notice of the Court before it can be called upon to order the accounts to be re-opened from the first. But before the defendant could ask the Court to re-open the account, he is bound to allege fraud. (Macleod, C. J. and Coyajee, J.) SANKAL CHAND v. CHIMANLAL.

ACCOUNTS—Settled.

———Settled— Re-opening of—Principal and agent—Claim against surety.

As between a principal and an agent, settled accounts will not be re-opened unless fraud or undue influence is established. In a suit by the principal against the surety, the surety is not bound by an admission of the debtor as to the sum due. He is not even concluded by a judgment or award against the principal; he is entitled to have the accounts taken in his presence. Where in a suit for recovery of money from the deft. it is found that the plff. had, after a settlement of accounts, admitted his liability to pay the deft. a certain sum of money. Held, that as there was no settlement by compromise by the parties but only an ascertainment of the exact balance upon an examination of the accounts, the plff. was not barred from showing that there were errors in the accounts, but in view of the admission of the plff. the onus lies on him to show that the accounts were not properly examined. 5 M.I. If circumstances are proved which would entitle an obligee to go behind a settled account, he would be equally entitled to plead in defence to a suit based on an obligation alleged to flow from any such settled account, that the consideration based on that account has never been received. ACCOUNTS—Suit for.

It is obligatory on each partner to render true accounts and full information of all things affecting the partnership to any partner or his legal representatives. The occasion in certain cases arises after the preliminary decree is made. At that stage each partner should be served with the notice contemplated by S. 66 of the Evidence Act to produce such accounts and papers as may be in his custody. If he omits so to produce an adverse inference would be drawn against him. Besides secondary evidence will become admissible and the person withholding the document will not be able to use the original document as evidence at a later stage without the consent of the other party or the order of court. ———Suit for—Non-production of accounts—Effect of.

In a suit for accounts non-production of accounts by the party having the custody of them justifies the presumption under S. 114 (g) of the Evidence Act that they are withheld because they are unfavourable. If the plff. withholds the accounts, though claiming accounts, his suit is liable to be dismissed. If it is the deft. who withholds them, the Court will proceed on the evidence of plffs. making every presumption against deft. If deft. has contumaciously refused or omitted to comply with the order for production, the Court may enforce obedience by imprisonment or attachment of property or both. 13 C. W. N. 696, 19 W. ACQUIESCENCE.

See also (1) EVIDENCE ACT, S. 115.

———Principle of Ejectment—Bar by acquiescence.

The principle of acquiescence is that a person who acts in a fraudulent way to set up his legal rights cannot set up those rights. Where a landlord sued to eject the defts., and to demolish the house and the landlord had kept quiet while the house was built the landlord's claim was barred by acquiescence. (Lindsay, J.) MAHOMED HAFIZULLAH KHAN v. CHITRUKHAN.
36 I. C. 1001 (A).

———Essentials of.

Two things are required to raise the equity of acquiescence :—(1) the person spending the money supposed himself to be building on his own land, (2) the real owner at the time of expenditure knows the land belongs to him and not to the person expending the money in the belief that he is the owner. (Batchelor and Rao, JJ.) RANCHHOD LAL v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 35 Bom. 182=9 I. C. 765=13 Bom. L. R. 92.

———Quiescence—Estoppel.

Mere standing by when one's rights are infringed without in any manner inducing the wrongdoer to believe that his act are assented to, is mere quiescence and not acquiescence which (latter) alone can bring the doctrine of estoppel. (Mookerjee and Newbould, JJ.) JAHARADDI v. DEBNATH. 33 I. C. 762=20 C. W. N 657.

———What amounts to.

Acquiescence in an act while it is in progress may amount to consent but not mere inaction after the act has been completed. (Chatterjee and Mullick, JJ.) SHYAM LAL v. RAMESWARI BASU.
33 I. C. 273=23 C. L. J. 82.

ACQUISITION.

———Waiver—Delay in suing.

Mere delay in suing is no proof of acquiescence or waiver by the plffs. of their rights. (Johnstone, C. J. and Chevis, J.) GUJAR SINGH v. MEHER SINGH. '97 P. W. R. 1916=34 I. C. 168=57 P. L. R. 1917.

———Applicability of doctrine—Position of the parties—Government.

The position of the Government differs from that of a private owner and a period of abstinence from suit which would be excessive in a private owner is not excessive in the case of Government and would not create an equity in the private owner. The government has the option of making the deft., remove the materials of his building on paying compensation for the value of the buildings. (Reid and Robertson, JJ.) RAHMATULLAH KHAN v. SECRETARY OF STATE.

To raise a plea of estoppel by acquiescence it must be proved that the party sought to be estopped was aware of his right and with such knowledge acquiesced in their invasion by the opposite party. (Abdur Rahim, Sadasiva Iyer and Napier, JJ.) RAMANATHAN CHETTY v. RANGANATHAN CHETTY. 40 Mad. 1134=33 M. L. J. 252=6 L. W. 300=22 M. L. T. 173=43 I. C. 138=(1917) M. W. N. 757.

———Elements necessary to constitute—Lessor and lessee—Trees.

For a defence of acquiescence to be successful it is necessary that the deft. should have acted in good faith believing that he had a valid lease and was entitled to plant the trees and that the plaintiffs knowing that he was under this mistaken belief should have abstained from doing anything to prevent his spending money in planting the trees. 21 A. 496 P. 8 O. L. J. 474=65 I. C. 705.

Where acquiescence is pleaded in bar of a claim it must be shown that the person acquiescing was aware of the matter in which he acquiesced and of the effect of such acquiescence. (Miller, C. J. and Adami, J.) BHONU LAL CHAUDHURI v. W. A. VINCENT. 3 Pat. L. T. 653=65 I. C. 882=1922 P. 619.

———Cession of territory—Rights enforceable against new sovereign—Antecedent right—Value of.

Annexation of territory is an Act of State and any obligation assumed under a treaty either to the ceding sovereign or to individuals is not one which Municipal Courts are authorized to enforce. After a cession of territory to the British Crown by the Native Rulers, the only enforceable rights in respect of the land ceded are those subsequently confirmed by the Crown by express or implied agreement or by legislation. An agreement by the Crown to confer rights which existed before the cession may be inferred from evidence that the Crown recognized those rights and expressly or impliedly elected to be bound by them. It is only for that purpose that the consideration of the existence, nature or extent, of the ante-cession rights become relevant subjects for inquiry. It is irrelevant in all other respects. 7 M. I. ———Jurisdiction of Municipal Court.

An Act of State cannot be controlled or interfered with by the Municipal Courts but the Courts must decide whether a particular act is in truth an Act of State or not. An administration suit is a suit for an account and application of the debtor's estate for the satisfaction of the claims of all creditors. The Court assumes the administration and settlement of the estate and passes the decree for the benefit of all creditors. Creditors other than the plff. may come in under the decree and prove their debts, and obtain satisfaction of their demands equally with the plff. and they are treated in such case as parties to the suit. If they decline to come in, they will not get the benefit of the decree but from necessity they will be considered bound by the acts done under Court's authority. The plff. cannot be asked to ascertain in advance all the creditors of his debtor and their dues and value his suit accordingly as that is the fundamental point for determination in the suit and cannot be decided by the plff. before trial. ———Suit for—Properties situate outside British India—Form of decree.

One of the incidents of an administration suit is the partition of the estate and, where necessary, the sale thereof under the orders of the Court. Such suits cannot be filed in places other than the place where the property is situate except where the property is situate within the jurisdiction of different courts in British India, in which case the plff. is at liberty to choose his forum. Where however, a person in whose hands, are properties situate outside British India claims a share in the administration suit, the court can rightly place the condition that on his obtaining such share he will account for that portion of the estate in his hands. In 1907 B brought a redemption suit against the mortgagee for Shamilat land and made the sons of A, defts. in the suit. Held that:

(1) As A's sons had taken an unlawful possession of the Shamilat land they were in the position of a trespasser.

———Acquisition of title—Proof of.

A claim of title by adverse possession raises a mixed question of law and fact and should, therefore, be raised in the Court of first instance so that the opposite party may plead to the claim and evidence may be adduced thereon A person who seeks to establish such a claim has to show that his possession was adequate in continuity, publicity and in extent to extinguish the title of the true owner. ———Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Possession to be adverse must be by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them. There must be an express or implied repudiation of the rights of the true owner and an open assertion by the person in possession of a claim of right to hold the property on his own behalf. ———Agricultural village—Site in abadi.

The question of adverse possession depends upon the circumstances of each case; in a case where an inn-keeper in an agricultural village has been using his house for purposes other than those of an ordinary agricultural village, paying no rent for the use of the site in Abadi his possession of the site is adverse to that of the Zamindar. A trespasser wrongfully working a vein of coal from an adjoining mine acquires possession only of the land worked but cannot be said to be in possession of the mine itself. Co-owner.

In the absence of an assertion of an adverse right the mere fact of a co-owner getting his name recorded in the Revenue Records will not amount to an ouster. The possession of one co-owner is that of all the co-owners unless there is some act of ouster by one co-owner against another. (Banerji and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) DEOKINANDAN v. ZAMIR HUSSAIN. 64 I. ———Co-owner—Burden of proof—Limitation.

The onus lies heavily upon the co-owner who sets up adverse possession to prove that he or his predecessor in title had set up adverse title to the knowledge of the others more than 12 years before the institution of the suit because the ordinary presumption is that possession of one is not adverse to the others. ———Co-owners—Exclusive possession of one not necessarily ouster of others.

The essential feature of adverse possession as between tenants-in-common is exclusion or ouster of the other tenant-in-common, sole possession by one does not necessarily operate as ouster of the other but if it is maintained for a long time continuously, without any claim or demand by any person, claiming under the other tenant-in-common, it gives rise to a presumption of actual ouster. ———Co-owners—Onus.

In a suit for possession by one co-owner against another, the latter cannot succeed unless he definitely proves that he has been holding the land adversely against the world for 12 years; plaintiff having proved title, the onus is on the defendant to prove he was not entitled to property. ADVERSE POSSESSION—Co-owner.

The sole possession by one of two joint owners by itself is no evidence of his denial of the right of the other joint owner. Time does not run against the joint owner out of possession, until the joint owner in possession has done some act to the knowledge of the other which amounts to an ouster. The mere fact that the owner in possession redeemed a joint mortgage even though the plaintiff was aware of it, would not amount to an ouster. (*Macleod, C. The possession of a co-owner is not ordinarily adverse to the other co-owners. The sole occupation by one co-sharer, of a portion of joint property, does not constitute an ouster of the other co-sharers; and a co-sharer in possession of a portion of the common land, with the tacit or express consent of his co-sharers cannot change the nature of that possession. 43 M. 244; 28 C. ———Co-owners—Trespass by stranger—Co-owner holding as lessee under trespasser—Effect of.

Where a stranger trespasses on land and ousts all the co-owners and subsequently one of the co-owners holds the land as lessee from the trespasser for more than 12 years, the possession of the lessee is not the possession of his co-owners and it extinguishes the title of all the co-owners to the land. ———Co-owners—Nature of possession of one co-owner.

ADVERSE POSSESSION—Co-owner.

The nature of possession of one co-owner is rightful but does not imply hostility and so it cannot be presumed that such possession is adverse to other co-owners. ———Co-owners—Presumption—Exclusive possession.

The possession of one co-owner is presumed to be for the benefit of all and to establish adverse possession by a hostile act it must be shown that such act was inconsistent with his character as a co-owner and a case of adverse possession cannot be said to be established when there has been no exclusion of the others from use and enjoyment for the period of limitation. ———Co-owners—Rule—Exception.

When a question arises as to whether the possession of one co-owner is adverse to that of another, the fundamental rule is that the entry of possession of land under the common title of one co-owner will not be presumed to be adverse to the others but will be deemed for the benefit of all because a co-owner's possession does not imply hostility. ———Co-owners—Sale by one of specific portion in possession.

Where the sale is made by one co.sharer of a specific portion of the joint holding, which portion is in his possession and possession of which is immediately delivered to the purchaser, the possession of such purchaser is adverse from the moment of his entry. ADVERSE POSSESSION—Co-sharer.

———Co-sharers—Sole occupation—No exclusion—Possession of co-owner referred to his lawful title.

Where one member of a joint family alone occupies the joint estate, that by itself affords no evidence of exclusion of other interested members of the family. Uninterrupted sole possession of such property without more, must be referred to the lawful title possessed by the joint holder to use the estate, and cannot be regarded as an assertion of a right to hold it as separate, so as to assert an adverse claim against other interested members. Where possession can be either lawful or unlawful, in the absence of evidence, it must be assumed to be the former. (Lord Buckmaster). HARDIT SINGH v. GURMUKH SINGH. 64 P. R. 1918=58 P. W. ———Co-sharers—Knowledge.

Sole possession by one of two or more joint owners is not adverse to others until the joint owner has done some act to the knowledge of the others which amounts to a denial of the latter's right. The mere execution of a registered deed affecting the property by one of the co-sharers is not notice of adverse possession to the other sharers. 48 C. 1; 46 Bom. 213, 37 A. 203 referred to. (Daniels, J.) SHAKUR v. HUSSAINI BIBI. 71 I. C. 653=1923 All. 447.

———Co-sharer—Possession by some of them—Mortgage—Redemption—Effect of.

The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of law and fact. As between co-sharers unless there was some act to the knowledge of the plaintiffs by which their title was denied or repudiated, the mere fact of the plaintiffs not being in actual possession would not amount to ouster such as would extinguish their right. Similarly the fact that some of the co-sharers mortgage the property and give possession thereof to the mortgagee would not make the possession of the mortgagee adverse to the other co-sharer. (Mears, C. J. and Banerji, J.) HAFIZ ABDULLAH v. ALLI. 21 A. L. J. 204=71 I. C. 640=L. R. 4 A. 139=1923 All. 291 (1).

———Co-sharers—Acquiescence—Effect of—Permissive possession—Presumption.

It is not an inflexible rule of law that a co-sharer's possession is the possession of all the co-sharers. The question depends on the circumstances of each case. Where co-owners are cousins by marriage who succeed to certain property, and one of them occupies more than his own share of the property without in any way indicating that he is doing so on behalf of the other, he really ousts the other co-sharer from possession of the portion exclusively occupied by him. A consent to usurpation of possession by another does not prevent his possession from becoming adverse. (Walsh, J.) MUSTAFA KHAN v. DULARI. 3 U.P.L.R. (A) 5=65 I.C. 75=1922 All. 433.

———Co-sharers—Ouster—Burden of proof.

In a suit for possession by one co-sharer against another, plff. is entitled to rely on the presumption that possession of deft. was on behalf of plff. and it lies upon the deft. to prove that he had set up an adverse title to the knowledge of the plff. for more than 12 years before suit. The fact that plff. did not receive profits for many years alone does not raise a presumption of his ouster. (Chamier and Piggott, JJ.) MALLAH v. BEHARI. 28 I. C. 276=13 A. L. J. 298.

———Co-sharer—Management.

Management by one co-heir whose name alone is recorded in the Revenue papers, the other co-heir being a minor does not give him a title by adverse possession. Richards, C. J. and Banerji, J.) MAYAT HUSAIN v. AZIZ BANNO. 10 I. C. 413 (A.)

———Co-sharers.

Exclusive possession of a tenant in common is not adverse until ouster by denial of the right of the tenant in common is established. Therefore, exclusive enjoyments of all profits is not by itself sufficient to constitute ouster. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) SHIVALINGAPPA v. SATYAVA. 64 I. C. 552=23 Bom. L. R. 967

———Co-sharer—Assertion of hostile title—Disclaimer.

———Co-sharers—Stranger in possession on behalf of co-sharer—Effect of.

Where two sisters succeeded as co-heirs to certain properties of their deceased father, and the husband of one sister was in possession and management of the land for over 40 years after which the other sister (plaintiff) sued for a declaration of her title to half of the properties: Held that the fact that the husband of one of the sisters was looking alter the land would not make his possession adverse unless it was found that he was in possession of the land asserting his own right and not as a manager of his wife's property. If he was in possession openly asserting his own right and not that of his wife for a period of 12 years in such a manner as to amount to what is called notorious exclusion, then the plaintiffs' case would fail. But if he merely possessed the land without any such assertion of title in himself and the facts were such that the plaintiff could not be expected to know that he was not in possession on behalf of the plaintiff's sister then the plaintiff's suit would not be barred. (Newbould, J.) JOYTUN BIBI v. SOLIMUDDIN CHOWKIDAR. 72 I.C. 33 (C.)

———Co-sharers—Ouster—Knowledge essential to constitute possession of one co-sharer adverse to others.

To prove dispossession by one co-sharer of another, it must be shown that there was exclusion or ouster to the knowledge of the latter. The principle does not depend on whether the parties are members of a joint family but rests upon the ground that they are co-owners and applies to all cases of co-owners. There can be no dispossession by one joint tenant in the absence of an assertion of a hosiile title by him to the knowledge of the other joint tenants sought to be excluded from the joint tenancy, and if no notice is given to the co-sharer of the denial of his right the occupant must make his possession so visibly hostile and notorious and so apparently exclusive and adverse as to justify the inference of knowledge on the part of tho co-owner sought to be ousted and of laches if he fails to discover and assert his rights. 26 C.W.N. 65; 26 C.W.N. 206; 29 Bom. 300 Rel. ———Co-sharers—Ouster—Evidence of—Knowledge—Erection of building.

To establish adverse possession as between co-sharers there must be evidence of an open assertion of a hostile title by one of them to the knowledge of the others. Mere non-participation in the profits by one party and exclusive occupation by the other is not conclusive. The erection of a substantial building on joint property by one co-owner is not conclusive evidence of ouster. ———Co-sharers—Ouster.

The possession of one co-sharer is in law the possession of all the co-owners. A secret intimation or mental determination of one co-sharer to put an end to the possession of others will not suffice. Nothing short of ouster or something equivalent to ouster can bring about adverse possession. (Jenkins, C.J. and Ray, J.) FAIZUDDIN KHAN v. REJU AKAB. 28 I.C. 22= 21 C.L.J. 192.

———Co-sharers—Elements to constitute.

To enable one sharer to acquire title by adverse possession against the co sharers, his possession must be so open, notorious, unequivocal, exclusive and hostile as to amount to an ouster of the other co-sharers. ———Co-sharer—Occupation of larger area.

A co-sharer cannot be said to have been in adverse possession merely because he cultivated a larger area than what would fall to his share on a partition. Possession by one co-sharer is possession by all. This joint possession cannot be put an end to by any secret intention by any one co-sharer in possession. ADVERSE POSSESSION– Co-sharer.

———Co-sharers.

Where the defts. acted on their own behalf only in suing a trespasser for possession their adverse possession begins from the date of their possession as against their co-sharers. (Rossignol, J.) ZULPHI v. ASGHAR. 3 Lah. L. J. 441.

———Co-sharers—Sole possession—Non-payment of rent.

To establish adverse possession as between co-sharers there must be evidence of an open assertion of a hostile act on the part of the co-sharers setting up adverse possession with notice to others, and that mere non-participation in the profits by one party and the exclusive occupation by the other party is not sufficient. (Chevis, O. C. J.) BALAK RAM v. KAURA.

A co-sharer, though not in possession, may be presumed to be in possession though his co-sharers are in actual occupation. (Martineau, J.) CHANAN MAL v. MELA RAM.
50 I. C. 762=117 P. R. 1919.

In the absence of a clear and unequivocal act the possession of a joint owner cannot be regarded as adverse to his co-owner, because in a joint holding possession of one is the possession of all others. (Johnstone and Shadi Lal, JJ.) THIRAJ v. KASIM. 48 P. W. R. 1915=26 I. C. 481=124 P. L. R. 1915.

———Co-sharers—Possession of, if and when can be adverse to others.

Possession of one co-sharer is ordinarily possession of all but such possession may become adverse to that of the others when the co-sharer in possession expresses by an overt act, an unequivocable intention to hold the property for himself exclusively; and time will begin to run and limitation can be avoided only by expressly breaking down the other exclusive possession. (Johnstone and Chevis, JJ.) AKBAR v. TABU.

A co-sharer went to live in another place leaving his share of joint holding in possession of his brothers who paid rents for him. On his death his son's name was placed on revenue papers without any objections in 1890. In a suit by the son in 1906 it was held, that there was neither abandonment by the absentee nor adverse possession by co-sharers. (Chevis, J.) CHARAGH v. MAHOMED DIN. 12 I. C. 425=125 P. W. ———Co-sharers—Tawazhi in Tarwad.

When the eldest male member of a Tawazhi forming a branch of a tarwad, the adverse possession by the Tavazhi as against the Tarwad cannot be established. (Spencer & Devadoss, JJ.) OLIYATH VAZHAYIL ABUBAKKAR v. OLIYATH KUNHIKUTTIYALI. 16 L. W. 768=31 M.L.J. 389=74 I. C. 27=1923 Mad. 153.

ADVERSE POSSESSION—Co-sharer.

———Co-sharers — Alienee from — Possession—Knowledge.

The possession of an alienee from one of several co-tenants is adverse as against the other co-tenants from the moment of entry into possession by the alienee. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Moore, JJ.) SHEIKH ABDUR GAFUR v. ASHAMATH BIBI. 54 I.C. 385=11 L. W. 31.

———Co-sharers—Possession of one, enures for all.

Where a co-owner gets into possession of certain lands on behalf of the whole body of the co-owners, his possession enures for the benefit of all the members of the family and he cannot make it adverse to them. (Wallis, C. J. and Srinivasa Iyengar, J.) HIDAYAT ALI KHAN SAHEB v. KHADAR KHAN SAHEB. 30 I. C. 586 (M.).

———Co-sharers—Limitation.

The possession of one co-tenant is the possession of all persons entitled as tenants-in-common. (Wallis, C. J. and Seshagiri Aiyar, J.) HASSAN AMMAL BIBI v. ISMAIL MOIDEEN. 28 M.L.J. 642= 29 I.C. 976=(1915) M.W.N. 414.

———Co-sharers—Possession.

A person in physical possession of a property subject to a joint interest cannot claim adverse possession of his co-sharer's interest before partition. There can be no physical possession of an interest in an unascertained area. 24 A. 17 P. C. Ref. (Stanyon, A. J. C.) SADHURAM v. RAMADIN. 42 I. C. 291 (N.)

———Co-sharers.

Physical possession of one co-owner is presumably not adverse to others not in physical possession; hence the possession of a lambardar cannot be said to be adverse to the recorded co-sharers merely because he pays no share of profits to them nor does it amount to an ouster. 13 C. P. 99 diss., 2 C. P. 171, 8 C. P. L. R. 41 foll. (Batten and Stanyon, A. J. C.) DINA v. BISHAMBHAR SING. 31 I. C. 464=11 N. L. R. 164.

———Co-sharers—Mothers and daughters.

A mother of a minor daughter holding the whole estate of her father cannot claim adverse possession merely because the mother held the property and maintained the daughter. (Lindsay, J. C.) SADRANNISSA v. RAM BHAROSE. 55 I. C. 873=7 O. L. J. 78.

In the case of joint co-owners, like a son and his mother or brother and sister, living jointly and maintaining themselves out of the income of the joint property, the possession of one does not become adverse to the others unless ouster or a repudiation of title to the knowledge of the other owners is manifested. (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) ASGAR HUSSAIN v. AKBAR HUSSAIN. 36 I. C. 743= 3 O. L. J. 438.

———Co-sharers—Withholding of share of collections—Effect of.

If there is joint collection of rents at the time when any failure to deliver to the plaintiffs their share of the rent can hardly be held to amount to assertion of adverse title or to dispossession until it is shown that the plaintiff's title was definitely denied. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) KULDIP SINGH v. RAM SEWAK SINGH. 67 I.C. 795= 1923 Pat. 183.

ADVERSE POSSESSION—Co-tenants.

———Co-sharers.

The possession of one co-sharer cannot become adverse to that of other co-sharers except where one party asserts an exclusive title as against others. (Pipon, J. C.) GHULAM HAIDAR KHAN v. ALI KHAN. 73 I. C. 748 (Pesh.).

———Co-sharers.

There can be no adverse possession between co-sharers in joint possession. (Twomey, J.) MA NYAIN ME v. MA MAY. 32 I. C. 568=9 Bur. L. T. 84 (R.).

———Co-sharers—Profits.

Exclusive receipt of profits by one tenant-in common for a long time without any claim or demand from the other is evidence of ouster and is a denial of the rights of the tenant-in-common. (Pratt, J. C. and Hayward, A. J. C.) ASUDMAL v. ALI. 10 I. C. 554=5 S. L. R. 49.

Co-tenants.

———Co-tenants—Ouster—Non-participation in profits.

In deciding whether there has been an ouster, the Court may take into consideration, the fact that a tenant-in-common did not participate in the rents and profits for a considerable length of time and that other circumstances concur. (Mears, C.J. and Piggott, J.) NANHAY LAL v. LACHHMI NARAIN. L.R. 3 A. 605.

Exclusion or ouster by tenants-in-common is the chief requisite of adverse possession long and continuous sole possession of a tenant-in-common without any claim from others is the evidence of ouster of them by him. (Chandavarkar and Batchelor, JJ.) SAVALPURI BALPURI v. BALA YADAVSHET SONAR. 36 Bom. 543=16 I.C. 341= 14 Bom. L.R. 566.

———Co-tenants—Ouster or exclusion—Denial of rights of other co-tenants—Circumstances showing exclusion.

Adverse possession by one tenant-in-common against his co-tenants is established on proof of exclusion or ouster and possession subsequent to that exclusion or ouster for the statutory period. The exclusive possession or participation of profits by one co-tenant must be such as to afford an indication of denial of the rights of the other co-tenants. Mere non-participation in rents and profits would not of itself necessarily amount to adverse possession; but such non-participation or non-possession may, in a particular case, amount to adverse possession. Some of the circumstances to be taken into consideration are:—The relationship of the parties, their position, the mode of life in the particular community to which the parties belong, the character of the property and other circumstances of a similar nature. (Jenkins, C.J. and Chatterjee, J.) AMENNESSA BIBI v. SHEIK ISUF. 14 I.C. 722=16 C.W.N. 849.

In the case of a tenancy-in-common, the possession of one co-tenant of a specific portion of the property does not amount to adverse possession as against the other co-tenants in the absence of clear evidence of ouster. (1912) A. C. 250 foll. The history of the English and Indian law as to adverse possession among co-tenants reviewed. (Wallis, C. J. and Seshagiri Aiyar, J.) KUMARAPPA CHETTIAR v. SAMINATHA CHETTIAR. 42 Mad. 431=36 M. L. J. 612=52 I. C. 470=(1919) M. W. N. 328.

———Co-tenants.

Possession by one tenant in common cannot be adverse against the others, unless there has been exclusion of the latter from enjoyment to their knowledge. Where possession can be referred to a legal right, there is no acquisition of title by prescription. (Miller and Bakewell, JJ.) GIRI APPAYA v. GIRI KRISTAMMA. 24 I. C. 436 (M.)

———Co-tenants—Ouster to the knowledge of others.

The possession of one joint tenant is the possession of all and there can be no dispossession by one joint tenant in the absence of an assertion of a hostile title by him to the knowledge of the other joint tenants sought to be excluded from the joint tenancy. (Das, J.) LACHMI SAHU v. RADHA KRISHNA SAHU. 51 I. C. 77 (Pat.).

Debutter Property.

———Debutter property—Manager—Idol.

Possession obtained from a manager of endowed property becomes adverse to the idol as represented by the succeeding manager. (Beaman and Hayward, JJ.) PANDURANGA BALAGI v. DNYAMNU. 36 Bom. 135=12 I. C. 926=13 Bom. L. R. 1169.

———Debutter property—Permanent lease for more than 60 years—Suit for resumption—Limitation.

A permanent lease, not impeached for 60 years becomes indefeasible whatever the true character of the original grants may be and a suit for resumption of the debutter properties covered by the grants is barred by limitation. Donor and Donee.

———Donor and donee—Right to possession—Donee's line extinct—Property reverting to donor's line.

Where the donee's line of descent having become extinct the land goes back to the line of the donor, the possession of any person occupying the land along with the last male-holder does not become adverse during the lifetime of the latter. (Johnstone, J.) ILAHIA v. NIZAM-UD-DIN. 94 P.W.R. 1914=24 I.C. 623=193 P.L.R. 1914.

Easement.

———Easement—Permanent tenancy—Prescription by one tenant against another.

In India, unlike in England, a tenant with permanent rights can acquire an easement by prescription against another tenant having the same rights. The incidents of a permanent tenancy in this country are different from the incidents of a tenant for years as they obtain in England, 19 C. W. N. 1211 followed. (C. C. Ghose and B. B. Ghose, JJ.) KALIPADA BOSE v. FANI BHUSAN ROY. 70 I. C. 173 (Cal).

LANDLORD AND TENANT.
POSSESSORY TITLE.

Elements of.

———Elements of—Hostile possession—Proof of, if necessary.

To constitute adverse possession it is sufficient that the person now claiming to be owner should stand by while others continue to possess not by derivative title but in practical contravention of his alleged rights. He need not prove that such claimant protested against the violation of his rights, and that possession went on in spite of such protest. (Lord Shaw.) ARUNACHALAM CHETTY v. VENKATACHALAPATHY GURUSWAMIGAL. 43 Mad. 253=46 I.A 204=37 M.L.J. 460=(1919) M.W.N. 850=10 L.W. 642=26 M.L.T. 479=24 C.W.N. 249=17 A.L.J. (1097)=53 I. C. 288=22 Bom. L. R. 457 (P. C.)

———Elements of—Minor Acts.

Possession in order to be adverse must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent. Where the acts of adverse possession consisted in "tethering of cattle and throwing cow-dung on the land". Held they did not denote an assertion of a claim of ownership to that land. (N. Chatterjee and Greaves, JJ.) MA HABIR MISSER v. NANDAKISHORE MISSER. 27 I. C. 640=27 C. L. J. 583.

———Elements of—Ineffective possession—When becomes adverse.

Where a deft. whose possession is ineffective wants to base his claim upon an assertion of title it is necessary for him to prove that the owner had knowledge of such assertion. An openly avowed claim means a claim to the knowledge of the owner. (Sundara Aiyar and Spencer, JJ.) MALLA VEERANNA v. MALLACHELAMAYYA. 13 I. C. 467=(1912) M. W. N. 68.

———Enjoyment.

The enjoyment of a right by the persons claiming it whether it takes the form of commuted money or the actual enjoyment of the immoveable property is for the purpose of limitation plainly adverse to the person owning the remaining interests in immoveable property. (Beaman and Hayward, JJ.) MAHASHANKAR v. MAHASHANKAR. 33 Bom. 174=12 I. C. 716=13 Bom. L. R. 1047.

———Enjoyment—Pond—Not capable of physical possesssion—Intermittent user—Effect of.

Intermittent user of a pond accompanied by no assertion of right is a very common phenomenon in India and often arouses no opposition. The pond is not susceptible of actual physical possession by the legal owner and possession follows title unless the usurper can prove long and continuous exclusion of the rightful owner. (Le Rossignol, J.) BHURU v. DATU RAM. 4 Lah. L. J. 461=1922 Lah. 59 (1).

Where land consists of a vacant site desultory acts of possession such as storing cow dung cakes and tying cattle are insufficient to consitute adverse possession. (William and Harrison, JJ.) WAZIRI MAL v. GANGA RAM. 69 I. C. 573. (L.)

A person who has been merely asserting an adverse title, cannot be said to be in adverse possession against the owner while the former is neither in actual possession or in constructive possession as shown by receipt of rents and profits. ———Essentials of—Isolated acts of trespass do not constitute adverse possession.

The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent, in order that it may be effective to destroy the title of the true owner. Possession to be adverse must be actual, exclusive and hostile, and a distinction must be made between continuous adverse occupation and isolated acts of trespass. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) H. H. ———Evidence of—Tenant not paying rent after term.

It is necessary to prove an overt act of adverse possession before the possession which is non-adverse at its inception can become adverse. If a tenant does not pay rent after the expiry of the stipulated term, it does not mean that he possesses adversely from that date, the mere physical possession being presumed to be retained by him as before. 31 A. 514 Dist., 37 A. 557 (P.C.), Ref. In 1895 two widows having an absolute interest in certain property gave it away to the daughter of one of them as Stridhanam, and effected transfer of registry in the Collector's office. The donee executed in 1901 a power of attorney in favour of her husband authorising him to collect rents and in 1901 the widows in a will acknowleged the possession of the donee. Held, that the donee though the gift was not proved, was in adverse possession of the property against the widows though the rents collected were paid indiscriminately to the two widows. ———Evidence of—Entry in Government Survey.

Effective occupation of land by a person for the statutory period and the absence of assertion of a claim of right to it by any one else is both strong evidence of title in pursuance of which he took possession and conclusive of his right to the land by prescription. It is sufficient for the person claiming the prescriptive right even if he proves that the only use he made of the land was to store water therein. An entry in the Govt. survey account and the Government land register is not strong evidence of title of the person in whose name the entry is made, unless it is accompanied by substantial acts of enjoyment. Hereditary Office.

———Hereditary office—Office of Patil and Kulkarni—Adverse possession.

The plaintiff was one of the eldest members of the family of Jaghirdars, to whom the village of Hebli was granted in Jaghir in 1748 A. D. inclusive of the confiscated lands of the Patilki and Nadgir Vatans. The latter lands had been resumed by Government prior to 1723 for non payment of jodi. The plaintiff's family was in possession of the bulk of those lands and exercised the rights of the service of Patilki and Kulkarniki; the lands were entered in their names as 'Kamavishi' in Government records. Somehow a small portion of the lands went into the possession of the defendants who belonged to the Nadgir family. In 1876, the defendants obtained possession of another portion of the lands from the plaintiff's family through a Civil Court; but from the date of the suit in 1868, the plaintiff's family discontinued entering the Vatan lands as 'Kamavishi,' in its books. In an inquiry under the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874 it was held by the Collector in 1906 and by the Government in 1908 that the whole of the Patilki and Kulkarniki Vatan should be entered as such in the Vatan register against the names of Nadgir defendants and that so much as was required for the emolument of the officiators should be recovered from the Jaghirdars in possession. Accordingly, a contribution was levied against the Jaghirdars in 1913. Thereupon, the plaintiff sued for a declaration that his family were Vatandar's Patils and Kulkarnis by virtue of the grant; or in the alternative by their long and exclusive possession and enjoyment of the offices until 1908:—

Held that the manner in which the Vatan lands were treated both by the Government and the Jaghirdars showed that the lands had not become the absolute property of the Jaghirdars:

Payment of rent by a tenant to a third person would not amount to denial of the landlord's title or to adverse possession against him unless he can show that his possession was in denial of the title of the real owner to his knowledge. The possession of a tenant does not become adverse to the landlord by the mere fact of his repudiating the tenancy unless the repudiation is accepted by the landlord. ———Landlord and Tenant—Shamilat—Occupation by one tenant.

An occupancy tenant who occupies a portion of the shamilat land with the consent or acquiescence of the proprietors for agricultural purposes cannot be disturbed in his possession so long as he remains a tenant in the village and uses the site for the purpose for which it was given, but if he diverts the site to other purposes as for instance to build upon and disclaiming the title of the proprietors sets up an adverse title in himself, he forfeits his rights of user and is liable to ejectment at the instance of the proprietors. Where there is no overt act as for instance by the erection of a building, the possession of the occupant is not adverse to the proprietors. (Harrison, J.) BHAG SINGH v. KHUSHAL SINGH.

———Landlord and Tenant—Ejectment—Decree conditional on payment of compensation—Decree not executed—Effect of—Subsequent suit for redemption.

A suit for ejectment by a landlord against his tenant was decreed subject to the payment of compensation for improvements. The decree was not executed and the tenant continued in possession thereafter for more than 12 years. In a suit to eject the defendant on redemption by payment of the sum specified in the previous decrees as compensation. Held, that the decree in ejectment suit did not create or establish the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee between the parties to the suit and therefore a suit for redemption did not lie.

Ever since the previous suit, the possession of the defendants had been adverse to the plaintiff and the present suit was, therefore, barred by time. (Scott-Smith, J.) FAZAL v. MIHAN KHAN.

———Landlord and tenant—Non-occupancy tenants paying no rent—Holding over—Effect.

The forefathers of the plaintiff's were holding shamilat land under a lease. In 1865 the lease period ended and still the lands were in their possession even after the lease period. Revenue records regarded them as non-occupancy tenants. They wanted to be called as proprietors by the said records but were refused to be given that right. The absence on their part of paying any rent except land revenue and other cesses was not sufficient to entitle them to be regarded as proprietors and there was no ground of adverse possession in 1881, as they merely continued to cultivate the lands and pay the land revenue and cesses as before. ———Landlord and tenant—Trespasser—Possession of.

Rahim, J.—When land is in possession of a tenant, the term of whose lease is outstanding, and such tenant is ousted from possession by a trespasser, time will not run against the owner until after the expiry of the term. 21 M. 288; 19 M. L. J. 347, Cons. Per Sundara Iyer, J.:—If the trespasser asserts only a right of tenancy then, no doubt, limitation starts against the landlord only from the date the tenancy ceases. If he has not acquired by his adverse possession the right of a tenant under the statute, then, Art. 144 would be applicable, his possession being regarded as adverse to the lessor only when the latter's estate falls into possession. As against a stranger the landlord is entitled to recover possession even though his tenant's lease has not been terminated and when the stranger purports to hold absolutely and not by the acquisition of a prescriptive title as against the tenant the landlord's cause of action arises on the date of the dispossession of the tenant. The landlord has an option to treat a person cultivating his land without his permission as a trespasser and to sue him for possession as a trespasser and damages in the Civil Court or to treat him as a tenant and sue him for rent for the occupation of the same at a fair and equitable rate. But the landlord cannot exercise the choice with any effect after a hostile title has been acquired by the occupant by reason of his adverse possession, for more than 12 years as his title is lost at the end of that period. Lessor and Lessee.

———Lessor and lessee—Case of successive leases.

The possession of a trespasser during the continuance of a lease does not become adverse against the lessor; the lessor is in possession by receipt of rents from the lessee and so long as such rent is not intercepted by a trespasser, he cannot be said to be dispossessed. The position may be different where there are successive leases for terms and the termination of one. Limited Interest.

———Limited interest—Assertion of higher interest—Lapse of time—No acquisition of title.

It is not correct as a general proposition of law that a person who is, in fact, in possession of land under a tenancy or occupancy title can, by a mere assertion in a judicial proceeding and the lapse of 6 or 12 years without that assertion having been successfully challenged, obtain a title as an under-proprietor to the lands. ———Mortgagor and mortgagee—Void sale of equity of redemption—Effect of.

S the owner of certain property mortgaged it in 1898 with possession, S died in 1899 and soon after his eldest son, a minor, purported to sell the equity of redemption to the defts. The vendees redeemed the mortgage in 1908 and an younger son of S instituted a suit for redemption in 1918. The defendant contended that their possession was adverse since 1899 and that the present suit was barred. Held, that the sale to defts. being void, the possession of the mortgagee was on behalf of the rightful owners, the sons of the mortgagors and was not adverse to them till 1908 when the defendants obtained possession. Consequently the suit for redemption was in time and there was no acquisition of title by adverse possession on the part of the defendants. (*Shah, A. C. On the purchase of this equity of redemption, the defendant redeemed the remaining two-thirds of the mortgage. When the plaintiffs sued to redeem the property, the defendant set up his adverse possession from the date of the sale of the equity of redemption in his favour; Held, (1) that the sale of the equity of redemption which had been previously sold did not amount to adverse possession as the vendor had no rights left to him which he could sell and therefore the subsequent sale was a mere nullity in law.

(2) That where a mortgagee has once got possession of the mortgaged property, he cannot alter the nature of his possession.

———Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Where an occupation is permissive, its conversion into one of an adverse nature, cannot be presumed in the absence of evidence. The mere denial by a mortgagee of the mortgagor's title cannot constitute adverse possession. But where a change in the mode of occupation is made by both parties (e. g.,) a sale of the equity of redemption, the mortgagee's possession would become adverse to that of the mortgagor. ———Mortgagor and mortgagee—Claim as against each other.

As between mortgagor and mortgagee, no question of adverse possession arises, during the period with which either of them can enforce their rights and no acquiescence by the mortgagor not amounting to release of the equity of redemption can be a bar or defence to a redemption suit if the party is otherwise entitled to redeem. ADVERSE POSSN.—Mortgagor & Mortgagee.

———Mortgagor and mortgagee—Simple mortgage—Possession adverse to mortgagor—When adverse to mortgagee.

When after a simple mortgage has been granted a third person begins to hold adversely to the mortgagor, the period of adverse possession against the mortgagor cannot operate against the mortgagee while he is not entitled to possession. Adverse possession operates against a mortgagee only when the mortgagee is entitled to possession and time runs against him from the date when he is entitled to enter upon the land. In the case of the grant of a mortgage by a person previously dispossessed the adverse possession which had commenced to operate against the mortgagor would not by the grant of the mortgage be arrested but would operate equally against the mortgagee. Nature of.

———Nature of—Onus.

Possession to be adverse, must be adequate in continuity, in publicity, and in extent and this will vary according to the nature of the land. The onus of establishing such adverse possession is on the adverse possessor. Acts of possession by the person, in whom title stands, though insufficient to constitute adverse possession as against another, will be sufficient to destroy the adequate, exclusive and continuous character of the possession of the person challenging the title which the owner claims. ———Permissive—Precarious possession is only permissive possession.

A person who has acquired a precarious possession is not deemed to have judicial possession. He is liable to be condemned to deliver up such possession to his opponent as soon as the latter is ready and willing to restore what he holds to the other. The possessory relation, in such circumstances, is imperfect. It is vitiated by the duty to restore and must, therefore be deemed as equivalent to permissive possession. Permissive possession does not barely rest on an expressed agreement by means of which one party permits another to take possession of his property. Adverse possession against a widow does not bar reversioners, whose title accrues from the date of the widow's death. (Banerji, J.) HARDWAR RAI v. BALRAM RAI. 18 I. C. 959 (A).

———Tacking—Hindu widow—Reversioner.

Adverse possession against a widow is not adverse against the reversioners. (Banerji, J.) SHEO CHAUDHARI v. SADHO DAS.

———Tacking—Mortgagor and Mortgagee.

A mortgagee in possession from a mortgagor who is a trespasser, completes his title by adverse possession by tacking his possession on to that of the mortgagor against the true owner if they are in possession for more than 12 years. (Banerji, J.) BENI MADHO SINGH v. DEBI SARAN DUBE.
10 I. C. 545 (A).

ADVERSE POSSESSION—Tacking of.

———Tacking of- -Independent trespasser—Limitation Act, Art. 144.

It is not open to persons who come into possession of property independent of any title derived from the previous possessor to tack on their predecessors' possession to their own. (Fletcher and Walmsley, JJ.) CHANDRODAYA BHATTACHARJEE v. CHANDRAKALA.

49 I. C. 751 (C).

———Tacking of—Nature of interest acquired.

A person who enters into possession of an estate under a title from a life estate-holder cannot by continuing his possession after the death of such holder add it to his prior possession, so as to make out a title by adverse possession for the statutory period. 68 I. C. 299=2 Lah. L. J. 573.

———Tacking—Independent trespassers.

It is not open to one of two independent trespassers (not claiming through one another) to tack on the possession of the other trespasser to his own. (Rattigan, C J.) HUSSAIN BAKSH v. PALA SINGH. 47 I. C. 189=153 P. W. R. 1918.

———Tacking of.

The possession of one trespasser can be tacked on to that of another and a continuity of adverse possession may result thereby only when the interests of both are identical, not different and antagonistic. (Johnstone and Chevis, JJ.) BALDEO SINGH v. MOHAN SINGH. 119 P. L. R. 1914=22 I. C. 855=72 P. W. R. 1914.

———Tacking—Hindu widow—Reversioners, ultimate reversioners—When possession becomes adverse against them.

Adverse possession against reversioners begins only from the time they became entitled to it. Even against the ultimate reversioners the same principle applies. (Ayling and Srinivasa Aiyangar, JJ.) NEO KANTH RAO v. NARAYANSWAMI AIYAR. 20 M. L. T. 526=37 I. C. 733=31 M. L. J. 847.

———Tacking—Hindu widow—Possession adverse to widow not adverse to reversioner.

Possession adverse to a Hindu widow which commences during her life-time cannot be adverse to the reversioners. (Daniels and Lyle, A. J. Cs.) MT. PARBATI v. SAIYID MAHOMED HADI.

9 O. L. J. 304=68 I. C. 534=1923 O. 31.

———Tacking of—Mortgagee from trespass.

It is essential that the adverse possessions which are to be tacked on must be of the same or of an identical nature. A mortgagee from a trespasser cannot as against the true owner, tack his own possession as mortgagee to that of the mortgagor, for the latter is a trespasser on the proprietary right whilst the mortgagee holds adversely merely to the extent of the mortgage interest. ———Tacking of—Estoppel.

When two parties unite and claim property from a third party, and get a decree and afterwards the first party claims the entire property in preference to the second party: Held, the first party is estopped from setting up a claim contrary to the agreement, though it was based on an incorrect conception of the law. There is no question of tacking on of the possession. (Kanhaiya Lal, A.J.C.) SHEDAMAR SINGH v. BALBAHADRA SINGH. 2 O. L. J. 137 = 28 I. C. 357 = 18 O. C. 51.

———Tacking of—Transfer or devise of.

The possession of a trespasser although without title, confers upon him a devisable and transferable interest in the property and his heir or devisee can bring an ejectment suit against any person other than the true owner who has entered upon the land. 12 A. 51; 24 A. 157; 3 C. 224, Ref. For the purpose of upholding a plea of adverse possession an addition of the period of possession of the property by the second trespasser with that of the first from whom the second derived his title is allowable in a suit of ejectment. ADVERSE POSSESSION—Trust & Trustee.

———Test of.

The criterion of adverse possession is whether a person possesses land claiming it as his own. If he does, he must be held to be in adverse possession. (Shadi Lal and Le Rossignol, JJ.) ALLAH DAD v. FAZAL DAD. 46 I. C. 964 (L.)

Trust and Trustee.

———Trusteeship—General and particular trusts Kattalai.

An idol may have not merely a general trustee but also other subordinate representatives having the right to manage certain special portions of his property, and pay over the income so collected to the endowment and even to some degree control its use. Such rights are not inconsistent with the existence of a general trustee, but they are fatal to his claim to possession of the properties from which those revenues were derived. The position of such subordinate trustees could be acquired by prescription against the subordinate trustee as well as the general trustee. The rule being that parties are entitled to be heard before orders against them are made, a party prejudiced by any order made without hearing him should apply to the same Court to be re-heard. The Court possesses an inherent power to rectify an inadvertent mistake (apart f rom S. 151, C. P. ——Ss. 9 and 20—Scope of—Section applies only to disputes between Landlord and tenant Presumption under section is conclusive.

S. 9 of the Agra Tenancy Act is very limited in scope and applies only where the dispute is between a landlord and his tenant and relates to the nature of the tenancy. A dispute may arise in proceedings to which the landlord is not at all a party. Under S. 20 (1) of the Tenancy Act the interest of a permanent tenure-holder or of a fixed-rate tenant is heritable according to his personal law. Whereas other tenancies devolve according to the rule laid down in Section 22. A dispute may very well arise between the rival heirs of a deceased tenant and the question of the true nature of the tenancy may have to be decided in a litigation to which the landlord is not a party. It is not open to either set of these heirs to go behind the entry at the last revision of records and adduce evidence to the contrary. The presumption under S. 9 is conclusive.

AGRA TENANCY ACT—(II of 1901.) S. 10.

There are many ways in which fixed rate tenancies may come to an end, e. g. by surrender, ejectment, express agreement with the landlord, or as in this case, by merger. If a covenant to relinquish the sir lands is part of a transaction of sale or of mortgage, then the agreement to surrender will be void as unenforceable, no matter what ingenious devices may be employed to give colour to it. If a Court is satisfied that there was first of all a transfer by way of sale or mortgage and that the transferor, having obtained the status of an ex-proprietary tenant with full knowledge of that fact and of the rights preserved to him by statue, deliberately chooses as a separate transaction, to relinquish his ex-proprietary tenancy into the hands of the proprietor, or of the mortgagee in possession, the law cannot protect a reckless and imprudent man against the consequences of his own acts. The mere fact of the removal of the plaintiff's name from the revenue papers as an exproprietary tenant does not affect the question. AGRA TENANCY ACT (II of 1901) S. 41.

The plaintiff was a grove-holder and the defendant the Zemindar. The suit was brought on the allegation that the defendant being entitled to one-fourth of the fruits of the grove had wrongfully appropriated one half of the fruits. The suit was filed in the Small Cause Court claiming the value of the fruits wrongfully appropriated. The defence was that the suit was cognisable only by the Revenue Court being a suit contemplated by S. 36 of the Tenancy Act, and that, therefore, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was ousted by S. 167 of the same Act. Held, that the intention of the framers of the Tenancy Act was to include such a case as the present within the jurisdiction of the Civil Court, and if S. 36, as framed, does not cover it, it is merely because the possibility of such a case was not thought of at that time when the section was drafted. ———Ss. 95 and 167—Suit for declaration that deft. is only a tenant-at-will lies only in Revenue Court.

Plffs. were Zemindars of a village in which L was an occupancy tenant of a holding. L died and on his death the defts. applied for mutation of their names in the place of L as being entitled to succeed to his occupancy holding. While those proceedings were pending a suit was brought by plff. in the Munsiff's Court for a declaration that defendants were not the grandsons of L and the defence was that the suit was not cognizable by the Civil Court. Held that the suit was not cognizable by the Civil Court. The appropriate suit for the plffs. to have brought was for a declaration under S. 95 of the Tenancy Act. Taking the pleadings, it was admitted that the relationship of landlord subsisted between the parties and that the tenancy was still subsisting. The only dispute was as to the tenancy. Was it an occupancy tenancy as the defts. claimed or a non-occupancy tenancy from year to year as the plffs. asserted? Consequently S. 95 (a) and (b) of the Agra Tenancy Act applied to the case. An appeal in a suit under S. 95 of the Act lies to the Revenue Court and not to the District Judge. 36 A. 48; 5 A. L. J. 374; 35 A. 299 Rel. (*Mears, C. A Zemindar took proceedings before an Asst. Collector to resume certain land under S. 154 of the Act. The defence was that the land was not resumable and that it had been held rent free for fifty years and by two successors to the original grantee. The Asst. Collector holding that the land was resumable passed a decree for ejectment. The defts. appealed to the Commissioner who dismissed the appeal. Upon revision the Board of Revenue held that the land was not resumable and the case was remanded to the Court of first instance for trial of the other issues. The Asst. Collector held that S. 158 applied, that deft. was a proprietor and proceeded to fix the revenue. Held, that prima facie an appeal lay to the Commissioner. A question of proprietary title was not in issue in the appeal merely because the defts. claimed by a ground of appeal the benefit of S. 158 of the Tenancy Act and the decision of the Board of Revenue in revision was not null and void. The Asst. Collector was, therefore, right in determining the matter upon remand. (Richards, C. J. and Banerji, J.) KAREHRU v. MATHURA PRASAD. 41 All. 318=49 I. C. 747=17 A. L. J. 195.

———Ss. 154 (b), (c), 158 and 177 (c)—Resumption — Proprietary title—Appeal to Dt. Judge—Question of law.

In a suit for resumption of land held rent-free, filed in the Court of an Assistant Collector deft. pleaded that it had been held rent-free for a period of 100 years and that he was the proprietor of the land. Held, that under S. 177 (c) an appeal lay to the District Judge from the decision of the Assistant Collector. Notwithstanding the misapprehension by the District Judge of a certain entry in the Wajib-ul-arz and the omission to discuss the evidence upon which the finding was based, the High Court, in the absence of a certificate that the finding rested upon no evidence treated the decision of the lower Appellate Court as a finding of fact. A portion of certain land held as rent-free grant was converted into a grove which was cut down and the land brought under cultivation. The entire area having been rent free the mere fact that a portion was converted into a grove did not alter its character as a rent free grant and under S. 158, it is not liable to resumption. S. 159 contemplates a suit by a lambardar for arrears of revenue payable to the Government through the lambardar by a co-sharer whether such revenue has actually been paid or not. The limitation for such a suit is three years from the date when the revenue became payable. S. 160 contemplates a case where arrears of revenue have actually been paid by one co-sharer for another, whether the co-sharer paying the revenue be a lambardar or not. The limitation under this section runs from the date of actual payment. (Banerji, J.) RAM SINGH v. LALTA PRASAD.

An 8 annas sharer who was also a lambardar mortgaged his 3 annas share. The mortgagee gave him a lease for 7 years. After that period the lambardar continued making collections. ———S. 164—Suit against Lambardar for profits —Onus when shifted.

When a co-sharer has given general evidence to show that the rents are greatly in arrears that the tenants are solvent and that there are no special circumstances why the rents should not have been collected, the onus is shifted on the Lambardar to show that for some reason not connected with his own negligence or misconduct, he was unable to collect the rent. Collection charges should be awarded to the Lambardar, even though he does the work of collection himself. 13 A.L. J. 851, Foll. (Sulaiman, J.) MUSAMMAT HIRIA v. RAM ADHN SINGH. 75 I. ———S. 164—Co-sharer—Lambardar — Collections—Suit and decree for a portion of the rental—Decree for share of rent—Interest.

The amount of the actual collections shows that the lambardar realised 76 per cent. With regard to the rest he brought suits and obtained decrees against defaulting tenants. Held, the fact that some of the decrees cannot be realized is no fault of the lambardar nor can it be said to constitute negligence. No negligence of the lambardar in the Collection of rents has been proved and that the decree in favour of co-sharer for profits should proceed on the basis of actual collections, with 12 per cent. interest which is the proper rate of interest in the case up to realization. (Rafiq and Lindsay, JJ.) RAMCHANDRA SARUP v. KIRPA DEVI. 65 I. C. 648=4 U. P. L. R. (A.) 33= 1923 A. 216.

———Ss. 164 and 165—Suit by co-sharer for share of profits—Decree on actual collections—Previous arrears.

In cases under S. 164 of the Agra Tenancy Act, it is the duty of a Lambardar to make collections both of the rents due for the year as well as for the arrears of rent, on behalf of the whole body of co-sharers. A co-sharer may either be given a decree on the basis of the gross rental or on the basis of actual collections, and if a decree is based on actual collections such collections include arrears of the previous years also. But this principle would not apply to a suit under S. 165 of the Act where it cannot be said that it was the duty of the defendants to make collections of the plff.'s share also. The defendants can be held liable only if they have collected rents in excess of their own legitimate shares. (Sulaiman, J.) LALA DURGA PRASAD v. GANGA SARAN.

———S. 164—Suit for profits from lambardar lies in Revenue Court.

A suit by a recorded co-sharer for arrears of profits from the lambardar is maintainable only in a Revenue Court. The deft. is entitled to plead and prove if he can, that he owes nothing or is only partly liable. ———S. 164—Suit against lambardar for profits —Decree—Actual collections—Negligence.

A co-sharer suing for his share of the profits under S. 164 of the Agra Tenancy Act can only get a decree for his share of the actual collections unless the case comes within S. 164 (2) of the Agra Tenancy Act so as to entitle him to a decree on gross rentals. Negligence on the part of the lambardar cannot be inferred from the mere fact that the rents for a particular year remained unpaid. 43 A. 29 Foll. (Ryves and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) JODHI RAM v. MT. In a suit by a co-sharer for his share of the profits of a mahal the Court is not entitled to take into consideration an amendment of the khewat subsequent to the suit by the Revenue Court directing the removal of the plaintiff's name therefrom. ———S. 164—Profits—Co-sharer in possession of excess sir and khudkhast—Liability to account.

If different co-sharers are entitled to different portions of the mahal as their sir and khudkhast each co-sharer will be entitled to the profits of his own sir and khudkhast and he would not be obliged to account for those profits to other co-sharers. On the other hand, if any co-sharer had in his hand and in his own cultivation an excess of land, over and above his proper share of sir and khudkhast he should account for the excess. In this case the quality of the land in excess will have to be taken into consideration. If some of the co-sharers neglect to cultivate their sir and khudkhast they cannot call up on the others to account for the profits of sir and khudkhast of those co-sharers unless such sir and khudkhast were in excess of their own. Where a Revenue Court has exclusive jurisdiction to try a certain question and decides it as between the parties the decision is binding on the parties and a suit in a Civil Court cannot be maintained. Where a Revenue Court in a suit for ejectment decided that A was B's sub-tenant and accordingly decreed A's ejectment, a subsequent suit in the Civil Court by A for a declaration that he was a co-tenant of B is not maintainable in view of S. 167 of the Agra Tenancy Act. ———Ss. 167, 180 and 185—Suit for arrears of rent—Tenant at fixed rates.

Maharajah of Benares sued the deft. for arrears of rent describing him as a fixed rate tenant under S. 120 of the Act in the Court of an Assistant Collector of the second class. The deft. was entered as a fixed rate tenant in the revenue registers at the last revision of Settlement of Benares District. The deft. denied the relation of landlord and tenant between the Maharajah and himself and disputed the amount of rent claimed. The Judge in second appeal held that the plot in suit did not fall within the word 'land' in the Tenancy Act and that upon the plaint as framed no suit lies in the Civil Court. On an application for revision, held per Walsh, J. The decision of the Dt. Judge given by way of an appeal from a Revenue Court is a decision of a Civil Court and it is therefore subject to revision. Per Piggott, J.—That no revision lies under S. 115 of the C. P. Code as the Dt. Judge had not refused to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law or acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction; that having regard to S. 167 of the Act the High Court could not entertain the revision. Certain persons held some plots of land as Muafi before 1838. In 1838 the Muafi was resumed. In 1861 upon application by some holders of these plots the Settlement Officer decided that they were hereditary tenants at privileged rates of rent. In 1888 again they were entered as occupancy tenants with rights of transfer. In 1892 the Board of Revenue also held them to be privileged tenants. In a suit in the Civil Court by some of the descendants of one of the original holders to recover possession as proprietors of a plot of land forming part of his Muafi. Held, that the plffs. were tenants and the suit was not maintainable. A decree for sale on foot of property was passed in favour of the deft. Later on the plff. brought this suit for ejectment of defts. on the ground that they were trespassers. The defts. set up their tenancy under a perpetual lease in defence and were required by the Civil Court to get a declaration from the Revenue Court. When the matter came before the Revenue Court, plffs. admitted the tenancy and the Revenue Court dismissed the suit. The plff. amended the plaint by asking for a declaration that the perpetual lease was not binding on him. Held, that the matter set up in defence was a matter in respect of which a suit might have been brought in the Revenue Court within the meaning of S. 167 of the Act and the Civil Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the present suit. ——S. 196—Jurisdiction—Objection to, must be raised in the first Court.

Where an objection to jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not raised in the first Court it cannot be raised on appeal or second appeal by reason of S. 196 of the Agra Tenancy Act. But the fact that if the question of jurisdiction is not raised in the first Court the Appellate Court is to decide the suit as if it had been brought in the right court does not in any way warrant the conclusion that the limitation to be applied to that suit is not the one which would have applied if the suit had been brought in the right court but that some other rule of limitation is to be applied. (Gokul Prasad, J.) BHIKHARI SINGH v. JOKHAN. 66 I. ——Ss. 196 and 197—Invalid lease—Ejectment—Suit on the ground of, does not lie in Civil Court.

A Civil Court cannot try a suit for ejectment on the plea that the person who gave the lease has no right to do so. The appellant cannot take the support of Secs. 196 and 197 of the Act in the above case for ejecting the tenant. This can alone be done by the Revenue Court exclusively. (Stuart, J.) LALA SUNDAR LAL v. KIFAYAT HASAN KHAN. L. R. 3 A. 134.

——Ss. 196 and 197—Applicability—Suit by co-sharer for profits—Jurisdiction—Appeal.

In case of a suit by a co-sharer for profits for the period during which he was kept out of possession by other co-sharers, provisions of Secs. 196 and 197 apply and so, if a suit is dismissed by a Civil Court for want of jurisdiction and appeal is preferred to the District Judge, he must deal with the case in accordance with the provisions of those sections. (Rafique and Piggott, JJ.) SAID-UN-NISSA v. FIDA HUSSAIN. 61 I. An agricultural tenancy can be determined only by ejectment suit by the lessor against the lessee or tenant under the Tenancy Act. A mere denial of title by the lessee does not put an end to the tenancy. The lessor cannot treat the lessee as a trespasser and the Civil Courts cannot entertain a suit in ejectment. S. 196 of the Tenancy Act applies to suits in which an appeal lies to the Dt. AGRA TENANCY ACT (II of 1910), S. 201.

Where there has been an alteration in the Revenue record prior to the institution of the suit, but made during the period for which profits are claimed, the duty of the court trying a suit for profits must be to consider the order by which the alteration was made and give effect to the intention of the said order. If, for instance, a plff. was the recorded proprietor of an 8 annas share of a mahal during the first year in respect of which profits were claimed and it were shown that after the close of that year he had been recorded as proprietor of a 4 annas share only, upon a finding that he had transferred his interest in the remaining 4 annas share after the close of the first year in suit, then the duty of the Court should be to give effect to the entries year by year calculating the profits for each year on the basis of the record as it stood in respect of the said year in the revenue papers. When however it is clear upon an examination of the order passed by the Revenue Court, that the alteration made in respect of the extent of the plaintiff's share was intended to be a correction of a previous erroneous entry, and it was not passed upon any alleged transfer having occurred during the years covered by the suit then the Revenue Court is bound to give effect to the entries as it stood on the date of the institution of the suit. To see the share of profits to which a party is entitled a Revenue Court must consider the evidence of the record in the revenue papers as the last word. It has also jurisdiction to enter on the issue whether a certain sharer holds sir or khudkhast in excess of his share. If he does he has to return his excess share to one who holds less. ——S. 202—Lease by Lambardar—Suit for cancellation by co-sharer—Plea of valid lease.

The lambardar of a village granted a perpetual lease to the defendant of 20 bighas of land. The plaintiff, a co-sharer, brought a suit in the Civil Court for the cancellation of this lease on the ground that it was beyond the powers of the lambardar to execute. The defendant pleaded that the lease was a good and valid lease. His contention was that not only was it within the powers of the lambardar but that it was executed with the consent of all the co-sharers. Held that this was in substance a plea that the defendant was the tenant of the whole proprietary body including the plaintiff and that under these circumstances the Trial Court should have under S. 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act directed the defendant to file a suit in the Revenue Court within 3 months to establish the tenancy which he set up. ——S. 202—Suit in ejectment—Plea of tenancy—Power of Civil Court.

Where a suit for ejectment from a certain plot of agricultural land on the ground that the defendant is a trespasser is brought in the Civil Court and the defendant pleads a tenancy it is incumbent on the Civil Court to refer the plaintiff to a Revenue Court under S. 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act. Where a defendant holds under a lease which is void ab initio his possession is that of a trespasser and if the plff. has not acknowledged the deft. as tenant, a suit for ejecting the latter lies in the Civil Court. ———S. 202—Jurisdiction—Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit for ejectment—Trespasser—Civil Court—Plea of necessity.

A suit to eject an alleged trespasser is cognisable by a Civil Court and not by a Revenue Court. Deft. being sued in the Civil Court in ejectment as a trespasser raised the plea that he was a tenant of the plff. The Civil Court referred the deft. to the Revenue Court under S. 203 of the Tenancy Act, and a suit was instituted by the deft. under S. 95 of the Tenancy Act for a declaration of the nature of the tenancy. An objection on the score of jurisdiction was overruled by the Revenue Court. The Revenue Court having made a decree, an appeal was preferred to the Dt. Judge. Held, that no appeal lay to him, an objection on the score of jurisdiction under the circumstances being absolutely untenable. (*Richards, C. AGRA TENANCY ACT (II of 1910), S. 202.

———S. 202—Suit for occupancy holding—Suit for holding, a grove, in a Civil Court—Res-judicata.

The decision of a Revenue Court in respect of a holding could not operate as res judicata in a Civil suit against the same defendant in respect of his possession of a grove, as the latter is not an 'agricultural holding' to be triable by the Revenue Court. S. 202 does not apply. (Banerjee and Piggott, JJ.) MIZAJI LAL v. HARI LAL. 34 I. C. 162 (A.).

S. 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act is applicable only to agricultural holdings and not to groves. (Rafique, J.) NATHA MAL v. ROSHAN LALL. 30 I. C. 48 (A.).

———S. 202—Ejectment—Defence of existing tenancy—Appeal—Time allowed to file suit in Revenue Court—No suit filed—Effect.

In a suit to eject a tenant the Civil Court gave time to the deft. tenant to get a declaration of his alleged tenancy right in a Revenue Court under S. 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act. The deft. having failed to do so, the Civil Court thereupon decreed the suit. On appeal, the Judge held that the deft. was a tenant of the plffs. and dismissed the suit. Held, that the Judge was not competent to entertain the question. The deft. having pleaded that the land in question was his agricultural tenancy could not plead on appeal that it is not his tenancy. (Piggott, J.) NARAIN SARUP v. NANDA. 28 I. C. 568 = 13 A. L. ———S. 202—Ejectment—Dismissal by Revenue Court.

Where a suit in ejectment was dismissed by the Revenue Court on the ground that the deft. was an occupancy tenant and the plff. thereupon instituted a suit for possession in a Civil Court on the ground that the decision of the Revenue Court was obtained by fraud. Held, that it was unnecessary for the Civil Court to refer the matter again to the Revenue Court. The deft. in a civil suit for possession having raised the plea that he was a tenant, the suit was tried by a Revenue Court and the latter came to the conclusion that the deft. was not a tenant. Held, that the deft. could not again plead in a Civil Court that the Revenue Court was wrong in its decision. 33 All. 15 dist. ———"Gradual, slow and imperceptible—Principles how for applicable in India.

The principle of English law is that an accretion must be formed by gradual, slow and imperceptible degrees. The words "slow" and "imperceptible" are only qualifications of the word "gradual" and the test laid down is relative to the conditions to which it is applied. ———Suit by Government—Lands appertaining to defendant's estate—Want of title of Government—Cause of Action—Appellate stage—Declaratory decree—Act XXXI of 1858—Act IX of 1847.

The Government sued to recover certain alluvial lands on the allegation that it was their property and was dispossessed by the defendants. It was proved that the deft. and not the Government had right to the lands as proprietor. The lands accreted in the deft's. estate, and the right of the Government to assess revenue upon them was declared long ago. The lands were converted into separate estates and temporary settlement in respect of them were made by the Government with the defts. Held, that as the Government could not claim these lands as proprietor and therefore the suit of the Govt. must fail both by reason of defect of title and from the absence of all causes of action, that the Court ought not in the appellate stage of the case, to change the entire form of the suit and to make a declaratory decree in favour of the Govt. so as to enable it to take hereafter the necessary steps for assessment and settlement if the Court should be of opinion that the lands appertained to the Govt.'s Estate.

In a suit for declaration of occupancy rights it was alleged on behalf of the landlord (deft.), plff. had lost his right on account of submersion, according to custom of the district and then the suit was barred as mutation has taken place in favour of deft. From the wajib-ul-arz it was clear that the action of the river began in 1879 but the occupancy right dated from a prior date. Held, that the deft. had failed to establish a custom by which diluviated occupancy land on submersion becomes the property of the landlord. The alleged custom being propounded for the first time in 1879 was not ancient and could not have the force of law. The custom was prima facie inequitable as rights granted long before river action, could not be subject to rules obtaining in neighbouring villages and the suit was not barred by the reason of the mutation as the land though submerged was in the possession of the plaintiff until the defendant took possession of it on its re-appearance which took place a short time before the suit. ———Law in India—English law—Applicability of.

In adopting the law as to alluvion in India, the Courts should be guided by local and physical conditions. The principles of Bengal Regulation (XI of 182?) affords the best guide in applying the law of accretion to the case of large Indian views. Under that regulation, all that is necessary is that the accretion should be by gradual alluvial process and it need not be imperceptible nor slow. The fact that the original boundary is known or is ascertainable does not render the law of accretion inapplicable. There is no reason for giving the mud and sand deposited in large quantities in the bed of a river, which belongs to the Crown in trust for the public, to the adjoining owner simply because the deposit is also adherent to the adjoining land so long as such deposits are distinguishable from the adjoining land. The principle of identity is applicable only to derelict lands exposed by the sudden recession of the sea or change of river's course. Under Common Law, land formed by gradual imperceptible degrees is accretion. (Ayling and Srinivasa Aiyangar, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. RAJAH OF VIZIANAGARAM.

ANCIENT MONUMENTS PRESERVATION ACT (VII of 1914).

S. 21 of the Ancient Monuments Preservation Act, 1914, applies to the purchase of moveable antiquities or relics and the compensation which may have to be paid for incidental damages caused by the removal or protection of such objects of historic interest or art value. In ascertaining the market value of such moveable antiquities and the amount of compensation to be paid to adjacent owners for acts done under the Act, such acts being clearly indicated and by implication defined in S. 20, only the provisions of Land Acquisition Act enumerated in S. 20 are to guide the Court. ANIMALS.

———Property in—Wild animals.

An animal ferœ naturæ may become the property of a person if there is a complete capture reducing the animal completely into possession. Mere pursuit will not do and so long as it is possible for it to escape it does not become any one's private property. Where a dog overtakes the animal and pulls it down that is not enough to reduce it to possession as it can escape even then. (Piggott, J. C. and Lindsay, A. J. C.) RAGHUNANDAN v. EMPEROR. 15 I. C. 972 = 13 Cr. L. J. 556 = 15 O. C. 183.

———Ownership of—Test of.

Nobody has any absolute property in animals which are ferœ naturæ. At best they are only capable of being the subject-matter of qualified ownership or proprietary right. A wild animal is the property of the person in whose forest it happens to be for the time being. So long as it is in the forest or on the land of such person he is entitled to take it and to kill it but when it chooses to quit his land and go into the land of another, then he ceases to have any property in it and such wild animal becomes the property of that other person upon whose land it chooses to make its temporary abode. ———Competency—Offer by a party to be bound by the decision of the trial court—Offer not accepted by the opposite party.

Even though the defendants in a suit offered to be bound by the decision of the trial court arrived at on inspection of the locality, their right of appeal is not affected when there is nothing to show that the plaintiff agreed to it. In such a case they are not estopped from questioning the correctness of the trial court. The case is different where there is an agreement of the parties agreeing to be bound by the decision of the trial court. 43 All. 266 referred to. ———Competency of—Decree passed without urisdiction.

Per Mookerjee, J.—A decree made without jurisdiction possesses nonetheless the qualities of a decree as between the parties thereto, and if there is a statutory appeal from decrees made in suits of that character the decree does not become unassailable because it has been made without jurisdiction; and where jurisdiction is usurped by a Court in passing an order against which an appeal would lie if it had been passed with jurisdiction, an appeal against the order cannot be defeated on the ground that the order was made without jurisdiction. ———Competency of—Appeal against an order fully carried out—No stay asked for—Appeal infructuous.

An appeal against an order becomes infructuous if the order has already been fully carried out by the party in whose favour it was made, unless, before the filing of the appeal the objector-appellant has obtained a timely order for stay. ———Competency—Agreement by parties to be bound by the decisions of a Court on local inspection does not exclude right of appeal.

Where the parties to a suit agreed to the matter being decided by the Court according to the opinion which it may entertain upon a local inspection without going into any further evidence in the suit such an agreement does not preclude any party from appealing against any decree that the Court may pass after such local inspection, excepting on the points of fact decided by the Court on its local inspection.

It is only in cases where an agreement between the parties results in the Court assuming jurisdiction which otherwise it would not have or involves the Court in going so far outside its ordinary course of procedure that it is impossible for the Appellate Court properly to review its decision, that parties are not entitled to appeal against the decision of that Court.

The right of appeal is a very important right and the Court will not imply a term to give up that right unless it is driven to that conclusion.

The right of appeal will not be taken away when the parties agreed to mere deviations from the ordinary procedure of Courts. L. R. 5 P. C. 516; (1896) A.C. 133 followed. 26 Mad. 76; 37 M.L. APPEAL—Competency.

The defendants appealed against a decree for joint possession in favour of five plaintiffs to High Court but only four plaintiffs had been made respondents, Held, the appeal could not be heard because the decree was one for joint possession so that even if the appeal were successful it would be infructuous because the plaintiff who was not made a respondent would still be able to execute the decree. The Indian law as to arbitration is irrelevant where the parties agreed in referring to an arbitration to be bound by English law and procedure and under that law an objection to the award on the ground of irregularity cannot be pleaded in answer to an action on the award. ———Agreement to refer—Subsequent suit on contract is not maintainable.

Plffs. brought a suit to recover a certain sum of money alleged to be due in respect of a contract which was entered into on 12-9-1918 for the delivery by 18-11-1918 of a bale of dhoties at a certain rate. The date fixed for payment was 27-11-1918. The goods were delivered to the defendant on the date in question but the price therefor was not paid on the due date. After this latter date, inasmuch as there had been much speculation in this class of goods, a committee of the cloth merchants of Jhansi assembled and brought out a plan by which claims for breach of contract of delivery of those goods or for failure to pay the price due in respect of these goods were to be settled. The plaintiffs and the defendant submitted to what might be called the award of the arbitrators and agreed that the claim which the plaintiffs had against the defendant should be settled on this basis. The plaintiffs subsequently sued on the basis of the old contract for damages. Held that the suit was ———Abortive award if prevents fresh reference—Court's power to decide if there was a valid contract.

According to a contract between the parties all disputes were to be referred to arbitration, one arbitrator to be appointed by each party within a certain time. Disputes having arisen the vendors appointed an arbitrator and gave notice to the vendees to do the same. The latter refused and an award was made, which however was set aside by Court, as it was completed within the period of time allowed to the other side to nominate an arbitrator. The vendors again referred the matter to a fresh arbitration and on an application being made to enforce it, the other party objected that the prior reference having proved ineffective, the arbitration clause had spent itself. Held, the fact that the prior proceedings had proved ineffectual, did not stand in the way of a proper arbitration proceeding. In distributing the assets of a joint family business, an arbitrator recorded a finding that those assets were subject to a liability in favour of a third person, apparently with the full consent of the parties and that portion of the award was separable from the rest. Held, that the award is not open to any valid objection on the ground of the arbitrators having determined a matter not covered by the agreement of reference. An award is not invalid within the meaning of paragraph 15 (l) (C) of Schedule II of the Civil Procedure Code because it contains a palpable arithmetical mistake. ———Award as to division of testator's property is not invalid by reason of the pendency of probate proceedings.

Disputes as regards the division of a testator's property were referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court when proceedings for obtaining a probate of the will were pending. The arbitrators made an award giving each of the parties certain portions of the estate and on that award being filed in court a decree was passed thereon. On a question arising as to the validity of the award. Held that the arbitrators did not in any way oust the juriisdiction of the Court in which the probate proceedings were pending and that the award and decree thereon were perfectly valid. There was nothing whatever to prevent the parties going to arbitration with regard to the division of the estate, leaving the Court to decide whether or not probate should be granted of the will. That was a question entirely outside the functions of the arbitrators, while the actual questions regarding the division of properties in dispute between the parties could be properly referred to them. The test would be to consider what would have happened if the parties had waited until porbate had been issued to refer to arbitration the question how the properties of the deceased should be divided. It could not possibly be said then that the submission to arbitration would be illegal. The mere fact that it was entered upon before the probate proceedings had come to an end cannot possibly affect the question of its legality. (Macleod, C. J. and Crump, J.) SHANKAR RAMCHANDRA v. RAMCHANDRA ANNAJI.

———Award—Validity of—Ex-parte procedure of arbitrators—Prejudice—Interest on amount found due.

Arbitrators should give notice of their intention to proceed ex-parte if one of the parties should not appear. Where the arbitrators are alleged to have proceeded ex-parte without giving special notice of their intention to do so and the award is attacked on that ground the true test is, has the complainant who has taken exception to the validity of the award been in fact, prejudiced by the omission of the arbitrators to serve the special notice on him? If it is established that notwithstanding such warning, he would not have appeared before the arbitrators, he has really no grievance and cannot invite the Court to set aside the award on the ground of the alleged defect in procedure. Arbitrators do not exceed their authority when they allow interest after the date of the award. The arbitrators have authority to make a decree for such damages as might have been ascertained by the Court. (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) BHOWANIDAS RAMGOBIND v. HARSUK DAS BALKISHEN DAS.

———Award is valid until set aside.

As between the parties and their privies an award is entitled to that respect which is due to the decision of a Court of last resort. The award is in fact a final adjudication by the Court of the party's own choice, and until impeached upon sufficient grounds in an appropriate proceeding, an award which is, on the face of it regular is binding. ———Award—Contract— Arbirtation clause—Reference lo arbitration before commencement of suit —Effect.

Where an action has been commenced upon a contract which contains a provision for reference to arbitration then even if a reference to arbitration has taken place before the suit is instituted and if no application is made to stay the suit pending the arbitration, the award is of no effect. The law will not enforce the specific performance of an agreement to refer to arbitration but if duly appealed to, it has the power, in its discretion, to refuse to a party the alternative of having the dispute settled by a Court of law and thus to leave him in the position of having no other remedy than to proceed by arbitration. If the Court has refused to stay an action or if the defendant do so not ask it to do so, the Court has seisin of the dispute and it is by its decision alone, that the rights of the parties are settled. It follows that in the latter case, the private tribunal, if it has ever come into existence, is functus officio unless the parties agree de novo that the dispute shall be tried by arbitration, and that the action itself shall be referred. There cannot be two tribunals each with jurisdiction to insist on deciding the rights of the parties and to compel them to accept its decision. This is clearly involved in the proposition that the Courts will not allow their jurisdiction to be ousted. (Mookerjee and Fletcher, JJ.) RAM PRASAD SURAJMULL v. MOHAN LAL LUCHMINARAIN.

———Award—When to be remitted—Arbitrator, powers of.

An arbitrator has a wide discretion in the conduct of the proceedings. His award will not be set aside merely because his opinion differs from that of the Court. But where there are irregularities which affect the decision, it will be remitted to him for a fresh decision. In arbitration proceedings, both sides have to be heard in the presence of the other. An arbitrator should not examine a party or his witness in the absence of the other and failure so to do, is an irregularity which necessitates the remitting back of the proceedings to him for fresh consideration. ———Reference implies dispute.

The existence of a "dispute" is essential to the validity of a reference to arbitration under the terms of a contract. A dispute involved the assertion of a right by one party and its denial by the other. ———Judge as arbitrator—Decision final—No appeal.

A decision of a Judge as an arbitrator with the consent of the parties is binding on the parties as if it were an award of an arbitrator, even though the Judge, as such, had no jurisdiction over the matter in controversy. But this doctrine cannot apply where the Judge was chosen as arbitrator not voluntarily but under great judicial pressure. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) SUBHADRA KOER v. DHAJADHARI GOSSAIN.

———Reference as per clause in contract—Parties are bound by award.

The contract in question was in writing and contained a clause providing that any claim or dispute of any sort whatever in connection therewith, unless an amicable settlement could be arrived at, must be referred to arbitration.

ARBITRATION.

Upon a claim being made for non-delivery of a portion of the goods contracted for, the defendants referred the matter to arbitration under provisions of this clause. The plaintiffs, however, refused to attend the arbitration, and alleged as their reason for such refusal that arbitrators are invariably a prejudiced tribunal and that such proceedings are always subject to much delay. The arbitration, thereupon, proceeded in the absence of the plaintiffs and ultimately an award was made dismissing the claim. In a suit by the plaintiffs for damages. Held that in the events which have happened the arbitration clause in question was clearly applicable. The parties had, by agreement, selected their own tribunal and must be bound by its decision unless it can be impeached upon any of the well-known grounds upon which such a decision can be challenged. The arbitrator decreed the claim in favour of the plaintiff in his capacity as a trustee of the temple. The plaintiff objected on the ground that the arbitrator had travelled beyond the terms of the reference. The Munsiff overruled the objection. Held, as the Munsiff had jurisdiction to decide the objections, the High Court has no power to interfere, even if the Munsiff has come to a wrong conclusion on a question of law or fact if he cannot be said to have acted illegally or with material irregularity. ———Award—Legality of—Ministerial act—Notice to parties—Necessity for—Statement of arbitrators as to what transpires before them—Conclusiveness of.

In case the parties are at variance on the question as to what took place before the arbitrators, the proper course is to take the statement of the arbitrators as to the facts as prima facie representing the true state of affairs as to what took place at the time of the enquiry unless there is very strong reason for doubting the accuracy of the statement of the arbitrators as regards the facts which took place before them and within their competence. Where an act judicial in its character is to be performed, the arbitrators are bound by the same rules as bind the courts. The arbitrators are not entitled to decide or to give their award in the absence of one or more parties to the arbitration and without notice to them. But when an act done is not of a judicial nature but merely ministerial in character it is competent to one of the arbitrators or all the arbitrators to have the act performed in the absence of one or more parties. On an application to set aside an award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrators the facts found were that both the parties did not turn up together, the petitioner turned up and the arbitrators asked him to state his case and file his documents and he gave a written statement stating what his case was and filed such documents as he had in his possession. While he was doing this the counter-petitioner turned up and the arbitrators sent for him, asked the petitioner to remain outside, and took from the counter-petitioner a written statement setting out his case and received his exhibits,

ARBITRATION.

Then the arbitrators having gone through these statements and exhibits called in both the parties and began the enquiry. Held, that the acts performed by the arbitrators before the enquiry were ministerial in character and that the absence of one of the parties at the time did not nullify the award of the arbitrators. An award passed on reference by a guardian, when the arbitrator acted upon information received in the absence of parties or on his own knowledge of facts, is vitiated by legal misconduct and would therefore be invalid. But parties who are sui juris may agree to a reference that the arbitrator shall decide the dispute on his own knowledge or that there is no need for him to take any evidence; and they will be bound by such a reference and no legal misconduct can be imputed to the arbitrator, if he based his award on such materials. 42 A. 185 followed. 2 Pat. 554=73 I. C. 542=1924 P. 49.

———Award—Validity of—Parties to reference—Subject-matter—Parties interested in—Award—Partly valid—Enforcement of.

Where there were a number of matters in difference between the plaintiffs and the various defendants to the suit, it can hardly be suggested that the submission to arbitration is bad on the ground that it does not refer to arbitration all the matters that may be in dispute between the parties. Sch. II, para 1, C. P. Code, in terms provides that where all the parties interested agree that any matter in difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, they may apply to the Court for a reference, and sub-cl. (2) provides that the application shall state the matter sought to be referred. It may well be that some of the parties are interested in certain of the matters in dispute only, whilst others are interested in other matters and there is no reason why all the parties interested in one or other of the matters in difference between them, should not agree to refer their disputes, if there are other matters still to be determined in the suit. Where the arbitrators, however, made an award not only in respect to the matters properly referred but in respect to the matters in dispute between the plaintiffs and the two minors which were not validly referred at all, it cannot be said then that the whole award is bad merely because the arbitrators have dealt with matters outside the terms of the reference; the award is valid in so far as the reference was legal and binding. The rules in the schedule clearly contemplate a case where the arbitrators in making their award have gone outside the legitimate subject-matter of the reference. If that part of the award which deals with matters outside the reference can be separated from the other part, without affecting the decision on the matters referred, the Court may in such a case modify or correct the award. ARBITRATION ACT (IX of 1899).

———Award attacked—Duty of umpire not to refuse hearing.

An Umpire has to make his award within a month of his appointment and where he does not extend the time or make his award within such time, his award is worthless. Where questions of fact under the Arbitration Act as to the conduct of arbitrators or the Umpire, the procedure adopted and the instructions and so forth are raised, the Court should have evidence properly brought before it, as in the trial of a suit which was deliberately withdrawn or abandoned by the parties raising the objection to enable the appellate Court to consider whether there really has been any grievance in the matters disposed of by it. Such questions of fact are determined upon hearing the evidence. Where a party wishes to show that the Umpire had gone contrary to the established principles of justice and refused him hearing, the onus is upon him to call evidence, to establish the fact in answer to the application to file the Umpire's award. The party who makes an objection must prove that he objected at the time to the Umpire's proceedings in making final award without hearing his witnesses. Where such a party had the opportunity of doing so and no reasonable opportunity was refused to him of doing so, his conduct amounts to acquiescence in the procedure adopted and he cannot, in law, be allowed to question the regularity, if there was any. Decision upon merits, that is to say, from the interests on the record, as to controversy arising out of a claim for damages between the parties as a matter entirely between the arbitrators and the Umpire. All Courts, even Arbitration Courts, must act according to the principles of natural justice and not deliberately refuse a hearing or take evidence from one side behind the back of the other. Prima facie the duties of an Umpire are the same as those of the arbitrators. The Umpire must hear the evidence of the parties and their witnesses, if application is made to him to do so by either party notwithstanding that the same evidence had already been adduced before the arbitrators. The Umpire is not justified in the face of an objection by either party in taking any part of the evidence from the notes of the arbitrators unless there are specific provisions in the submission permitting him to do so. A submission is a written agreement signed by both parties to submit differences to arbitration and this agreement may be collected from a series of documents even though connected by parol evidence. Where on the indent from it was shown that disputes arising between the vendor and the vendee would be referred to arbitrators one appointed by each party. Held, the submission was binding on them. Where the purchaser refused to make the appointment of an arbitrator, denying there was a submission whereupon the sole arbitrator appointed by the seller passed an award before the period of 20 days had elapsed. Held, that the failure to give requisite number of days for the appointment was fatal to the award of the sole arbitrator who had no jurisdiction to pass it. The refusal and failure to appoint an arbitrator did not amount to the waiver of his right by the purchase as the period of 20 days had not elapsed and the awards made by the sole arbitrator was bad in law. When a Court is asked to file an award, it has to see whether it is enforceable in the same way as a decree would be enforceable if it were a decree. ———S. 5—Arbitrators—Inquiry about signature of party to submission—Names of partners of a party partnership—Jurisdiction—Legality of order refusing to set aside award based on evidence in Court—Misjoinder.

An arbitrator has jurisdiction to inquire and decide whether a party to the submission has signed it or whether the signature is that of a partnership and if so, who the individual partners are. An order refusing to set aside an award based purely on evidence recorded by court itself is not bad in law. Misjoinder of parties and causes of action in arbitration proceedings does not, like a regular trial, involve a question of jurisdiction; but any objection taken to such misjoinder ignored by the arbitrator, may be urged before the Court charging the arbitrators with misconduct and the decision of the Court on such objection is not open to revision. ———Ss. 7 and 11 to 15—Scope—Arbitrator when becomes functus officio—Indian and English Law.

There is no express provision in the English law as to what is to happen to an award, when it is made, with the single exception of the section which enables the party to enforce it as though it were a judgment. The reason for that is, that the machinery is so familiar and habitual that no provision on the subject is necessary. Either party, on receiving notice from the arbitrator that the award has been made, can take it up from him. Once the arbitrator has parted with it, he is functus officio and he cannot exercise the power given to him by S. 7 of Act IX of 1899; nonetheless the Court is able to remit to him if satisfied that an honest mistake has been made. There are express provisions to be found in S. 11 of the Act as to what is to be done by an arbitrator, if he has made his award. When the question, when an arbitrator in India becomes functus officio comes to be decided, the line will have to be drawn somewhere in the procedure which is laid down in S. 11 for getting the award into Court. It is difficult to hold that an arbitrator is functus officio while there are still express statutory duties laid upon him by the Act. The procedure laid down by the Act seems to be that the various stages to be found in Ss. 11 to 15 are to be followed in the same chronological order as the numerical order of the sections and that an application to set aside is not as a rule within the jurisdiction of the Court, until some application or attempt has been made to file the award or some other similar step is taken to enforce it. ———Ss. 8, 9 and 19—Scope of—Refusal by arbitrators—Court's power to appoint.

ARBITRATION ACT (IX of 1899), S. 10.

The Court has no power to appoint new arbitrators in place of those who declined to proceed further in a case submitted to them, when the number of arbitrators is more than two. The Arbitration Act is an amending Act and must be construed strictly because it confers special powers of interference not otherwise inherent in Court. S. 8 (1) (b) does not apply to the case of independent appointments of two arbitrators. Any vacancy is to be filled up by original appointer as mentioned in S. 9. (*Scott, C. ———S. 10—Remission of award—Error of law is no ground for.

ARBITRATION ACT (IX of 1899), S. 10.

It is necessary that Courts should be very cautious in interfering with awards and the grounds on which the Court will remit the matter for reconsideration are:—(1) that the award is bad on the face of it, (2) that there has been misconduct on the part of the arbitrator, (3) that there has been an admitted mistake and the arbitrator asks that the matter may be remitted to him, (4) where additional evidence has been discovered after the making of the award. Mere errors in law unless distinctly appearing on the face of the award or from any document accompanying or forming part of the award are not sufficient ground for remitting an award. (1893) 1 Q. An award becomes enforceable as soon as it is filed in Court and it is not necessary before it is enforced to show that notice of filing was given to the parties by the arbitrator. Where the arbitrators take a reasonable fee for their services before entering upon their duties with a view to avoid the necessity of suing the parties in Court, their conduct in so doing, does not amount to misconduct and does vitiate the award. There is nothing in S. 11 of the Arbitration Act which precludes the arbitrators from either fixing the fee or receiving the fee beforehand. ———S. 13—Remitting an award of grounds.

Ordinarily an appellate court will not interfere with the discretion of the first Court in declining to remit an award, but the discretion being a judicial one, the appellate court will interfere where no grounds have been shown why the award should be not be remitted to the arbitrators. No appeal lies against an order under the Arbitration Act as the orders are neither decrees nor appealable orders under Ss. 104 and 106 of the C. P. C. There can only be a revision under S. 115 of the C. P. C. A proceeding under the Arbitration Act is not a suit and does not end in a decree. The Act does not provide for the Court making an order filing or refusing to file an award. The award is filed by the arbitrators, under S. 11 and unless it is remitted to them under S. 13 (1) or set aside under S. 14, it becomes enforceable as if it were a decree of Court". The order of a Court in whatever terms it may be expressed under the Act is one setting aside or refusing to set aside an award. (*Pratt, J., C. and Hayward, A. J. ——S. 19—Submission to three arbitrators—Submission to which the Act applies—Stay of suit—Jurisdiction of Court.

Under S. 19 the Court can stay a suit where there is an agreement between the parties to refer a matter to three arbitrators, as a submission providing for a reference to three arbitrators is not outside the scope of the Act. The words "a submission to which this Act" in S. 19 provided for the case where a suit is filed in an up-country Court in an area to which the Act has not been applied though part of the cause of action has arisen in a Presidency Town. That Court has power to stay the suit, if the suit could with leave or otherwise have been filed in a Presidency Town. 31 Bom. 236, diss. (Pratt, J.) BABALDAS KHEMCHAND, in re. 22 Bom. L. R. 842=

A contract to refer a dispute to arbitration is no bar to a suit in respect of the dispute; but the opponent may apply to the Court to stay the suit in the exercise of its discretion so as to leave the plaintiff no other remedy than to proceed to arbitration and the burden of showing that sufficient reason exists why the matter should not be referred to arbitrations is upon the person opposing the application. ———S. 19—Suit not arising out of contract—Application for stay does not lie.

Per Kincaid, J. C.—Where the misrepresentation or fraud alleged was something quite distinct from and previous to the contract. Held, that an application for the stay of suit does not lie. Plaintiff alleged that the defendants deliberately forged an interpolation in the acceptance memo after plaintiff had signed it. As that forgery could not have occurred before the completion of the contract but after, it is clearly a dispute which arises out of the contract itself. That a party misread the acceptance memo and believed it to be something different from what it was, would not vitiate the contract. Authority to decide disputes arising out of a contract necessarily confers authority to decide what were the terms of that contract. It would be impossible for any judge or arbitrator to determine whether any particular dispute arose out of a contract unless and until he knows what the contract is. (1916) A. C. 314; 24 Cal. W. N. 567, Foll. Per Madgavakar, A. J. C.:—An application by the defendant for the stay of the suit must, in law, be clearly distinguished from an application for a stay of the arbitration proceedings in which a different set of considerations would arise involving equitable grounds and permitting perhaps a prima facie view of the dispute. If the cause of action is definite misrepresentation to avoid the contract set up by the opposite party, such a dispute is not a dispute arising out of the contract within the submission clause in the contract and the court has no power to stay. ———S. 19—Clause for arbitration in contract—Suit to impeach is not barred.

Where a contract contains a clause for arbitration in case of disputes and a party thereto brought a suit to impeach the clause. Held, that as the object of the suit was to impeach the validity of the clause and not in respect of any matter agreed to be referred to arbitration. S. 19 of the Act does not apply. (Kemp, A. J. C.) ATMARAM v. GAJANMAL. 61 I. C. 141 = 14 S. L. R. 123.

———S. 19—Stay of proceedings—Wagering contract.

In a suit on a cross contract by a party, merely for the determination of the amount payable by one to the other, the deft. has no right to ask for the stay of the proceedings pending the reference to arbitration as S. 19 of the Act applies only to the contracts which on the face of them, have delivery of the goods as the true object. (Kemp and Raymond, A. J. Cs.) JELLIA LAL KALLIANJI v. PARASRAM KHEMAN DAS. 58 I. C. 799. (S.).

The repudiation of a claim to refer a case to the arbitration, embodying a contract, by a party, does not permit him to rely upon a subsidiary term in the contract and consequently does not allow him to demand arbitration. A suit is not barred by a reference to arbitration made before, but the award in which is delivered after the suit.

———S. 19—Stay of suit—Onus on party objecting.

In an application for stay of suit it is the duty of the Court to stay the suit and the plaintiff must show why he should not be bound by his agreement to refer. Arbitrators can decide questions of law and the occurrence of a difficult or complicated question of law is not a sufficient ground to take the matter out of the arbitrator's hands. 12 S. L. in the suit. The expression "after appearance" in S. 19 of the Arbitration Act is merely directory and the section is intended to prevent a party from filing an application after he has attorned to the jurisdiction of the Court. In an application for stay of a suit the onus is on the plff. to show why he should not be bound by his agreement to refer to arbitration. Under the Arbitration Act the arbitrators are competent to decide questions of law and fact and the fact that a difficult question of law is involved is not ordinarily a good ground for refusing stay. ———S. 19—Reference—Stay of suit—Probability of bias of umpire.

Per Pratt, J. C.—An arbitration tribunal in which the ultimate decision rests with the nominee of a class having a particular interest is not an impartial tribunal. When a Court finds that the agreement for reference to arbitration provides for the appointment of an umpire who will most certainly tilt the scales against one party, the Court should retain its jurisdiction to try the suit. An order for stay ought to be restricted by a time limit. Per Fawcett, A. J. C.—The Court should exercise its discretion refusing to stay a suit in a sparing and cautious manner and should not do so unless the applicant can establish that there is good ground for apprehending that there will be a failure of justice if the reference to arbitration is allowed to proceed. ———S. 19—'Step in the proceedings'—Meaning of.

Any application to the Court, even one for time is a "step in the proceedings" within S. 19 of the Act. Where one of the parties to a reference files a suit in respect of the same subject-matter the proceeding in the suit cannot be stayed under S. 19 of the Arbitration Act but under S. 151 of the C. P. Code if it be necessary for the ends of justice. The Court should either adjourn the trial of the suit until an award is complete or insist on the plff. obtaining leave of the Court to revoke the reference. So long as the authority delegated to an arbitrator is not revoked he has the power to make an award and there would be no impropriety of conduct on his part in proceeding with the reference after a suit is filed unless he has notice that there has been an application for leave to revoke the authority conferred on him to some competent Court. An arbitration clause in a contract does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court in case of its breach. If a suit is instituted ignoring the arbitration, the defendant can sue for damages for breach of the contract to refer or indirectly enforce it by applying for stay of proceedings. S. 2 (1), (e) does not aim at defining the word 'emigrate' but simply describes what emigration may mean, and is intended to avoid repetition, in the main provisions of the Act, of the various points of the departure from, and destination to which it desired to restrict emigration. To constitute emigration within the Act all that is necessary is (1) that departure should be from any part of the territories in which the Act for the time being is in force and the destination should be a labour district, (2) that the emigrant should be 16 years of age or upward, and (3) that the emigrant is to labour for hire in a labour district otherwise than as a domestic servant. Clause (3) does not mean that in order to constitute emigration within S. 164, the person recruited must be intending when he is recruited, to go to a labour district to work there for hire. 1 Pat. ASSAM LAND AND REVENUE REGULATION (I of 1886), S. 97.

Plffs. brought a suit for a declaration that the order for the partition of an estate made by the revenue authorities was without jurisdiction and was consequently inoperative in law on the ground that some of the lands of the estate sought to be partitioned were joint with the lands of other estates, and the revenue authorities were not competent under the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886, to effect a partition of lands included in several estates. Held, that S. 97 of the Regulation confers upon every recorded proprietor of a permanently settled estate, subject to the qualifications specified therein, the right to claim a partition of the estate. It makes no reference directly or by implication, to the mode in which the lands of the estate are held. The duty is imposed upon the Revenue Court to effect a partition of an estate on an application by a person competent to claim partition under S. 97. The first step in the performance of that duty is to ascertain the lands which constitute that estate. To carry out this preliminary step, it may conceivably be necessary to have recourse to an auxiliary measure, namely, to effect a partition of the joint lands of the several estates and thereby to ascertain the lands which belong to the estate under partition. It is a well-known rule of interpretation of statutes that where a statute confers jurisdiction, it impliedly grants also the power to do such acts, adopt such measures and employ such means, as are essentially necessary to its execution. 23 C. 514 and 24 C. 751 Ref. 46 C. 256 Ref. It cannot be maintained that the joint lands should first be divided by a Civil Court, as then the result would follow that the Civil Court would in essence be called upon to constitute an estate for the purpose of partition under S. 97 and consequently to deal with a matter which affects the Government revenue and is excluded from its jurisdiction by S. 154 (1) (f) of the Regulation. 32 C. 1036 dist. A Revenue Court alone has jurisdiction to entertain an application for partition of a portion of a revenue paying estate, when the applicant has no interest in the remainder. S. 97 of Regulation does not require that the applicant should be in actual physical possession. ASSAM REGULATION (III of 1884).

———Ss. 97 (3), (b) and 96—Partition—Lands included in the estate joint with lands of several estates.

A Revenue Court has jurisdiction under S. 97 of the Act to effect a partition of an estate when the lands of that estate in whole or in part, are joint with lands of other estates; 32 Cal. 1036 dist. An estate does not cease to be an estate within the Regulation merely because its lands are held jointly with the lands of other estates provided it fulfils the requirements of the definition given in S. 3. A partition of an estate which affects the distribution of the revenue, should be effected not by a Civil Court but by appropriate Revenue Court. BENAMI—Effect of.

The burden of proving that a grant made in terms to a certain person was made benami for another lies on the person alleging it. (Lord Atkinson.) ARAB ALI KHAN v. MOHMUD ALI KHAN. 43 M. L. J. 104=20 A. L. J. 545=35 C. L. J. 554=24 Bom. L. R. 951=67 I. C. 444=31 M. L. T. 94=1922 P. C. 84 (P. C.)

Consideration.

———Consideration—Part-payment.

The fact that a part of the consideration recited in the sale deed is true and real is sufficient to rebut the presumption as to the Benami nature of a sale. (Wallis, C. J. and Phillips, J.) RAGHUNATHA CHARI v. ARAVAMUTHU AIYANGAR. 34 I. C. 617 (M.).

Contracts.

———Contracts—Benefit of transfer intended for a person other than transferee does not render the transfer benami.

The word "benami" does not apply to contracts where the only question can be whether a person entered into the contract on his own behalf or on behalf of another as his agent. Though the benefit of a conveyance is intended for the wife of the transferee, the transfer does not become benami in the name of the transferee. (Abdur Rahim and Srinivasa Iyengar, JJ.) KALIYAMMAL v. KOLANDAVELA GOUNDER. 38 I. C. 188=5 L. W. 228.

———Doctrine of—Resulting trust.

A benami purchase has the same incidents as if it were a resulting trust in favour of the person from whose funds the purchase is made. (Miller and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) ABDUL RAHIMAN NACHIYAL v. MIRATHAYAR AMMAL. 24 I. C. 10=1 L. W. 451.

Effect of.

———Effect of—Suit for declaration that a portion of a transaction is genuine and the rest benami.

Benami transactions are generally effected in order to conceal some fraud or in order to support some object of a discreditable nature. But though the Courts have in the past recognized that the ostensible owner in a benami transaction can be ordered to restore the property to its original owner, it is not advisable to extend that doctrine and to hold that a transaction can be partly genuine and partly unreal, unless there are very strong reasons for obliging the Court to come to such a conclusion. (Macleod, C. J. and Shah, J.) APPA v. BABJI. 64 I. C. 364=23 Bom. L. R. 873.

———Effect of—Evidence.

When once a transaction is found to be benami it becomes a question of evidence as to who is the real purchaser. The fact of one man posing as agent of the benamidar is not conclusive proof that the purchase money belonged to the benamidar. (Parlett and Twomey, JJ.) ABDUL RAHMAN KHAN LANDIE v. MA KYE. 26 I. C. 102= 8 Bur. L. T. 87.

———Evidence.

Where plff. sued to recover certain property and deft. pleaded that under a certain partition deed between plff. and deft. was benami and plff. used to hold the land in dispute only as deft's. benamidar, Held that on evidence it was clear that the deed was acted upon, that it was not benami and that plff. was entitled to a decree. ———Evidence—Proof of—Onus.

In regard to benami transactions Courts of law should not approach them with that scrupulous rigour which in other systems of jurisprudence may demand the existence of the clearest positive evidence that the ex facie owner of a property is a trustee for or holds the same for the interest of another. But it is essential to take care that the decision of the court rests not upon suspicion, but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. Benami transactions are very familiar in Indian practice and even a slight quantity of evidence to show that it was a sham transaction will suffice for the purpose; still such a transfer cannot be considered as nothing and the person who impugns its apparent character must show something or other to establish that it was a benami or sham transaction. The mortgagee sued on his mortgage got a decree, bought the property himself and sued for possession. Held, that the purchaser was benami, the mokrari grant by the widow was effective, only to the extent of her share and also the mortgages by the heirs were effective to the extent of their shares. ———Evidence of—Evidence Act, S. 92.

If a transaction is truly benami, i. e., where a person is a nominal purchaser, there is no difficulty in settling the dispute between them, because of the absence of writing. But if the real object is to shield the property from creditors, oral evidence is inadmissible to show the real nature of the transaction but it is admissible to show the want of consideration. (Beaman, J.) LAXMI BAI v. KESHAV ANNAJI.
33 I. C. 396=18 Bom. L. R. 134.

Benami transactions are familiar in India and even a slight quantity of evidence to show that a transaction is benami may suffice. But the person who impugns the apparent character of a transaction must not rely solely on probabilities, but must show something definite to establish that it was a sham transaction, on the principle that the burden of proof lies on the person who claims contrary to the tenor of a deed and alleges that the apparent is not the real state of things. The most important test in these cases is the source whence the consideration came. Where however from the lapse of time, direct evidence of a conclusive or reliable character is not forthcoming, as to the payment of consideration, the case must be dealt with on the reasonable probabilities and legal inferences arising from proved or admitted facts. ———Evidence—Suspicion—Surrounding circumstances.

The burden of proving that a certain conveyance standing in the name of one person is benami for another under whom a third person claims, lies on the person who so raises the plea of benami. The Court must however rest its decision not on suspicion but on legal evidence though it need not approach the transaction with that scrupulous rigour which, in other systems of jurisprudence, may demand the existence of the clearest positive evidence that the ex facie owner of a property holds the same for the interest of another. The most important test to find out the beneficiary is the source whence the consideration came. In addition to this the court should take into consideration the question of possession and the surrounding circumstances; 25 C. L. J. 581; 23 C. W. N. 321; 43 C. 606; 37 A. 557; 18 C. W. ———Evidence.

Direct evidence of a benami transaction cannot be expected; the whole object of such a transaction is to suppress evidence of the real facts but the real facts can be proved by circumstantial evidence. (Cox and Imam, JJ.) BAHURIA SAMBHO KOER v. HARIHAR PRASAD.
41 Cal. 1092=24 I. C. 276=18 C. W. N. 1071.

———Evidence of—Proof of advancement of minor son—No benami.

Where there is evidence that a purchase by a father of immoveable property had been made in the name of his minor son with a view to his advancement, the mere fact that leases of the property were executed in the name of the father as manager of the family, is not proof that the purchase was benami. (Shah Din and Chevis, JJ.) NATHA MAL v. JIWAN RAM. 33 I. C. 733=77 P. W. R. 1916.

———Evidence of—Ostensible vendee paying off debts.

Where an ostensible vendee pays off the debts due by the transferor and makes an advance of ready cash payment on the date of the sale, there is a strong persumption that the transaction is not benami. The burden lies heavily on the party who alleges that the transaction is benami to prove it. (Wallis, Offg. C. J. and Seshagiri Aiyar, J.) VAITHINATHA AIYAR v. VAITHINATHA SWAMI AIYAR. 29 I. C. 970 (M.).

———Evidence of—Facts warranting inference.

The facts that no consideration, passed, that the price was not proper, and the possession of the property did not pass to the vendees, etc., are facts which warrant an inference that a particular transaction is benami. ———Evidence of—Obtaining of a Collector's Certificate—Collection of rent by wife if evidence of exclusive possession against the husband.

The obtaining, by a person, of a Collector's Certificate in his wife's name is no evidence of a recognition by him of his wife antecedent title to the property. The mere fact of collection of rent by the wife, from property which was admitted to belong to the husband is no evidence of exclusive possession by the wife as against the husband. (White, C. J. and Oldfield, J.) MEENAKSHI AMMAL v. MANICKA CHETTY.
24 I. C. 918=1 L. W. 360.

BENAMI—Fraudulent Transfer.

————Evidence—Admission of vendor.

The onus of proving that a sale deed did not really convey an interest is on the person alleging it. The admission of the vendor that he received the sale price is not conclusive proof of the reality of the sale, though strong evidence of it may be adduced. (Miller and Abdur Rahim JJ.) SRINIVASA v. KRISHNASAMY. 18 I. C. 274 (M.).

———Evidence—Purchase in the name of one member of joint family—Hindu Law.

A purchase in the name of a member of a joint Hindu family is presumed to be a benami transaction especially when he is not the manager. (Mitra, A. J. C.) NARHAR v. NARAIN.
56 I. C. 386 (N.).

———Evidence of—Legal presumption.

When the plff. gives satisfactory evidence about the advance for purchase, there is a rebuttable presumption that the transaction is benami for plff. (Stuart, A. J. C.) SITARA BEGAM v. MUHAMMAD ISHAK KHAN. 32 I. C. 365=2 O. L. J. 584.

———Evidence of—How determined—Test of.

25 I. C. 164=17 O. C. 173.

———Evidence—Questions to be considered.

The questions to be considered in finding whether a transaction is benami are:— Was there any motive for a benami transaction or was the alleged benamidar so connected with the alleged principal as to render it probable that he should be selected as a benamidar. (2) In whose possession was the document of title? (3) Who was in possession, and who paid the consideration? (Chapman and Roe, JJ.) KALISAHU v. KEDARMAL. 38 I. C. 561 (P.).

Fraudulent Transfer.

———Fraudulent transfer—Distinction between.

The difference between a benami and a fraudulent transfer is distinct though often slurred. Where the transferor owes debts in lieu of which he transfers property, there can be no question of a benami transfer. (Sir Lawrence Jenkins.) MINA KUMARI BIBI v. BEJOY SINGH.

———Fraudulent transfer—Suit by fraudulent grantee for recovery of property—Fraudulent purpose carried out—Whether suit maintainable.

One S. executed a mortgage in favour of D. This transaction was ascertained to be fictitious, and the conveyance was never intended to pass title and the mortgage was effected solely with a view to delay, if not to defeat the creditors of S. The fraudulent purpose was accomplished: D obtained a decree on the mortgage and became purchaser. The successors of D. commenced the present action for a declaration of their title by purchase at auction sale and for recovery of possession from the successors of S. Held the plaintiff must fail. The rules that guide the Court in the matter of fraudulent conveyances are as follows:— (1) When recovery of property is claimed by the fraudulent grantor from the grantee, the modern rule is that although where intended fraud has been carried into effect, the Court will not help the owner to recover the property which he has once cast of in order to defraud others, yet if he has not defrauded any one, the Court will not punish his intention by giving his estate away to another whose retention of it is an act of gross fraud. Jaylore v. Bowers, 1 Q. B. D. 291 Ref. (2) Where recovery of property is sought by the fraudulent grantee against the grantor, the rule is:—If a Benamidar, who has used a fraudulent transfer to defeat an execution levied by his ostensible transferor, were to seek the assistance of Court to obtain possession from the latter, the Court might well allow the transferor to plead the real facts, even though the plea involved a declaration by the defandant of his own turpitude. Nominal and Sham Transfer.

———Nominal and sham transfer—Distinction between.

A nominal transfer is distinct from a sham one. In the latter, there is no intention to transfer at all. In the former there is an intention to transfer to one's nominee so that he might hold the property for himself openly but secretly for the transferor using the document as a cloak to save it from his creditors. Presumption.

———Presumption—Advancement—Purchase in the name of wife and children.

Owing to the widespread and persistent practice which prevails among the natives of India, whether Mahomedan or Hindu, for owners of property to make grants and transfers of it benami for no obvious reason or apparent purpose, without the slightest intention of vesting in the donee any beneficial interest in the property granted or transferred, as well as the usages which these natives have adopted and which have been protected by statute, no exception has ever been engrafted on the general law of India negativing the presumption of the resulting trust in favour of the person providing the purchase money, such as has by the Courts of Chancery in the exercise of their equitable jurisdiction, been engrafted on the corresponding law in England, in those cases where a husband or father pays the money and the purchase is taken in the name of the wife or child. In such a case there is under the Indian Law no presumption of an intended advancement as there is in England. But the English Rule might be applied among persons born of British parents and resident in India. The determination of which rule of law is in any given case to apply in India does not entirely depend on race, place of birth, domicile or residence; the widespread and persistent usages and practice of the native inhabitants are more important. 6 M. ———Presumption—Property in wife's name.

Where property is brought in the name of the wife and neither party gives evidence to show who paid the purchase money, no presumption arises that the purchase was made by the husband benami for his wife. Where the wives are not necessarily co-parceners of their husband, there is no presumption that every property standing in the name of the wife was joint property in which in the absence of other evidence the husband would have a share. 39 I. C. 530=3 P. L. W. 341.

———Presumption—Burden of proof.

When a person makes a purchase in the name of his son the presumption is that it was benami and the son must prove that he is solely entitled to the legal and beneficial interest in the purchased property. Whenever the rights of creditors are in issue in such a transaction, the burden of proof lies with more than the ordinary weight on the person alleging that the purchase was intended for the benefit of the son. Test.

———Test of—Source of purchase money—Surrounding circumstances.

Where it is asserted that an assignment in the name of one person is really for the benefit of another, the real test is the source whence the consideration came. But where owing to distance of time, evidence is not forthcoming one way or the other, the case must be dealt with on the reasonable probabilities and legal inferences arising from proved or admitted facts. The property in question was purchased in the name of the wife. There was no evidence that the wife had money of her own. The husband though involved had money and the motive of the purchase in the name of the wife could have been to shield the property from creditors. The income of the property was treated exactly like the income of other admitted family properties and applied to family purposes. Held, the irresistible inference was that the purchase in the name of the wife was benami. ———Test of—Purchase of property by Hindu in the name of Mahomedan Mistress—Advancement.

Dealing by way of benami is common to Hindus and Mahomedans alike and much in use in India and is quite unobjectionable. It has a curious resemblance to the English Law that the trust of the Legal Estate results to the man who pays the purchase money. The exception obtaining in English Law by way of advancement in favour of wife or child does not apply in India, but the relationship is a circumstance taken into account in determining whether a transaction is benami or not. 6 M. I. A. 53, rel. The criterion in the absence of all other relevant circumstances, is to consider from what source the purchase money comes. Held, on the facts, that the purchase of a bungalow in the name of his Mahomedan mistress, by a Hindu talukdar, who had already provided for her and her sons, was a benami transaction. ———Test of—Onus of proof.

A court's decision as to the benami character of a transaction must rest not upon suspicion but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. The court must consider circumstances such as source of purchase-money, possession of property, custody of title deeds, adequacy of consideration and like facts and the person who claims against the tenor of the deed must prove it. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) ABDUL LATIF KAZI v. ABDUL HUQ KAZI. 28 C. W. N. 62=1924 C. 523.

———Test of—Evidence—Probabilities.

Benami transactions being common in India slight evidence may show a transaction was of that nature. A conclusion however cannot be based on mere probabilities. The person who claims contrary to the tenor of the deed must prove and the source of the consideration is always an important test. If from lapse of time, direct evidence is not forthcoming, reasonable probabilities as are deducible from surrounding circumstances can be made the basis of decision. (Mookerjee and Holtzner, JJ.) BHUBANMOHINI DASI v. KUMUDBALA DASI. 28 C. W. N. 131=
39 C. L. J. 140=1924 C. 467.

———Test—Source of purchase money—Possession—Other evidence.

In the case of benami transactions in India the court need not approach them with that scrupulous rigour which in other systems of jurisprudence, may demand the existence of the clearest positive evidence that the ex facie owner of a property holds the same for the interest of another. 23 C. W. N. 321 Ref. In addition to considering the source from which the purchase money came and the person in possession, the court may also take into consideration the surrounding circumstances. 43 C. 660; 37 A. 557, Ref. 36 C. L. J. 208=72 I. C. 698=1923 C. 13.

———Test of—Source of purchase money.

The familiar test to apply to find out whether the ostensible purchaser, is also the real purchaser, is to find out the source of the purchase money. In a case of gift, however, when it is alleged that the transaction was fictitious this test fails and the court must rely upon other aspects of the matter, namely, the surrounding circumstances contemporaneous with the gift and the subsequent conduct of the parties concerned. (Sanderson, C. J., Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) MARIAN BIBEE v. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM. 48 I. C. 561=28 C. L. J. 306.

———Test of—Source of purchase money—Motive and subsequent conduct—Possession of property—Purchase of property in the name of daughter-in-law—Benefit of the family.

In order to determine benami nature, reliance must be placed not only upon the surrounding circumstances and the position of the parties and their relations to one another but also upon the motives which could govern their actions and their subsequent conduct. The two principal tests of benami are the source of the purchase money and possession of the property. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) UPENDRA NATH NAG v. BUPENDRA NATH NAG.
32 I. C. 267=21 C. W. N. 280.

———Test of—Purchase of property—Transferee having notice of benamidar's title—Estoppel.

Where a father purchases a property in the name of one of his sons, the ordinary presumption is that it is a benami transaction and that it is not an advancement in favour of that son. 13 M. I. A. 232 (P. C.) Ref. Where the father supplied the purchase money of the site, was in possession of the title deed and produced it, was in possession of the property, erected a building on it at his own expense, and received rent for the part of the building. Held, that the sale was really benami. (Scott-Smith and Shadi Lal, JJ.) GHULAM DASTGIR v. TEJA SINGH.

———Test of—Source of purchase-money—Possession of real owner.

The source of the purchase money is a very important factor in determining the question whether the transaction is benami or not actual possession or receipt of rent of the property is another criterion. When the real owner has all along remained in possession and was in enjoyment of the property, that circumstance is constructive notice of the benami nature of the transaction. (Shadi Lal, J.) RAM SARUP v. MAYA SHANKAR. 46 P. R. 1918= ———Test—Source of purchase money—Onus of proof of benami.

The real test for determining whether a transaction of sale is benami is to see the source of the purchase money, the onus of proof of benami lies on the person alleging it. The fact that the father of an infant vendee paid the purchase money is not sufficient of itself to show that the infant was a benamidar only. ———Test of—Purchase in the name of wife.

No presumption can be drawn that the purchase of property made by a husband in his wife's name is benami for the former. The test of ownership is, who paid the consideration for the purchase. (Sundara Aiyar and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.) CHELLAMUTHU v. MUTHUDAYAR SERVAI.
17 I. C. 740 (M.).

BENAMI—Test.

The source of purchase money is a very important fact in the case of benami. Actual possession or receipt of rents is more important. The fact that a Muhammadan joins his grandson's name in a purchase, his son being alive, is not enough to presume that the purchase was for the benefit of the grandson. Mere omission to enter the name of the minor joint purchaser in the mutation is immaterial against him. (Batten, A. J. C.) ABID ALI v. ASGAR ALI. 12 I. C. 721 = 7 N. L. R. 159.

———Test.

One test to find out whether a transaction is benami is to find out the source of purchase money and another is the inference arising from the fact of possession of the property in question. (Kincaid, J. C. and Raymond, A. J. C.) PEWANDBAI v. CHETANLAL. 62 I. C. 1002 = 15 S. L. R. 84.

Right to Sue.

———Right to sue—Decision—resjudicata—Relationship between benamidar and real owner.

A system of acquiring and holding property and even carrying on business in names other than those of the real owner, usually called the benami system is common in India and so long as benami transaction does not contravene the provisions of the law, the Courts are bound to give effect to it. The benamidar has no beneficial interest in the business or property that stands in his name; he represents the real owner and is a mere trustee for him. A benamidar can therefore sue in his own name to recover property vested in him as such. ———Ss. 3 and 6—Survey maps—Any such new map meaning—Comparison—Evidence—Accretion—Onus.

The expression "any such new map" plainly refers to the "new map" made according to "new survey" as contemplated in Section 3. The section provides for periodical surveys at intervals of not less than ten years, after a revenue survey had been completed and approved. The object of the "new survey" is to ascertain the "changes" that may have taken place since the date of the last previous survey,—that is, changes by alluvion or direliction (not changes by possession). Section 6 then imposes upon the revenue authorities the duty to assess what may be called added land, whenever on inspection of the new map it appears that land has been added to an estate paying revenue directly to Government, There must consequently be a comparison between two maps, made at an interval of not less than ten years and each showing the revenue paying estate concerned. That estate must accordingly be in existence as a revenue paying estate if not before at least on the date of the first of the two maps taken as the basis for comparison. The true position is that the revenue survey map is taken as the basis of comparison; but the comparison of the map is not conclusive. The comparison sets the revenue authorities in motion, and they may, then, on the best materials they can procure, proceed to assess what land they deem to be assessable. What is liable to be assessed with revenue is, land not previously assessed, not land which has been formed since the revenue survey map. In the determination of the question, whether the land sought to be assessed is added land, we have to determine the land included in the estate at the time of its creation as a permanently settled estate. For this purpose, the revenue survey map is valuable but it is not conclusive evidence. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) SAUDAMINI DASSYA v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

———S. 6—Sunderban lands not paying revenue to Government—Beng. Regn. (XI of 1825) Rent—Diara proceedings for assessment of revenue—Suit for declaration in Civil Court.

Under Act (IX of 1847) it must be shown that the land has been added to any estate paying revenue directly to the Government. Government as "owner" of the Sunderban granted a lease of certain lands for a certain period with a covenant for renewal on a progressive rental. There was no distinction between 'rent' and 'revenue' and the relation created by it was that of a lesser and lessee. The lessee was not allowed to claim an abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion. In addition to his lease hold interest his other properties moveable and immoveable were liable to be sold in the event of the accrual of the arrears of the jama reserved by the lease. The lessee in the present case was not the holder of an "estate paying revenue directly to the Government" and as such Act (IX of 1847) was not applicable. The relation between the parties was regulated by the contract between them subject to Regn. (XI of 1825). The entire proceedings confirmed by the Board of Revenue assessing the lands with Revenue in the present case under S. 6 of Act (IX of 1847) were a nullity. The suit being one for a declaration that the proceedings under Act (IX of 1847) were a nullity, it could not be dealt with as if it were a regular appeal from the decision of the Board of Revenue under S. 10 Cl. (3) of Regn. (III of 1828.) (Fletcher and Ghose, JJ.) THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. JATINDRA NATH CHAUDHURY.

After recession and encroachment by the Ganges the land washed away and afterwards reformed on the old ascertained site, is not land gained by increment, within S. 4 of Reg. (XI of 1825). 13 M. I, A. 467; 18 W. R. 113; 24 C. 489 (P. C.) Rel. In the Shahabad Dt. there is no custom by which the deep stream of the river is recognised as the boundary between estates on each side of the river. ———S. 4—Alluvion land—Accretions—Proof—Onus.

Where a party can show that chur land is in fact reformation in situ of land identifiable as his own he is entitled to that land though it may have been for a period submerged. It is not sufficient for such a claimant to show that the accretion is in situ of a river-bed which has been settled with him: it is necessary for him to show that the land claimed had previous existence and was reformed. S. 4 of the Regulation 1825, as a whole, was not intended to apply to land which has been previously in existence as the property of individuals, S. 5 was intended to apply to such lands. The bed of a large and navigable river would not be settled with a private owner. 13 M. I. A. 467, 4 M. I. A. 403, 3 Cal. 795, 27 All. 685 Ref. ———S. 4 (1)—Accretion.

Where the land in dispute formed an accretion to rent free tenure it was held that in a suit for a declaration of title to it and recovery of mesne profits that the plff. was entitled to possession but that he could hold it only on payment of rent to the patnidar that as he had not paid rent to the patnidar he was not entitled to mesne profits and that the plff. could not claim to eject a bona fide tenant put in by the superior holder. ———S. 4 (1)—Alluvion—Accretion—Claim to—Original boundary ascertainble.

S. 4 of the Regulation requires that the accretion should be gradual and not that it should necessarily be slow and imperceptible. All accessions by gradual alluvion are treated alike irrespective of the rate of formation. The fact that the original boundary is Kuam or ascertainable does not make a difference. (*Batten, Offg. 45 I. C. 425=14 N. L. R. 97.

———S. 4 (1)—Gradual accretion—Meaning of.

The question as to what amounts to gradual accretion under S. 4 (1) of the Regulation, must depend upon the nature of the river, the manner of the accretion, and the quantity of the land thrown on each year. It need not be imperceptible. (Jwala Prasad, C. J. & Das, J.) KHUBI MAHTON v. LACHMI DAS. 63 I. C. 704=2 Pat. L. T. 599.

The expression "Estates paying revenue directly to the Government" does not include the lands let on lease by the Government without any distinction between "rent" and "revenue" under S. 6 of the Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Act. Hence the new acquisition to such land is not separately assessable under the Act. A civil suit for the declaration of the proceedings under Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Act confirmed by the Board of Revenue as a nullity is not an appeal under S. 10, Cl. 3 of Regulation (III of 1828.) Certain lands were formed by gradual accretion by recession of a river and the lands so formed were resumed by the Government and settled with the plaintiff. The land was held by the deft. under a lease granted by plff. co-sharer proprietor to the extent of 23rd share and other co-shares. In a suit by the plff. for recovery of rent, held, that in respect of the share, plff. was bound by the lease and could realise rent at the rate mentioned therein and that in respect of the rest, the plff. was in the position of a stranger and could realise rent at the rate assessed by the settlement authorities as payable by the under-tenure holder of the original estate. As the settlement authorities did not determine the fair rent payable by the tenure-holder the fair rent was assessed by the High Court acting under S. 103, C. P. Code. The policy of Bengal Act (IX of 1880) is that all persons who benefit by the maintenance and construction of "roads" and other means of communication or "works of public utility" out of the cesses, should bear the liability of paying the same. The liability for cess lies on both "occupier" and "owner" of mines. On the true construction of S. 6, the term "annual net profits" has reference to the property and not to the individual. The royalty or the percentage on the profits of a mine payable by mine owners to the proprietor of the land in which the mine is situate, is assessable to cess under S. 6. BENGAL CESS ACT (IX of 1880), S. 54.

As laid down in S. 47, the procedure for levy of cess is the same as that for recovering arrears of rent. The expression "in the same manner and under same penalties as if the same were arrears of rent" refers only to the procedure to be adopted and the consequences to follow in the recovery of rent that is to say the remedy would be by suit and the penalties would possibly be the sale of the holding or damages at 25 per cent. under S. 68 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The provisions of S. 47 of the Act are not controlled by any special contract as to payment of interest in arrears of rent between the landlord and tenant and so the waiver of a claim to demand interest on arrears of rent by the landlord in virtue of a contract with the tenant will not absolve his liability to pay interest on the cess. (Chitty and Walmsley, JJ.) RADHIKA MOHAN ROY v. MANMOTHA NATH. 23 C. L. J. 603= 34 I. C. 111.

——S. 48—"Interest," meaning of.

"Interest" means one which can be entered in land register and the section implies that the several share-holders should pay the amount of cess according to their respective shares. The expression refers to the share of the estate held by the shareholder and not the valuation of that share or the income derived therefrom. The section gives a right to the shareholder paying more than his share of the cess, to recover the excess from other co-sharers. (Richardson and Mullick, JJ.) NARENDRA NARAIN SINGH v. GOPI SUNDARI DASYA. 25 I. C. 366 (Cal.).

——S. 48—'Interest'—'Proportionate to his own interest'—Scheme of Act.

The words 'proportionate to his own interest' in S. 48 of the Act refers to the share of the estate held by the share-holder and not to valuation of that share or the income which he derives from it. The word 'interest' in that section means an interest of a kind capable of being entered in a land Register. The scheme of the Act is that until a separate appointment is obtained by a share-holder under the Act the extent of his liability for cesses as between himself and his co-sharers is the extent of his share or the extent of his liability for land revenue. ———S. 95—Evidence Act, S. 21—Admissibility of road cess return.

Because of an admission of a road cess return in a suit other than a rent suit, on behalf of a tenant against his landlord, the latter does not get any right to produce it successfully on his behalf in a subsequent rent suit. The road cess return is not admissible in evidence under S. 95 of the Act in favour of either the person filing it or of one who gets it filed by another or any one claiming through him or his representative in interest, but it is admissible if filed by a ticadar or temporary lessee, in favour of his zamindar as he will not be the person precluded from getting its benefit. The one made by a predecessor in interest of the tenant deft. has a considerable evidentiary value in favour of the plff. landlord and against the tenant. The provisions of S. 95 of the Bengal Cess Act although not exhaustive, limit the application of S. 21, Evidence Act, excluding Road Cess Returns from their admission in evidence in favour of person filing them or for whom they have been filed. ———Applicability.

The Chowkidari Act does not apply to the lands of the Zemindari of Kilah Sukunda in Orissa which was held at a fixed Jama in perpetuity under a sanad confirmed by S. 33 of Regulation (XII of 1805). The land subject to the Act is that assigned by Govt. at the date of settlement (such settlement not being temporary) and which has therefore been taken into account through excluded from assessment in the settlement of the Land Revenue assessed for the whole estate. ———S. 1—"Assigned"—Meaning of—Right of Govt. to resume lands in Zemindari.

The word "assigned" in S. 1 of the Village Chaukidari Act, 1870, means "assigned by Govt. or appropriated by its authority or with its permission and the provisions of the Act do not authorise a claim by Govt. for resumption of Chaukidari Chakran lands in a Zemindari granted by the zemindar himself and which had not been excluded from assessment as Chaukidari lands at the time of settlement." ——S. 1—Applicability of—Chaukidari Chakran lands—Definition and meaning—Assignment.

Chaukidari Chakran lands are lands, which having been assigned by Government at the time of the settlement have not been taken into account in the assessment of land revenue. For the application of Act VI of 1870 B. C. it must be shown that the lands which have been dealt with are Chaukidari Chakran lands within the definition given by the Act. ——Ss. 50 and 51—Zemindar—Estate of, in resumed Choukidari Chakran lands.

Where before resumption the Zemindar has entered into contracts affecting his existing estate, the rights of third parties under the contract are preserved. If after resumption, the Zemindar settles lands with third persons, the latter acquires no right as against the Patnidar within whose patni the lands were originally included. ——Ss. 50 and 51—Suit for possession by Patnidar—Limitation.

Art. 144 of the Limitation Act applies to the suit brought by a Patnidar against the Zemindar for the recovery of possession of Choukidari Chakran Lands transferred to the latter under the Act. To ascertain when the Zemindari's possession became adverse, the Court must find when the lands were settled by the Zemindar with tenants and when those tenants took possession of the lands and whether such possession was to the knowledge of the patnidar, (Woodroffe and Cuming, JJ.) MANINDRA CHANDRA NANDI v. RANGLAL. 41 I. The word 'contract' primarily means a transaction which creates personal obligations but it may, though less exactly, refer to transactions which create real rights. It is in this latter sense that it is used in S. 51 of Bengal Act VI of 1870, and the rights thereby reserved to patnidars and others on the transfer to the Zemindar of Chaukidari Chakran lands, comprehensively included in the word "Contract" are real rights, the enforcement of which is secured not by a suit for specific performance, but by a suit for possession. Chaukidari Chakran lands are held on condition of service and a chaukidar who occupies such lands is not entitled to a right of occupancy therein. A chaukidar while performing the duties of his office is not a trespasser and cannot be ejected from such lands. The title of a Zemindar to chakran land is always there and remains unaffected by the fact that such land is appropriated to the maintenance of an officer performing the duties of village watchmen. When such land is transferred to the Zamindar it is at his disposal, and may be treated by him as his mal land or zerait land but once he elects to treat the land as his mal he cannot afterwards treat it as zerait land. BENGAL COURT FEES (AMENDMENT) ACT (IV of 1922).

———Grant of letters of administration—Property outside Bengal—Levy of fees—Legality.

Under the provisions of S. 80 A. (1) of the Government of India Act, the Local Legislature has power to make laws for the peace and good government of the territories of the Province, and under S. 80 A. (2) the Local Legislature may, subject as therein mentioned, that is to say, subject to the limitations mentioned in (3), repeal or alter as to that Province any law made before or after the commencement of the Act by any authority in British India. The limitations imposed by S. 80 (3) relate (a) to the imposition of new taxes other than those set out in Sch. I of the Scheduled Taxes Rules. It is quite true that duties, which are collected by means of stamps are in a sense stamp duties, for instance in England, estate duty, probate duty and succession duty, are stamp duties because they are so collected; but it is doubtful whether a Court-fee becomes a stamp duty within the meaning of the Scheduled Taxes Rules, Sch. I because it is collected by means of stamps. The stamp duties referred to in Sch. I mean some such duties are imposed by the Indian Stamp Act, and do not comprise court-fees comprised in the Court Fees Act, even although in a sense they are stamp duties as being paid by stamps. The sum charged upon a grant of probate or of letters of administration is not a tax or duty levied upon the property upon which the probate or administration operates, and it is not charged thereon as is estate duty in England, but it is merely a fee levied by the Court issuing the probate or letters of administration for the work done in this connection. This is so in spite of the fact that the fee is levied upon the value of the property. Court fee on probate or letters of administration is rightly levied at the enhanced rate on the value of all assets whether in the province or outside. The Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, does not require a Collector to give notice to the creditors entered in any list, but, it does require the issue of a general notice. If the provisions of Cls. (b) and (c) of S. 64 (a) of the Court of Wards Act are complied with in full and those of Cl. (a) only complied with partly, the Court may presume that all the notices required by the section were published. S. 55 of the Act is intended for the guidance of the managers. It is not a question of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit has been instituted but it seeks to control the action of the manager. To proceed with such a suit is not an assumption of jurisdiction which the trial Court does not possess but is at most an irregularity which does not vitiate the proceeding. 24 C. W. N. 419 Dist. ———Ss. 42 and 44—Suit under—Nature of—Notice, if necessary—Prov. Small Cause Courts Act, S. 8—Second Appeal.

A suit under S. 42 (b) of the Drainage Act would come under S. 8 of the Prov. Small Cause Courts Act and would be excepted from the cognizance of a Small Cause Court. A second appeal will lie in such a case irrespective of the value of the suit. A notice under Section 44 (2) of the Act is necessary for the maintainability of a suit under S. 42 (b). The onus of proof which rests on the plaintiff-landlord in a suit under S. 42 of the Act, of showing that the land of the tenant defendant has been benefited by any scheme or work, is not discharged by the Report of the Commissioners under S. 32 of the Act in his favour and cannot shift the burden to the defendants. ———S. 68—Order of Collector for payment of lump sum without instalments is binding in Courts though erroneous.

An order for apportionment was made by the Collector as between the proprietors on the one hand and the tenure-holders on the other. This order was made after due service of notice on the tenure-holders. The order was defective inasmuch as it specified merely the amount payable by the tenure-holder and the proprietors, but did not specify the instalments and the dates on which the sum included in each instalment was to be made payable. This final order was served upon the tenure-holder. It is remarkable that no exception was taken to this order, though it was manifestly erroneous whether by the proprietors or by the tenure-holders. The proprietors paid the amount due to the Collector in one instalment in accordance with that order. They then instituted the present suit for recovery of the amount from the tenure-holders. The tenure-holders objected that they were not liable to pay the entire amount in one instalment. The Courts below have made a decree in favour of the plaintiffs, only in respect of such sums as would have been payable by the tenure holders if an order of payment by instalments had been correctly made by the Collector under section 68. Held the Courts below had in substance replaced the actual order of the Collector by an order which should have been made by him and that it was not open to the court below to adopt this method of giving relief to the plaintiffs. Under S. 6 of Bengal Act (XI of 1859) notifications were issued for the sale of certain land for arrears of land revenue. Subsequently a certificate was filed under the Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895) for arrears of Phoolbandi (embankment) charges, in respect of the land. The amount due for arrears of land revenue was paid before the sale but not the Phoolbandi charges. The Collector accepted the amount and ordered the sale to proceed in respect of Phoolbandi charges, without a notice as required by S. 5 of Act XI of 1859. Held, that the sale was invalid. Although no formal order of exemption had been made under S. 18 of Act XI of 1859, the Collector having acknowledged payment in full of the arrears of land revenue for which the sale was advertised and having elected to proceed under the Certificate Procedure for the Phoolbandi charges and directed a sale thereunder, he could not treat the arrear under the certificate as an arrear of land revenue without notice to the parties under S. 5. The sale was therefore without jurisdiction. (Lord Dunedin.) DHIRAJ CHANDRA BOSE v. SRIMATI HARI DAS DEBI.

Sub-clause (3) of Section 5 applies only to cases where a proprietor, having an undivided share, held in common tenancy in specific mouzas, which formed part of the parent estate but where he has no interest which extends over the whole estate; in other words, it applies to proprietors who have an interest in some, out of the total number of villages which constituted the estate. If he has a share in the remainder also, then it follows that he has a fractional interest in the entire estate as well as a fractional interest in a part, the latter fractional interest being the difference between the larger and the smaller interest; that is to say if he has a half share in twenty mouzas, and a one-sixth share in fifty-four mouzas, it must be held that he has a one-sixth share in the entire estate and in the twenty mouzas a fractional interest represented by the difference of one-half and one-sixth. A proprietor of a mahal comprising of two mouzas and who possesses a fractional interest in each, is not entitled to claim an allotment in each mouza representing his assets in that mouza; such a construction would defeat the entire principle of compactness where there are many villages and when the proprietor holds a different fractional interest in each. Although no deed of partition can be produced and from lapse of time no direct evidence of partition could be given, yet very long possession and acquiescence in the separate holding of the lands in the estate are sufficient to prove that there was a complete partition. 3. The section which governs in the case is S. 68 clause (c) of the Transfer of Property Act which provides that where the mortgagee being entitled to possession of the property the mortgagor fails to deliver the same to him or to secure possession thereof to him without disturbance by the mortgagor or any other person then in such a case the mortgagee has a right to sue the mortgagor for the mortgage money. Where after the partition the plaintiffs mortgagees were dispossessed of the property of which they were in possession under the Zarpeshgi, they could not resist that dispossession, and therefore they were bound to give up possession, and the result is that the mortgagors have failed to secure the possession of the property to the mortgagees and in such a case, the statute expressly provides that the mortgagees have a right to sue for the mortgage-money. ———Ch. 6—Zerait land—Holders paying neither rent nor revenue to Government—Record of rights—Rent fixed in—Liability for.

The land in question in the suit belonged to an estate owned by two individuals. One of them mortgaged his zemindari rights to certain persons keeping his possession over 141 bighas of zerait land. Subsequently the mortgagees came to purchase the mortgage interest of their mortgagor and the 141 bighas of zerait land also came to be held by different persons by transfer. The defendants came to hold 4 bighas of the zerait land. The Government revenue of the entire estate used to be paid by the transferees of the zemindary interest, inasmuch as they got their names in register D of the Collectorate. The holders of the zerait land including the defendants did not pay any Government revenue or rent to the proprietors whose names were registered in the Collectorate. The entire revenue was used to be paid by the recorded proprietors, some of whom sued under the Estates Partition Act. Held that the holders of the zerait land were liable to pay the same rent as was payable for the lands of similar nature in the neighbourhood. The presumption raised by the Record of Rights in favour of the proprietor entitles him to claim a share and equitable rent. (Jwala Prasad, J.) BHOLA PANDEY v. RAM BILAS PANDEY. 71 I. An under-raiyat who has remained in occupation of a certain plot of land and has cultivated it for more than 12 years can acquire a right of occupancy under S. 6 of the Bengal Act (VIII of 1869). The distinction between a raiyat and an under-raiyat was not recognised by Bengal Act (VIII of 1869). Under that Act the term "raiyat" included all classes of tenants who were actual cultivators of the soil. It was immaterial whether such a cultivator held his tenancy under a middleman or under a person who, though an occupancy raiyat originally had placed another tenant in possession of the lands of his tenancy for purposes of cultivation, unless such sub-lease, was "for a term year by year." S. 52 of the Land Registration Act contemplates two classes of cases (1) the case in which the applicant's possession exists and (2) cases in which succession or transfer has taken place. The first class includes cases in which the applicant claims to have assumed charge as joint proprietor on behalf of his co-sharer or manager. In such a case the Collector need satisfy himself only on the point of the possession of the applicant. Claims to joint ownership should not be indiscriminately accepted. But where the case of the applicant is that he had been in joint possession prior to the death of the deceased and has continued since, he cannot be refused registration. (*Morshead, M. BENGAL LAND REGISTRATION ACT, (VII of 1876), S. 85.

———S. 81—Ijaradar is not a proprietor and Seetion does not apply to him—Ijaradar—Proprietor.

An ijaradar is merely a lessee and S. 81 has no application to a person who is not himself a proprietor but who has an interest which is subordinate to that of a proprietor. S. 81 seems to be a rider to Ss. 78 to 80 and as those sections deal with the case of proprietors there is no reason to think that S. 81 refers to cases of persons other than a proprietor. (Chatterjee and Suhrawardy, JJ.) PROBODH CHANDRA MITTER v. HARISH CHANDRA NASCAR. 27 C. W. N. 888= 1924 Cal. 124.

The provisions of S. 81 of the Act are applicable to a case where one of the parties is a vendee of one of the contracting parties. (Chatterjea and Panton, JJ.) MESBAHUDDIN AHMED v. ABDUL. 65 I. C. 839=34 C. L. J. 119.

———S. 81—Lease by one co-sharer—Suit by him alone for rent is maintainable.

Where P, a co-sharer, leased his share to D for a certain rent, P. and his successors-in-interest can maintain a suit against D for rent upon the written contract of lease without reference to the other co-sharer landlords. (Chatterjee and Suhrawardy, JJ.) PROBODH CHANDRA MITTER v. HARISH CHANDRA. 64 I. C. 58=48 C. 1078.

The written contract mentioned in S. 81 of the Land Registration Act refers to a contract between the person who claims rent as proprietor and the person who is bound to pay rent to him under S. 78 of the Act. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft. JJ.) ISWAR CHANDRA BERA v. KALI CHARAN SANTRA. 43 I. C. 726=27 C. L. J. 474.

———S. 85—Identity of applicant—Revision.

Several years after the registration of a person's name in the records a rival claimant made an application on the ground that he is the person preferentially entitled. There is a dispute as regards his identity Held the Revenue Court may well leave the claimant to establish his claim in the Civil Court. It is largely a matter of opinion as to the circumstances in which a Commissioner's powers of revision should be exercised. (Morshead M. C.) MT. MADHURANI KUER a, RAJLILA SINGH. 1 Pat. L. R. 261. (Cr.).

———S. 85—Revisional powers of Commissioner.

The Commissioner has by S. 85 revisional jurisdiction over orders passed by all officers subordinate to him. The power ought to be exercised when there has been a failure of jurisdiction or a signal failure of duty or it is necessary to prevent gross abuse or injustice. The revisional powers should not be exercised where the aggrieved party has a right of appeal or a remedy by way of suit in the civil court. (Morshead, M. C.) TULSI RAM v. MT. BENGAL LAND REVENUE ASSESSMENT REGULATION, (II of 1819.)

———Rent—Lakhiraj land—Suit instituted under Regulation II of 1819 subsequently transferred to the Civil Court.

Plff.'s predecessor obtained a decree in 1862 against deft's. predecessor for resumption of land held under an invalid Lakhiraj title created before 1790, the decree declaring the land liable to assessment. In a suit brought for Khas possession on the ground that the defts. were trespassers Held, that the suit instituted under Regulation II of 1819 and subsequently transferred under Regulation VII of 1822 was a suit dealing with rent. The decree of 1862 could not be regarded as establishing the relationship of landlord and tenant. (*Jenkins, C. ———Ss. 2 and 3—Due date for paying Revenue, —Depends on contract of parties—Sale before due date is ultra vires.

The date on which the revenue is payable depends primarily not on general or administrative considerations such as the course of business in the Collectorate or the mode in which the accounts are kept but on the contract between the parties. Per Newbould, J.—When notices of sale are signed by a Sub-Deputy Collector for the Collector a legal presumption arises that the issue of the notices was directed by the Collector. There are three dates to be considered in conection with sales under the Act. The first is the kist or instalment date fixed by the kist bandi of each estate. The second is the date fixed by the Board of Revenue for each district as the latest date in each quarter for payment of all arrears and lastly the date fixed for sale. The question whether an instalment of payment remaining unpaid is an arrear of revenue within the meaning of S. 2 is a question of fact. An instalment of revenue payable on account of January kist, if not paid, does not become an arrear until the 1st February next following. Per Chatterjee, J. (Contra), Newbould, J.—Under S. 58, the Collector having made a bid of Re. one cannot afterwards purchase the estate on behalf of the Government at the highest amount of the bid made by another. The purchase of an estate so made is against Section 58 and confers no legal right on Government. The words "unless such ground has been declared and specified in S. 33 do not include the reascns for the ground." The same objection taken before the Commissioner may be taken before a Civil Court, though the reasons given may be different. Quaere whether notices of sale under the Act issued and signed by the Sub-Deputy Collector "for the Collector" invalidate the sale. Whether non-service of notice under S. 7 is not a material irregularity in the conduct of the sale so as to invalidate the sale. Under Act XI of 1859, on the failure of an owner to pay Government assessment his estate or interest in the land is determined and on a sale which is held by the Government in consequence of the non-payment of assessment what is sold is not the interest of the defaulting owner but the interest of the Crown, subject to the payment of the Government assessment. Against the purchaser at the sale under Act XI of 1859, adverse possession commences to run only from the date of the sale. Appellant's property was put up for sale by the Collector in respect of the unpaid balance of kist of revenue payable in January 1912. It was found that the appellant had paid and the Treasury Officer of the Government had accepted the full amount towards the January kist. Subsequently however the Treasury Officer had appropriated the same to the first instalment of the kist payable in September 1901, with the result that an arrear was created in January kist for which the sale in question took place. Held, that the original appropriation could not be varied without the consent of the appellant, that there was nothing due in respect of the January kist and that the sale was therefore without jurisdiction. Under S. 6 of the Bengal Act (XI of 1859) notifications were issued for the sale of certain land for arrears of land revenue. Subsequently a certificate was filed under the Public Demands Recovery Act (I of 1895) for arrears of Poolbandi (embankment charges), in respect of the land. The amount due for arrear of land revenue was paid before the sale but not the Poolbandi charges. The Collector accepted the amount and ordered the sale to proceed in respect of Poolbandi charges without a notice as required by S. 5 of Act (XI of 1859). Held, that the sale was invalid. Although no formal order of exemption had been made under S. 18 of Act (XI of 1859), the Collector having acknowledged payment in full of the arrears of land revenue for which the sale was advertised and having elected to proceed under the certificate procedure for the Poolbandi charges, and directed a sale thereunder, he could not treat the areear under the certificate as an arrear of land revenue without notice to the parties under S. 5. ——Ss. 6, 10 and 11—Revenue sale—Notification—Object of—Specification of property—Ijmali sharer.

Act (XI of 1859) is a stringent enactment for the realisation of arrear of revenue, but at the same time it provides certain safeguards for the protection of the interests of the defaulter—amongst which are Ss. 5 and 6 for the issue of notification of sales. In a notification for sale for arrears of revenue under the Act, the specification of the property to be sold must be sufficiently definite and clear in itself to enable possible purchasers to know what they are invited to bid for without reference to information in the Collector's Office. On a sale of an ijmali share, the notification of sale was "Ijmali share which cannot be specified excluding the separate accounts." A list of the 148 separate accounts opened under Ss. 10 and 11 of the Act followed. Held, that the notification was insufficient and as substantial injury was caused thereby, the sale was invalid. BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT (XI of 1859), S. 13.

——S. 13—Collector's powers—Sale of estate.

The Collector can sell a revenue unit, whether estate or a share as a whole. He cannot separate it for the sake of realising arrears. (Jenkins, C. J. and Chatterjee, J.) GANGA PRASAD SINGH v. PARGASH SINGH. 16 C. L. J. 524= 16 I. C. 41=17 C. W. N. 844.

——S. 14—Sale of entire estate for arrears—Admissibility of entries in mahalwar register.

The sale of entire estate under this section for arrears due from part thereof which is separated and entered in a separate account in Collector's books is void. The sale of a share or particular arrears is void after the payment thereof. (Lord Shaw) MUTSADDI MIAN v. MAHOMED IDRIS. 34 I. C. 283=19 C. W. N. 764 (P. C.).

[On Appeal from 31 I. C. 743.]

——Ss. 14 and 37—Arrears due—Purchaser of entire estate—Rights of Annulment of intermediate tenures.

The purchaser of the entire estate sold under S. 14 of the arrears of Revenue due on "part of the estate" gets it free from all encumbrances. The words "arrears due on account of the same" mean entire arrears and also part of the arrears due on account of estate sold but not on account of the other estate. Only such portions of land as are actually covered by buildings, tanks, etc., can get the benefit of the exemption provided in exception 4. 9 C. W. N. 852; 12 C. W. N. 1029; 23 I. C. 17 foll.; 30 Cal. 498 not foll. (Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) JOGENDRA NARAIN RAY v. KIRAN CHANDRA RAY. 50 I. C. 406= 23 C. W. N. 315.

——S. 14—Arrears—What is.

It was found in a suit for annulment of a sale for arrears of revenue, that the estate consisted of two houses with revenue assessed proportionately payable by kists; and the June kist of one of the accounts was in arrears and the Collector ordered sale for the arears of March kist which was not due. Held, the sale was ultra vires and void and that the Collector ought to have closed all the separate accounts, before ordering sale of the entire estate. (Stephen and Chatterjee, JJ.) MUHAMMAD IDRIS v. MOTA SADDI MIAN. 31 I. C. 743 (Cal.).

——S. 14—Defaulting proprietor, if excluded from sales under—First depositor to be purchaser—Suit to set aside sale under S. 14—Injury—Onus.

Defaulting proprietors are not excluded from sales under S. 14 of the Act. The word 'other' in the section seems to be a mere inadvertance. The section was not intended to deprive the rights of the co-sharers inter se but merely to give them a chance of saving the estate and secure the payment of the revenue. The purchase is effected by payment of the arrears and the Collector is bound therefore to recognise the first depositor of the whole amount, or if there are more depositors than one those whose payments first amount to the total arrears due. Where the deft. has been formally declared purchaser under the section and possession delivered, it would be a manifest annulment of the sale, to take it away from him and to give it to the plff. (Coxe and Imam, JJ.) BAHARIA SAMBHO KOER v. HARI HAR PRASAD. 41 Cal. 1092= 24 I. C. 276=18 C. W. N. 1071.

A revenue sale does not ipso facto avoid incumbrances and under-tenures but only renders them voidable at the option of the purchaser. Notice need not be given to avoid an under-tenure before bringing a suit. The option may the exercised by the institution of the suit within the time allowed by law. On such a suit being instituted the tenure will be regarded as annulled from the date of suit and the purchaser is not entitled for the period antecedent to such suit to any sum in excess of what actually represents the rent payable by the tenure-holder of the first decree as damages for use and occupation. (Chatterjee and Mullick, JJ.) DARSAN SINGH v. BHAWANI KOER. 19 I. C. 974=17 C. W. N. 984.

——S. 25—Appeal, restoration of—Inherent powers.

All final Courts including Revenue Courts, have an inherent power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of Justice. A Commissioner of a division possesses the power to restore an appeal under S. 25 of the Bengal Revenue Sales Act which he has decided ex-parte 33 Cal. 1178 (P. C.) ref. (Moore, M. G.) D. N. RAY v. NALIN BEHARI. 46 I. C. 621 (Cal.)

——Ss. 25 and 26—Absence of arrears—Effect.

The Commissioner is authorized to annul a sale not conducted according to the provisions of the Act. A sale of an estate for arrears of revenue which are not existent is null and void. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) CHHAKAWRI v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 52 I. C. 990=1920 Pat. 1.

——S. 28—Certificate of sale—Evidence of title.

A certificate of sale granted under S. 28 of the Act is no conclusive evidence of title. Coxe, J.) RAM RATAN PUROHIT v. SIKDAR ALI. 14 I. C. 10 (Cal.).

——S. 29—Any person—Meaning of.

The words "any person who refuses to vacate can be removed by the Collector" refer to the former proprietors or persons claiming proprietary right through them and do not refer to under-tenure holders. (Chatterjee and Mullick, JJ.) DARSAN SINGH v. BHAWANI KOER. 19 I. C. 974=17 C. W. N. 984.

——Ss. 31 and 53—Revenue Sale—Prior encumbrances on property sold—Effect on—Right to sale proceeds—Purchase by recorded proprietor—Effect.

BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT (XI of 1859), S. 31.

S. 31 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859) does not transfer the charges, to which property sold at a revenue sale is subject, from the property to the sale proceeds. As the sale by the Government conveys a title free from encumbrances to the purchaser the mortgagees of the property sold are entitled to claim the same as creditors and such claims, in the order of priority, should be satisfied out of the sums in Court. In a case in which the property sold at a revenue sale is purchased by the recorded proprietor himself, the property is acquired under S. 53 of the Act, subject to all the encumbrances existing at the time of the sale which can therefore be enforced against the property. As regards the sale-proceeds however in such a case the recorded proprietor has all the rights given by S. 31 of the Act. (Lord Buckmaster.) TARINI CHARAN SARKAR v. BISHUNCHAND. 23 M. L. ———S. 31—Assignee of recorded proprietor—Right to surplus sale proceeds—Collector refusing to recognize assignee—Effect of—Right of assignee to sue for declaration—Lim. Act., Art S. 120.

An assignee of the recorded proprietors is not their representative and the Collector is justified in refusing to pay to such assignee claiming on his own behalf the money held in deposit on account of the recorded proprietors. 12 Cal. 359 ref. The Legislature did not contemplate that the title of unrecorded proprietors should be lost to the extent that they would not be entitled to receive the surplus sale proceeds even if they would establish in the Civil Court as against the recorded proprietors that they were entitled to the estate at the time of the sale. The assignee could sue for a declaration of title. No question of limitation arose in the case. If Art. 120 of the Lim. Act was held applicable the right to sue did not accrue till the right to obtain relief by way of declaration had been denied. ———Ss. 33 and 6—Annulment of sale—Irregularity—Publication in vernacular Gazette, if essential.

Omission to notify in the Vernacular Government Gazette circulating in the locality the sale of an estate of which the Government Revenue exceeds Rs. 500 is not an illegality which per se vitiates the sale under S. 33 of Act (XI of 1859). It is a sufficient compliance with para 2 of S. 6 of the Act, if the sale is notified in the Calcutta Gazette. (Lord Shaw.) SHEIKH SHARFUDDIN v. SAMANTHA RADHA CHARAN DAS. 46 Cal. 255 = 23 C. W. ———Ss. 33 and 58—Revenue sale—Notices of—Signature by Sub-Deputy Collector—Validity of—Binding by Collector—Illegality or irregularity.

Where in a revenue sale the Collector's servant formally opened the bidding with an offer of Re. 1 but the Collector himself never entered into competition, made no further bid and the sale was conducted fairly and there were several independent bidders. Held, that the Collector was not precluded by the initial bidding of Re. 1 from taking over the estate under S. 58 of the Revenue Sale Law. A sale held under the Revenue Sale Law is valid though the notices under Ss. 6 and 7 of the Act have been signed by a Sub-Deputy Collector instead of by the Collector or other officer authorised to hold the sale under the Act. To set aside a sale held under the Revenue Sale Law the party must show either want of jurisdiction or material irregularity resulting in substantial injury. (Woodroffe, Chitty and Huda, JJ.) AMRITA LAL ROY v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 35 C. L. J. 221.

———S. 33—Revenue sale—Suit to set aside—Grounds for.

In a suit to set aside a revenue sale the plff. cannot urge any ground which he did not take in his appeal to the Commissioner under S. 2. (N. R. Chatterjea and Newbould, JJ.) SUKLAL BANIKYA v. BINDU MINDHU. 47 I. C. 422 (Cal.).

S. 33 also applies to illegal sales held contrary to the excepted provisions. This principle does not apply if the property sold is not in arrear. An unauthorized sale by Collector does not affect proprietor's rights. 25 I.A. 151; 38 Cal. 537 (P.C.) Ref. (*Jenkins, C. ———Ss. 33 and 34—Applicability of—Sale annulled by a final decree of Civil Court.

S. 34 refers to cases brought before Civil Courts under S. 33 of the Act. The two sections must be taken as being closely related to each other and the rule of limitation as applying only to suits under S. 33. The proprietor of an estate appealed to the Commissioner of Revenue against the order of the Collector selling his estate for arrears of revenue under the Act. The Commissioner by order dated 21-3-1900 set aside sale but on application of the auction purchaser reviewed his order and confirmed the sale. The proprietor filed a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that the reviewing order was ultra vires and that he had no power of reviow. In the Privy Council his contention was upheld. Held, the judgment of the Privy Council was not a final decree of a Civil Court. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) BAIZ NATH GOENKA v. NAND KUMAR SINGH. 28 I. C. 876=19 C. W. N. 464.

——S. 33—If applies to sales under S. 14.

S. 33 applies to sales under S. 14 and in the absence of injury to the plff. a suit to set aside a sale under S. 14 does not lie. 21 Cal. 844 foll. 21 Cal. 70 (P. C.) ref. to. (Coxe and Imam, JJ.) BAHURIA SAMBHO KOER v. HARI HAR PRASAD. 41 Cal. 1092=24 I. C. 276=18 C. W.N. 1071.

——S. 34—Suit for relief by third party—Not within the section.

S. 34 of the Act applies merely to the case of an owner who after default in payment of the revenue rent of his property by a suit succeeds in setting aside the sale held under the Act, and who has applied for and withdrawn the surplus purchase money lodged to the Collectorate under such sale for his own benefit. It has no application to a suit instituted by a third party against an auction purchaser at a revenue sale e.g., a suit by the reversioners, in respect of a claim for relief not provided for by the Act itself. (Mullick and Atkinson, JJ.) BANSI SINGH v. SHEONANDAN THAKUR. 52 I. C. 692 (Pat.).

——S. 36—No applicability to person claiming through certified purchaser.

The section ought to be construed strictly and it does not apply when a person is not a certified purchaser himself but a person claiming through a certified purchaser. (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) SRISH CHANDRA BANERJEE v. PROTAP CHANDRA DAS. 62 I. C. 662 (Cal.).

——S. 36—Object of—Benami purchaser—Third party—Power of, to question—Appeal, dismissal of—Other matters.

Section 36 prevents only a true owner from disputing the title of his benamidar (certified purchaser) but a third party can enforce his claim against the true owner in respect of the property alleging the benami purchaser. In an appeal by a defendant who is found to be benamidar the discussion of other matters affecting the right of respondent need not be gone into. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) JAGABANDHU DUTT v. RAJANI KANTA PAL. 37 I. C. 790 (Cal.).

The section does not bar a suit for possession of lands in a Taluq purchased at a Revenue Sale in the benamidar's name. The section should not be liberally construed. (Carnduff and Chapman, JJ.) MATHURANATH GHOSHAL v. RATNESHWAR SEN. 23 I. C. 917 (Cal.).

——S. 36—Certified purchaser—Suit for specific performance of contract against.

S. 36 of the Act is no bar to a suit by the plaintiff against the certified purchaser for specific performance of a contract to transfer the property to the plaintiff. S. 36 being a penal section ought to be strictly construed and not liberally so as to assist the perpetration of fraud. (Mukerjee and Holmwood, JJ.) MONMOTHA NATH v. GIRISH CHANDRA. 18 I. C. 100=17 C. W. N. 75.

——Ss. 36 and 37—Construction.

Section 36 of the Revenue Sale Law is a penal provision and should be strictly construed as prohibiting suits only against certified purchasers referred to therein and not against his representatives. (Chitty and N. R. Chatterjea, JJ.) JADU NATH v. RAM NARAIN. 11 I. C. 434 (Cal.).

——S. 37—Patni—Creation of, by auction purchaser.

The mere creation of the Patni by an auction purchaser would not by itself be an indication to the under-tenure-holders that the option to annul the under-tenures had in fact been exercised. (Greaves and Ghose, JJ.) KULA MIAH v. NANU MIAH. 68 I. C. 449=1923 Cal. 195.

Where at a revenue sale under Act XI of 1859 a person purchases an entire estate is entitled thereafter to eject under-tenants with the exception of raiyats with rights of occupancy at fixed rents or at rents which can be assessed according to fixed rules under the laws in force. The "right of occupancy" in S. 37 proviso might be acquired under laws promulgated since 1859 and is not limited to the right under the Rent Recovery Act. (Mitra and Geidt, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA ROY CHOWDHURY v. ASMAN BIBI. 35 C. L. J. 212.

——S. 37—'Settlement' refers to contract with Government Bajeapti Taluq.

The word 'settlement' in S. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law refers not to the Permanent Settlement of 1793 but to the contract with Government. In the case of a Bajeapti Taluq, the contract with Government is made when revenue is assessed thereon and is transformed into revenue paying estate liable to be sold for its arrears. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) MOKBUL ALI SADAGAR v. BASARAT ALI. 66 I. C. 911= 34 C. L. J. 485.

——S. 37—Suit for annulment of encumbrance in part.

S. 37 of the Bengal Lnnd Rev. Sales Act must be strictly construed. Lands purchased free of all enumbrances at a revenue sale were settled with plff. in sadar putni taluka right by a patta under which the plff. had the rights of an auction purchaser to avoid or annul all encumbrances. Deft. held a tenure which comprised lands included in the plff.'s patta as well as other lands. In a suit by the piff. to set aside the deft.'s tenure; Held, that as all the lands of the deft.'s tenure were not included in the plff.'s sadar putni, the plff. was not entitled to annul the tenure in part. 5 C. L. J. 264 foll. (Chaudhury and Cuming, JJ.) MAHOMED GURAN CHOUKIDAR v. BASARAT ALI. 55 I. C. 645 (Cal.).

——S. 37—Permanent tenure-holders if entitled to protection—Under-tenure created, by Government—Annulment—Regulation (VII of 1882.)

BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT (XI of 1859), S. 37.

The words "time of the permanent settlement" in the first exception to S. 37 of Act (XI of 1859) do not mean the date of the first permanent settlement of 1793. 24 W. R. 476 and 10 C. W. N. 503 foll. It is only under the first exeception to S. 37 of Act (XI of 1859) that a permanent tenure-holder at fixed rates can claim protection. An under-tenure created by the Government can be annulled under S. 37. A settlement under clause 2 of S. 10 of Reg. (VII of 1822) does not create an under-tenure holder but a mufassal settlement holder. If a joint settlement is made under Cls. (2) and (3) of S. 10 of Regn. (VII of 1882) all the malguzars are jointly responsible for the payment of the Government revenue although the mahal is under the management of one of them as an agent or a sadar mulguzar. The entire tenure is liable to sale unless there is a provision to the contrary in the settlement. 7 C. L. J. 461 foll. (*Miller, C. ———S. 37—Revenue sale—Occupancy right—Transferee in possession for less than 12 years.

The interest of an occupancy raiyat is protected from annulment at the instance of the purchaser of an estate at a revenue sale. A transferee of an occupancy holding, who has been in possession of the holding for more than twelve years prior to the institution of the suit for ejectment by the landlord may acquire a claim to stay on the land. ———S. 37—Proviso—Raiyats holding at fixed rates, if have protected interest.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates are persons having a protected interest within S. 37 proviso of the Act. (Fletcher and Smither, JJ.) KALI PRASAD v. RASH BEHARI. 46 I. C. 254 (Cal.).

A person who has already acquired an occupancy right before the passing of the B. T. Act does not by obtaining a grant of a fixed rent lose that occupancy right, and such a person is protected from ejectment under S. 37 of the Act. (*N. R. ———S. 37—Revenue sale—Annulment of incumbrances.

A sale for arrears of revenue does not ipso facto avoid incumbrances or under-tenures, but only renders them voidable at the option of the purchaser. It is therefore necessary that the purchaser must by some unequivocal act indicates his intention to avoid under-tenures if he desires to do so. A formal written notice to the tenure-holder would certainly be the most convenient mode or doing it. (N. R. Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SAHODORA MUDALI v. SARBOSOBHA DASI. 42 Cal. 638=20 C. A portion of a taluk created before the Permanent Settlement was transferred and subsequently held in proportionate jama under a name different from the original taluk. The subsequent transfer and descent thereof can be traced from the original taluk. Held, the portion so transferred was protected under S. 37 of Act (XI of 1859.) ———S. 37—Settlement—Meaning of.

For the purposes of S. 37 the word 'settlement' in the section must be taken to mean the permanent settlement of the estate and not the year 1793 in which the greater portion of Bengal was permanently settled. (Chapman and Newbould, JJ.) AHMED ALI SADAGAR v. ABBAS ALI. 19 I. C. 872 (Cal.).

In a suit for possession of undivided half share on the ground that it was included within a taluk purchased by plaintiff at a revenue sale in which the deft. pleaded that the share was part of Howla which was a protected interest. Coxe, J. held, that plaintiff must show that the lands were not included in Howla and remanded the suit. Held, reversing his judgment that the case was concluded by the finding of fact by the Lower Appellate Court and that defts. had failed to prove that the disputed land appertained to the Howla. ——S. 37, Excep. 4—Scope of—Garden on land—Improvement.

The fact that a garden was made on a piece of land long before its sale for arrears of revenue would not make it a land "on which a garden has been made" and it does not fall within the exception to S. 37 of Act and is liable to be annuled (XI of 1859). Per Beachcroft, J. S. 37 (4) contemplate improvements or works of a permanent character and they are protected irrespective of whether the lease was or was not given for the purpose of the work in question. 23 I. C. 917 (Cal.).

——S. 39—Howla—Suit to avoid.

In a suit to avoid Howlas under this section defts. must prove something more than the existence of Howlas i.e., the lands in suit are the lands relating to the Howlas, that they belong to defts. or the defts. are in their possession for at least a very long period. An under-raiyat who has remained in occupation of a certain plot of land and has cultivated it for more than 12 years can acquire a right of occupancy under S. 6 of Bengal Act (VIII of 1869). The distinction between a raiyat and an under-raiyat was not recognised by Bengal Act (VIII of 1869). Under that Act the term "raiyat" included all classes of tenants who were actual cultivators of the soil. It was immaterial whether such a cultivator held his tenancy under a middleman or under a person who, though an occupancy raiyat originally had placed another tenant in possession of the lands of his tenancy for purposes of cultivation, unless such sub-lease, was "for a term year by year". Even under the B. T. Act an under-raiyat may by custom acquire a right of occupancy. (Huda, J.) PRASANNA KUMAR SIL v. KAMINI SUNDARI DASI. 55 I.C. 231 (Cal.).

A tenant who not being a cultivator with occupancy rights, holds over without the landlord's assent, acquires no interest in the land and can be ejected forthwith under S. 53 of the Act and the mere fact of the landlord's toleration of the tenant's holding over is not necessarily conclusive of acceptance of tenancy in future. BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT (III of 1884).

———S. 146—Negligence—Injury—Cause of action—Bengal Municipal Act (III of 1884), S. 363.

In order to give rise to a fresh cause of action new injury (and not the development of an old one) is sufficient. The amputation of the leg, in the case was treated as a mere development. Hence the date of the first injury and not that of the developed one is the day from which the period of limitation is to be computed.

The negligence of public bodies, such as the Dt. Board and Municipality, in the discharge of their duties imposed by the statute falls under the purview of the above section. S. 146, Bengal Local Self-Government Act provides a period of limitation for a suit against the members of the Dt. The word 'circumstances' in S. 85 of the Act is equivalent to 'means' so that the taxation should be according to the means and property of the rate-prayer within the Municipality. 35 Cal. 859, Foll. The assessment of the value of the circumstances and property of the rate-payer for the purpose of S. 85 of the Act cannot be done by the Courts but only by the machinery provided by the Act itself. The non-disclosure by the Municipality of the basis of rate-payer's assessment, raises a prima facie case that elements other than the circumstances and property have been taken into consideration and that the assessment is illegal. ——S. 101—Waterworks — Storage and balancing tank is not machinery.

The Corporation of Calcutta owned a reservoir and pumps for the supply of water to Calcutta. They erected a large tank called a balancing tank supported on columns so as to give it elevation. This tank could be filled by pumping from the reservoir, and when desired water could be released from it into the main supply pipe nearer Calcutta than the reservoir. The water so released flowed through the pipe by force of gravity; it not only increased the supply by its own volume, but also accelerated the velocity of the whole body of water passing through the supply pipe. The tank enabled the appellants to increase the supply during part of the day when the hourly consumption exceeded the capacity of the reservoir and pumps:—Held, that balancing tank was not "machinery" within S. 101 of the Bengal Municipal Act. ——Ss. 209 and 353—Agreement with Municipality—Imposition of conditions is not necessarily illegal.

It is open to a Municipality by a requisition under S. 209 of the Bengal Municipal Act, to compel a person to erect a fence by the side of a tank. The person so bound can validly transfer to the Municipality the duty by conditions entered into by the latter with the former.

The language of S. 209 of the Beng. Mun. Act, is only indicative of this, that there is power in the Municipality to require a person to cause a fence to be erected by the side of a tank. But, because the power is existent in the Municipality by virtue of statutory provisions, it does not follow that the Municipality cannot accept conditions imposed by a person when he made a free gift of certain land to the Municipality. There is nothing in the Municipal Act itself which can remotely suggest that the Municipality is incompetent to enter into a binding engagement of this description. If that is so, the Municipality was held in the circumstances of the particular case, not competent to require him to cause a fencing to be erected at his own cost. (Ghose and Cuming, JJ.) ——S. 224—Drain—Order for removal of—Power of Municipality—Estoppel.

The Municipal Commissioners have no power under S. 224 or any other section of the Act to require the owner or occupier of a building to remove a drain in the building not being a branch drain nor one leading to a public sewer. Consent to an ultra vires order does not estop plff. from questioning it. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) GOPAL MISSER v. KERAT CHAND. 20 I.C. 358=20 C L.J. 138.

A channel for passage of water is not a drain unless it is shown that offensive matter passes through it and cesspool is pit into which water is discharged from drain as defined above and not any channel. Pits for collecting rain water and rice water are not cesspools and cannot be removed or closed by Municipality under S. 224. (Roe and Jwala Prasad, J.) The erection of a new verandha, in the place of an old one, is liable to be demolished under S. 237 of the Act, if, in contravention of Municipal sanction. A Municipal Council has no power to sanction a building with restrictions unless it has made rules for restriction. ——Ss. 237, 240, 241—Erection of boundary wall is not a material alteration and cannot be prohibited.

A material alteration or enlargement of any building, under S. 240 of the Act means erection of anything on a site attached or detached from any building standing on it, so as to alter the structure of the building on the site and therefore the erection of a boundary wall is not a material alteration or enlargement under S. 240. Consequently the Commissioners have no power to make a by-law under S. 241 prohibiting the erection of any such boundary wall within 5 feet of any public road. (Dass and Ross, JJ.) The words "erect or re-erect," in S. 240 of the Act do not necessarily mean build or re-build an entire house from its foundation. It depends upon the circumstances of each case. Pulling down and then putting up the whole of a balcony is not a "re-erection" within the meaning of S. 240. (Chamier, C.J., Chapman and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT (III of 1884), S. 290.

S. 261 of the Bengal Municipal Act is wide enough to be applied to all places within Municipal limits or the entire area within the Municipal boundaries. The words such local limits as may be fixed may be applied to the whole of the Municipal area. When the resolution of the Municipality had been lost or destroyed and secondary evidence of its terms was given under S. 65 of the Evidence Act, the presumption that official acts had been regularly performed under S. 114 (e) could not supply the deficiency in proof for as a rule the contents of documents could not be proved inferentially. In the absence of proof that any local limits had been found by the Municipality under S. 261 of the Act no one could be convicted of using without a license certain premises within the Municipality for storing hides in contravention of S. 261. It is doubtful if the penultimate clause in S. 261 empowers the commissioners to do more than with hold the license in individual cases since each case must be considered on its own merits. ———Valuation of suit—Valuation by plaintiff may be challenged by defendant or amended by Court, but if not so done cannot be questioned in second appeal for the fist time.

Although ordinarily the valuation as made by the plaintiff is to be accepted, the plaintiff is not at liberty to make an arbitrary valuation with a view to alter the forum, either of the trial of the suit or the adjudication of the appeal. The valuation as made by the plaintiff may be challenged either by the Court of its own motion or by the defendant. In either event, there is a determination of the question of valuation. If, on such investigation, is transpires that the subject-matter of the suit has been undervalued or over valued the Court may call upon the plaintiff to amend the valuation of the suit. If the plaintiff does not carry out the order of the Court, the consequence described in O. 7, R. 11, followed. This is the penalty for persistence in under valuation. If the order of the Court is carried out, the statement of valuation for purposes of jurisdiction or court-fees are both amended, and the amended valuation thereupon becomes the valuation of the suit. When S. 31 of the Bengal Civil Courts Act refers to the value of the original suit, the reference is to the valuation as made by the plaintiff subject to such amendment as may have been made under orders of the Trial Court. The Legislature did not mean by the expression "the value of the original suit" in S. 21 the real value of the subject-matter of the original suit regardless of what may have happened in the Trial Court. Where the plaintiff stated the value of the subject-matter of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction as also of court-fees at Rs. 3,600 and the defendant did not challenge this statement and the trial proceeded on the assumption that the valuation made by the plaintiffs was correct, held, that it was not competent to the defendant after they had been defeated in two successive courts to change the forum of appeal by the assertion that the value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds Rs. 10,000—in other words, that if the suit had been properly valued that appeal would have lain to this court and not to the court of the District Judge. 34 C. 954; 23 C. 536; 18 A.L. BENGAL PATNI REGULATION (VIII of 1819.)

——Patni—Rules relating to.

A Patni taluq is a permanent, heritable and transferable tenure. A Zemindar can create this tenure over the whole or part of his estate. A Patni taluqdar has a corresponding right to let the whole or part of his to subordinate tenure-holders called Darpatnidars. This process of sub-infeudation may be carried further down, to several lower degrees. The Zemindar can apply to the Collector to sell the Taluq for arrears of rent and the sale cancels all under-tenures. But the under-tenure-holders can pay the arrears of rent into the Collector's Court and be put in possession of the Superior tenure in respect of which default has been made. The position of the Zamindar applies also to other degrees of tenure-holders in respect of their rights as against their respective under-tenure-holders.

Bengal Regulation (VIII of 1819) is a self-contained enactment and its provisions are not subject to those of the B.T. Act. (Ameer Ali, J.) ARTHUR HENRY FORBES v. MAHARAJ BAHADUR SINGH.

BENGAL PATNI REGULATION (VIII of 1819).

——Creation of patni over the head of another is illegal—Assignment of right by patnidar to Zemindar—Rights of assignee—Sale of assignee's interest—Right to object—Creation of fresh patni—Effect of.

The idea of a patni being created over another patni is absolutely foreign to the scheme of the Patni Regulation and the position resulting therefrom would be anomalous. In the Patni Regulation a patnidar has been given certain rights as against the Zemindars. The patnidar is described as talukdar of the first degree and a tenure cannot be created over a talukdar of the first degree. There can be no objection to the assignment of the right to the Zemindar to receive rent from the patnidar which he is entitled to get under the patni settlement. In such cases the assignee of the Zemindar's interest would be entitled to recover rent from the patnidar by virtue of the assignment. The whole scheme of the Patni Regulation is that the patnidar is the only person whose interest could be sold under the Regulation and not the interest of the so-called sub-patnidar. Where a sale under the Regulation is held without jurisdiction even a person not affected by it could question it. (Walmsley and Ghose, JJ.) ——Proceedings under are only against the tenure—Sale under the regulation—Validity impeached.

Proceedings taken by the Zemindar under the Regulation for recovery of his dues are not personally against the patnidar but against the tenure. Where a sale held under the Regulation is impeached, the Zemindar is not prevented from recovering the arrears for the subsequent periods by summary procedure, till the proceedings impeaching the sale are over. ———Non-registry of purchaser's name at landlord's Sheristah—Effect.

In execution of a rent decree against the patnidar, a mortgaged Patni was sold and purchased by his son who did not annul the mortgage. In a suit on the mortgage the mortgagor's son was joined and a decree obtained. In execution of the mortgage decree the decree-holder himself purchased the Patni. The interest acquired by the purchaser at the rent sale was subject to the liability under the mortgage decree, and overridden by the interest acquired by the mortgagee in execution sale. The fact that the purchase was not registered at the Zemindar's sheristah would not affect the mortgagee purchaser's title until the Zemindar proceeded under Reg. (VIII of 1819). Fletcher and Richardson, JJ). BARODA CHARAN DHAR v. ERSHAD KHAN. 38 I.C. 520 (Cal.).

———Patni sale—Creation of new tenancy—Merger.

A purchaser under the Patni Regulation (VIII of 1819) is entitled to eject tenants from their holdings when they have no protected right. There is no merger where the purchaser possesses the land as a third person wholly distinct from the patnidars, although he happens to be the son of them. The purchaser cannot obtain the original holding before the patni was created, though he is in possession of the same holding. (Holmwood and Mullick, JJ.) M. G. ———Under-tenures avoided.

Per N. R. Chatterjea, J. (Smither, J. contra). Not only can a patni tenure be sold under B.T. Act, but decrees for rent for earlier periods can be enforced against the surplus sale proceeds of a patni tenure when sold in execution of a decree for rent under the B.T. Act.

Per Smither, J. Under S. 3, cl. (3) of the Patni Regulation, the Zemindar has the right to hold the patni answerable for any arrears of rent, but only subject to the limitation specified in S. 17, cl. 3 of the Regulation under which if the zemindar should have failed to avail himself of the process which the Regulation provides, arrears of a period before the current year or the immediately expiring year, become mere personal debts and his charge in respect of such arrears is time barred. The zemindar has therefore no charge for the amounts covered by two previous decrees for rent upon the surplus proceeds of a sale in execution of a later decree for rent. The Words "public auction" in S. 3, cl. (3) of the Regulation should be taken to apply to any "public auction" and not limited to mean an auction under the Regulation, if there can be any public auction of a patni other than a public auction under the Regulation. When the Patni Regulation mentions Bengali months and dates throughout, the legislature intends that a day is to be reckoned in the manner prevalent in Bengal, that is, from sunrise to sunrise. Payment to stop the patni sale may be made into Court, either by a subordinate talukdar under S. 13 of the Patni Regulation or by a patnidar who has applied for a summary investigation under S. 14, cl. That seems to be the natural meaning of the first paragraph of the first clause and that construction is borne out by the emphatic language of the 2nd paragraph. No transfer is to bar the indefeasible right of the Zemindar unless it is made with the condition that it shall not amount merely to an incumbrance and such condition can only be annexed where express authority for that purpose has been received from the Zemindar or superior

A purchaser at a sale under Regn. Consequently a claim of rent by such a purchaser is not barred by res judicata by reason of the failure of a suit for rent by a previous patnidar on the ground that the relationship of landlord and tenant between the then plff. and the deft. was not established. 17 C.W.N. 340, foll.; 25 Cal. 167, 26 Cal. 460, ref.; 19 Cal. 787 and 22 Cal. 244, ref.

The purchaser though a stranger is only entitled to be indemnified against all loss at the charge of the Zemindar or other persons at whose instance the sale may have been made. BENGAL PATNI SALE.

——— Setting aside—Creditors of defaulting patnidar drawing out sale proceeds—Liability to refund.

The Zamindar, the plaintiff brought a suit for Patni-rent. The Patni was disposed off by Regulation VIII of 1819, as the past rents were in arrears. One Peary Mohan Roy bought it. Out of the surplus sale proceeds in this transaction some of the defendants Nos. 1 and 9 took a specified sum from the Court. These were the creditors of the defaulting patnidars. The latter sued in the meantime to cancel the sale and it was so done. The Zamindar had to pay back to the purchaser but he brought a suit to realise that amount from defendants 1 and 9 who had taken the amount out of Court.

It was held, taking all facts of the suit into consideration that the plaintiff can sue defendants Nos. 1 and 9. They were tacitly bound to return the money to the Court. They failed in doing this and hence the Zamindar was obliged to pay again to the auction purchaser which otherwise he need not have paid. It was properly the business of defendants Nos. 1 and 9 to give back the surplus sale proceeds to the Court. (Rampini and Woodroffe, JJ.) Land whether cultivated or waste at the time of the settlement, but included in a permanently settled estate, are exempt from further assessment under Bengal Regulation I of 1793. But this protection extends only to lands actually in existence at the time of the settlement and specifically included in the estate as settled.

Churs formed after the decennial settlement within the limits of the zemindari are to be treated as unsettled under Bengal Regulation II of 1890, even though the river bed from which the churs have been thrown up was the property of the zemindar at the time of the settlement and the jumma was imposed on the zemindari as a whole. When the right of Government to assess certain lands claimed as Lakhiraj with land revenue appeared to have accrued in 1793 the case being governed by sub-s 2 of S. 2 until it was repealed, so far as regards Assam, by S. 28 of Assam Regulation I of 1886. Held, that the end of sixty years from 1793, Governments' right to assess the land with land revenue was time barred. ——Foreclosure — Service of notice — Mortgagee, when absolute owner.

Where upon an application for foreclosure, proceedings are held under Reg. (XVII of 1806) the title of the mortgagee becomes absolute upon the expiry of the year of grace, although no suit is brought by the mortgagee for declaration of his right as absolute owner. It lies on the mortgagee to prove that notice of foreclosure has been duly served on the mortgagors. Where due service of notice had not been effected upon all the mortgagors individually held the mortgage had not been foreclosed, nor had the mortgagee acquired the absolute ownership of the property. ——Scope of.

Where a mortgage by conditional sale governed by Regulation (XVII of 1806) has not provided for possession by the mortgagee, the latter can obtain possession only by foreclosure proceedings under the Regulation. The limitation for a suit for foreclosure under the regulation ———Foreclosure of Mortgage—Demand, if necessary—Effect of delay—Minor—Service of notice on relation.

A demand need not immediately precede the application for foreclosure. The delay between the demand and application does not prejudice the mortgagor. But it gives him on the contrary, a further opportunity to arrange for payment. The service of notice on minor's relation with whom he lived and who happened to be the mortgagor is sufficient, especially if the minor and the relation were members of joint Hindu family. Notice to subsequent mortgagee is necessary only if there is complete assignment. (Scott-Smith and Wilberforce, JJ.) GARDHAN DAS v. RUKMAN.

———Proceedings under—Object of.

Proceedings under Reg. (17 of 1806) are purely ministerial devised to give warning to the mortgagor of the impending disappearance of his right to redeem the mortgage and avoid a conditional sale and cannot in themselves confer a new period of limitation, for a claim which would be otherwise barred. ———Mortgage by conditional sale—Defects in notice of foreclosure.

Illegibility of the seal of the District Court on the foreclosure notice, or the ambiguity in mentioning the date of the deed where it has not led to any misconception on the part of the mortgagor or omission of words describing the mortgage property which causes no misconception in the mind of the mortgagor are not defects fatal to the validity of a notice of foreclosure as required by Ss. 7 and 8 of the Regulation. Notice proceedings under a conditional sale clause in a mortgage deed are invalid and of no effect, if no attempt is made to proceed against all the heirs of the mortgagor, if notice does not specify amount due by the mortgagor within the year of grace and, if no reference is

In cases of Bai-bil-wafa, even when Regulation (XVII of 1806) was not in force in the Punjab, the mortgagee could not without any formalities convert his mortgage into a completed sale but must either bring a foreclosure suit or at least make some sort of reference to the Civil Court with a view to issue notice to the mortgagor. The regulation (17 of 1806) does not apply to shops. (Johnstone and Chevis, JJ.) SARNIMAL v. MURLIDHAR.

———Anomalous mortgage—Title of mortgagee is not complete without foreclosure.

Where there is an anomalous mortgage, viz., a combined mortgage by conditional sale and usufructuary mortgage then under the Regulation the mortgage was bound to institute proceedings for foreclosure within 12 years and the time for foreclosure does not arise till the period stipulated in the proviso for redemption had expired. A mortgagee's title must be held to be incomplete until it was confirmed by a regular suit under the regulation. Where before the expiry of the 12 years the T.P. Act came into force then the mortgage would be subject to the provisions of S. 60 of the T.P. Act. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) RUPA BAI v. RODBA.

———Foreclosure—Delivery of possession by mortgagor to mortgagee operates as a surrender.

A mortgagee of the year 1875 provided that on default of payment of the money due within 2 years the mortgage would operate as a sale. After the expiry of the period the mortgagee applied for foreclosure under Bengal Regn. 17 of 1806 and a notice was issued under S. 82 of Act X of 1877. After the expiry of the period of one year's grace, the case was consigned to the records. Thereafter the mortgagor delivered possession of the property to the mortgagee without process of Court and the mortgagee remained in possession. Held that the delivery of possession by the mortgagor and the mutation of names in favour of the mortgagee operated as a surrender of the equity of redemption on foot of the foreclosure proceedings. Since the mortgagee's is n possession in pursuance of the foreclosure proceedings and not as purchaser the surrender did not require registration under Act. X of 1877. (Kanhaya Lal, J.C.) ———S. 1—Foreclosure — Observance of formalities must be proved by the mortgagee.

It is settled law that the Court will not presume that all the formalities required by Regulation XVII of 1806 in proceedings for foreclosure have been observed, but the mortgagee must prove affirmatively the due performance of every necessary condition.

The non-existence of the notice does not relieve the mortgagee of the burden of proving that the notice satisfied the requirements of Regulation XVII of 1806. (Martineau and Brasher, JJ.) MUNSHI RAM v. NAURANGA.

———S. 7—Notice to mortgagor.

S. 7 provides either for payment or tender to the mortgagor for deposit in Court, and a notice which simply informs the mortgagor that he must pay the money within the year and says nothing of the alternatives of tenders and deposits in Court is misleading. The words legal representatives in S. 7 includes any person who is interested in protecting the estate and includes a purchaser of equity redemption of a part of the property. The words 'amount due' used in the proviso to S. 7 refer to the earlier portion of the section and denote the "sum lent" under the mortgage-deed plus interest due thereon if the mortgage is without possession but do not include costs of improve-

Regn. XXIX of 1814 does not apply to Kharagpur Ghatwalis. One of the main distinctions between Ghatwals of the Birbhum and of the Kharagpur type is that the former are inalienable except with the consent of Government by whom the settlements were made and to whom revenue is paid direct, whereas the latter are alienable subject to the consent of the landlord to whom the rent or revenue is paid. The Regulation of 1814 applies to the former only.

BENGAL REGULATION (II of 1819). S. 103 B.

The incidents attaching to a Ghatwali of the Kharagpur type as evidenced in the case are: (1) that it is impartible, and permanent, (2) that it descends by lineal primogeniture, and (3) that it is alienable at least with the consent of the Zemindar. Unless there be some peculiar feature inherent in Ghatwali tenure which prevents the operation of the Mitakshara rule of succession in the case of impartible property, the same rule would apply. In a Mitakshara family being in commensality the inheritance even of impartible estates is confined to male members to the exclusion of females, unless the estate is the separate or self-acquired property and normal in the course of succession to ghatwali property is not different from that which regulates succession to other impartible property. Neither in 1838, when the summary settlement was made nor in 1839, when the three mauza Amarpore Jabar, Amarpur Roop and Jabarpar Khas under the Permanent Settlement were amalgamated and named Amar Jabar, was any claim to hold free of rent on account of Malikanadari right put forward by the predecessors of the defendants. The investigations in 1839 were carried with complete thoroughness under Act II of 1819, in the final proceedings the revenue was reduced from Rs. 351 to Rs. 225. It was claimed on behalf of defendants, that the reduction was due to their Malikanadari rights. In 1840 in the Thakbast map and Khasra entries, which have no evidential value, were made by the Amin before the preparation of the regular survey of Amarpur Jabar to the effect that certain persons held Malikanadari (co-proprietary) right in mauza Amarpur Roop and held land free of rent. No objection was raised on behalf of the landlord, as the rent was collected by the Thikkadar. The claim on behalf of the defendants respondents was for the first time put forward in 1877 but it was resisted and disallowed on the ground that no such Mauza existed. The claim was again put forward, when the matter came for the purpose of cadestral survey, held, it lies upon those who claim to hold the lands free of the obligation to pay rent to show by satisfactory evidence that they have been relieved of this obligation, either by contract or by some old grant recognised by Government. 12 Moo. If it is proved that a river within the ambit of the zemindari was never a public navigable river, the onus which lies on the Zemindar to show that its bed was included within the limits of his permanently settled estate is discharged or shifted. The bed of a river included in a permanently settled estate is not different from other waste lands included in the estate; whatever changes may have occurred from natural or artificial causes and however the land might have improved in value, Government is not entitled to additional revenue for such lands. When the bed of such a river silts up and becomes fit for cultivation neither Regn. II of 1819 nor Regn. IX of 1847 authorizes the revenue authorities to assess the lands with revenue. Quære. Whether upon the enactment of the Act (IX of 1847) the limitation provided by S. 24 of Regn. ———S. 4 (1)—Accretion to Tenants' holding—Bed of the river forming property of landlord—Tenant gets benefit of accretion.

Per Dawson Miller, C.J. and Jwala Prasad, J. The first clause of S. 4 of Bengal Regn. XI of 1825 applies clearly both to the case of a superior landlord, who holds from the Crown and to the case of the holder of a subordinate estate or tenure holding from a landlord intermediate between himself and the Crown and is limited in each case to accretions from the lands of the person from whom he holds and to whom revenue in the one case and rent in the other is payable. In the case of a superior landlord the person from whom he holds is the Crown and no one else. In such a case it is only where the Crown is the proprietor of the accreted lands that the section comes into operation. To hold otherwise and permit a landlord to acquire in this manner a proprietary right in the land of his neighbour, with whom he has no relationship such as that of a tenant to his landlord, would be going outside the scope and intention of the section and permitting what in effect would be confiscation of another man's land. This consideration does not apply where the claim is by a tenant against land of his landlord, a claim which by the proviso to cl. (1) of S. 4 is limited to a right of property similar to that possessed by the tenant in the tenure to which the land may become annexed, and which by the same proviso carries with it the liability to pay an increase of rent. 13 M.I.A. 467 Rel.; 1 P.L.J. 536; 1 P.L.T. 229, dist.

Per Mullick, J.: Bengal Regn. XI of 1825 does not provide for lands in a large and navigable river the bed of which is the property of an individual or those in a small and shallow river the bed of which is not the property of an individual. The Regulation is not exhaustive. It is subject to rules of equity and justice. Therefore land gained from the river bed by reformation in situ or otherwise will if it can be identified belong to the owner of the bed, except when otherwise expressly provided by the Regulation. This rule will preclude a tenant from acquiring a right of tenancy in an accretion from a river bed which was not the property of his landlord before emergence. 2 C.L.J. 185; 11 W.R. 115, Ref. (Stephen Chatterjea and Mullick, JJ.) JUMLA SINGH v. E.G. KINGSBY. 21 I.C. 224 = 17 C.W.N. 1201.

Section 109 refers to a case of a single execution-creditor and a single judgment-debtor and does not specifically refer to one of joint and several decree against many judgment-debtors in which case the execution creditor can proceed against some, all or one judgment-debtor at his choice. The important provision of the section is that before proceeding against the immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, he must first proceed against his person or moveable property. The execution creditor can under the Act proceed against the immoveable property of some of the judgment debtors under money decree, not one for arrears of rent, if he has previously proceeded against their person or moveable property although he did not yet proceed against the moveable property of others. But he must proceed first against moveable before immoveable. It matters little if the judgment-debtor got another moveable in the meantime after the first was exhausted. An application to proceed against the person of the judgment-debtor is not the condition precedent to maintain one against his immoveable property. The true sense of Section 109 is that an execution creditor cannot ignore any moveable property of the judgment-debtor before proceeding against his immoveable; the judgment-debtor need not prove that he holds moveables in the district sufficient to satisfy the claim completely. As a decree must be self-contained and executed as it stands so a decree-holder cannot take out execution for interest under the decree which did not incorporate the payment of interest according to the terms of the Solenamah the basis of the decree; but he can apply for its amendment. BENGAL RENT RECOVERY (SALE OF UNDER TENURES) ACT (VIII of 1865), S. 6.

BENGAL RENT RECOVERY (SALE OF UNDER TENURES) ACT (VIII of 1865).

S. 4 makes it essential that in order that sale may be free from encumbrances under S. 16, the decree under execution should be one for arrears of rent due in respect of the under-tenure. The rent is regarded as due not from the person against whom the decree is obtained but in respect the tenure. (21 W.R. 94, ref.) Therefore if the landlord seeks to recover not merely the arrears due but additional sum not realizable in respect of that tenure, the purchaser does not get the right under S. 16. Such a decree though obtained in respect of arrears of rent of two tenures operates as a decree for money when any one tenure is brought to sale. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.). KANTA LAIK v. LACHMAN OJHA. 17 I.C. 165 = 16 C.L J. 197.

Under the Bengal Tenancy Act the question of the status of a tenant is not without importance and it would introduce confusion into the administration of the Act to say that if a holding be leased by the landlord for the purpose of cultivation first to one ryot and then to another the second ryot would be entitled to collect the rent payable by the first. In 1883 appellant's predecessor acquired from the Government extensive chur lands in Bengal for the purpose of re-claiming them and then letting them at a profit to cultivators. There was some evidence that on occasions prior to 1885 the Board of Revenue and its subordinates had treated the holding as ryoti:—Held, that the appellants were tenure-holders within S. 5 of the Act and that S. 19 which saves occupancy rights, accrued to ryots prior to the Act, did not apply as neither the appellants nor their predecessor had held a ryoti interest in the land. ———Ss. 5 (1) (4) (5) and 103-B—Tenure holder or raiyat—Lease of over 100 bighas of land to non-resident men for reclamation—Entry in Record of Rights.

In determining the status of a tenant, viz., whether he is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, two elements have to be borne in mind, firstly, the purpose for which the land was acquired, and secondly, the extent of the tenure or holding. The law assumes the raiyat to be the actual cultivator of the soil, either by his own labour or of members of his family or by hired labourers and it assumes also that ordinarily a larger area than 100 bighas would make cultivation by the personal agency of the tenant improbable. Land of more than 250 acres was leased to a resident of another place permanently at fixed rent, with a view to its reclamation at the lessee's expense and by his own efforts "by cultivating it or having it cultivated." Held, that it could not be said that the purpose was, primarily or otherwise that the demised land should be cultivated by his personal agency. The lease being at best equivocal the circumstances could be looked at, to judge of the purposes for which the lease was acquired and to determine the status of defendant.

The presumption arising under S. 103-B of the B. T. Act from an entry in the Record of Rights that the tenant was a raiyat and was held to have been rebutted by the evidence. (Ameer Ali.). DEBENDRA NATH DAS v. BIBUDHENDRA MAN SINGH BHRA MARAI ROY

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 5.

———S. 5 (1) and (2)—Tenure-holder or raiyat—Test of—Letting out to others.

To determine whether a tenant is tenure-holder or raiyat the nature of the holding in its inception should be taken in to consideration. A tenant who having acquired a right to hold land for purposes of cultivation lets out the land to strangers for cultivation is tenure-holder, not a raiyat. (Greaves, J.) RAJ MOHAN DHUPI v. HARENDRA CHANDRA.

50 I.C. 468 (Cal.).

———S. 5 (1) and (2)—Tenure-holder changing status to prejudice of tenants and claiming to be raiyat.

A tenure-holder cannot be allowed to change his status to that of a raiyat to the prejudice of tenants on the land at the time of the change and even as regards tenants who enter upon the land after the change, their status would not be prejudcially affected if the change in the status of the tenure-holder is only in respect of an undivided portion of his tenancy and not in respect of the whole of that tenancy. (Walmsley and Panton, JJ.) ANNADA PRASANNA LAHIRI v. BADULA MANDAL. 47 I.C. 985 (Cal.).

———Ss. 5 (1) and (2) and 105—Status of tenant—Tenure or raiyati interest—Test.

The mere fact that a tenant has sub-let his land is not decisive of the question whether he is a tenure-holder or a raiyat. The purpose for which the right of tenancy was originally acquired is the test. The statutory presumption under S. 5 (5) of the B. T. Act has no application when the terms of the original grant of a tenancy are known. In cases where the origin of tenancy is unknown or where the terms of a grant are ambiguous, the mode of user of the land and the evidence of the subsequent conduct of the parties may furnish a valuable clue to determine the original purpose of the tenancy. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 5.

——S. 5 (1)—"Bringing tenants on it."

The expression "or bringing it under cultivation" by establishing tenants on it did not change the pre-existing law. (Teunon and Chowduri, JJ). SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. JADAY CHANDRA MISRA.
39 I.C. 409=21 C.W.N. 452.

——S. 5 (1) and (5)—Tenure-holder—Raiyat—Lease—Construction.

A lease was made in order that the grantee might cultivate the land after making it fit for cultivation at his own expense and by his own efforts. The grantee was to enjoy the land by cultivating it or having it cultivated, by any means he might consider necessary for cultivating the same and the grantor was not to raise any objection thereto. There was a period of remission fixed, during which no rent was to be paid for the land. The rate of rent itself was fixed in perpetuity and a premium was paid by the grantee to the grantor. The area covered by the lease exceeded one hundred bighas: Held, it was obligatory upon the Court to presume under S. 5 (5) of the B. T. Act that the grantee was a tenure-holder; and that the terms of the lease instead of rebutting supported the statutory presumption. The definition given in the section is not exhaustive. (Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J.) BIBUDENRA MAN SINGH BHRAMARBAR RAI v. DEBENDRA NATH DAS.
27 I.C. 432=20 C.L.J. 140.

——S. 5 (2)—Raiyat and under raiyat—Distinction between—Ejectment.

The distinction between a raiyat and an under-raiyat was recognised before the passing of the B.T. Act; Acts X of 1859 and VII of 1869 contemplate the existence of an under-raiyat. In a case governed by Act VIII of 1869 an under-tenant who holds under a under-raiyat cannot be a raiyat and cannot acquire a right of occupancy. (Mookerjee, C.J., Fletcher, J.) KAMINIR SUNDARI DASI v. PRASONNA KUMAR SIL. 58 I.C. 662=24 C W.N. 685.

——S. 5 (2)—Raiyati land—Agricultural land—Proof.

The evidence of persons who have known the land for years and taken part in its cultivation and a cess return describing the land as agricultural are proof that the land was originally agricultural. The fact that the land in question was in a subsequent chitta described as bastu land is immaterial. Nor does the erection of a homestead on a portion of the holding affect its character. (Chaudhuri, J.) ANUKUL CHANDRA CHAKRAVARTHI v. TUFANI SHEIKH. 53 I.C. 925 (Cal.)

39 I.C. 934=21 C.W.N. 505.

——S. 5 (2)—Tenancy—Character of, as shown by lease—If conlcusive.

Where a lease clearly shows by its terms that the tenant was given a raiyati holding, the character of the tenancy is not altered by the mere fact of the lessee subsequently letting out the land to others but it is open to a sub-lessee who was no party to the contract of lease to show that the real purpose for which the land was acquired by the lessee was other than what was stated in the lease. (Chatterjea and Richardson, JJ.) RAJANIKANTA v. YUSUF ALI.

——S. 5 (2)—Agricultural land—Raiyat—Under-raiyat—Raiyat letting land for market.

There is nothing confining the operation of the B.T. Act to agricultural land except the definition of "raiyat" and the law governing raiyats deals with agricultural land. If a raiyat lets the land to an under-tenant for other than agricultural purposes, that does not take the land out of the operation of the Act. An under-raiyat's interest is one carved out of the raiyat's interest and must be governed by the same laws. (Coxe and Ray, JJ.) BARHANUDDI CHOWDHURY v. LALKHAN.
21 I.C. 43 (Cal.).

——S. 5 (2)—'Raiyat'—Agriculture—'Cultivation'—'Agricuture'—Meaning of.

A lessee of land let out for grazing cattle on it, may be a raiyat when the grazing is ancillary to cultivation but not otherwise. Whether it is ancillary to cultivation or not must be decided with reference to the facts and circumstances of the case. The term 'Agriculture' is wider than 'cultivation' and a purpose may not be ancillary to cultivation though connected with agriculture. A lease for gathering fruits from the trees on the land is not a lease for agricultural purposes. 11 W.R. 231; 14 C. W.N. 372, Dist. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ——S. 5 (2)—Raiyat—Tenure-holder—Evidence of—Tests.

A considerable portion of the land of a tenancy was brought under cultivation not by the raiyat but by the tenants settled by him on the land. Held, that it may be inferred that the raiyat has treated himself as a tenure-holder rather than as an occupancy raiyat. 9 C.L.R. 449 and 11 Cal. 501, ref. A tenancy was created for the purpose of reclamation and was not limited in duration and descended from father to son, and grandson. The rent fixed upon the excess land at one stage was based on the initial rent. The rent was progressive. On one occasion a transfer by the tenant was recognized by the landlord. Sometime ago the tenant professed to be a permanent tenure-holder and executed a permanent sub-lease still in force. In one instance the rent was enhanced and the enhanced rent had been paid without protest: Held, that the rent of the tenancy had not been fixed in perpetuity and could be enhanced. On the expiry of the lease of the suit lands, the landlord sued to eject the defendant who resisted ejectment on the ground that he had acquired occupancy rights therein and also because there had been no notice to quit under S. 45 of the B.T. Act. Held, that deft. had acquired occupancy rights in the larger of the two areas in suit, the High Court having rightly found that that area was not the landlord's private land and rightly held that there was nothing in S. 116 of the B.T. Act which precluded the acquisition of occupancy rights. The deft. having admitted that the smaller area was private land, the High Court erred in going behind his admission but should have held that notice to quit was unnecessary and given a decree for ejectment. 24 Cal. 272, dist. The section applies to tenancies created before the Act. (Per Teunon, J.) The Act applies to agricultural tenancies whether created before or after the Act. ———S. 5 (5)—Application—Presumption under—Retrospective operation.

S. 5 (5) is not restricted to suits or proceedings between landlords and tenants only. The presumption under S. 5 (5) applies to tenancies created before the Act and also to those less than 100 bighas. S. 5 (5) is a provision of adjective law and can have retrospective effect. The fact, that rent of a tenure, was altered before 40 years, does not mean that the rent is fixed permanently. (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) ———S. 5 (5)—Presumption—Tenancy before Act.

Though the presumption that if a man holds more than 100 bighas he must be supposed prima facie to be a tenure-holder is not applicable to occupancy rights acquired by a raiyat before the Act, yet when the question is whether the tenant was or was not a raiyat, the area should be taken into consideration. 1 W.R. 68, foll. ——Ss. 6, 60 and 105—Settlement of fair and equitable rent—Presumption of fixed rent—Heritable tenure after permanent settlement.

A landlord applied under S. 105 of the B.T. Act for settlement of fair and equitable rent of a tenure created by a howla patta in 1233 B.S. expressly making the tenure hereditary with no clause about fixity of rent.

Held, that though the plaintiff had been realizing the same rent for a great many years, the rent was not fixed, and he was entitled to have a fair and equitable rent assessed.

The mere fact that a heritable tenure was created could not by itself mean that a mokurari tenure was created. (Chaudurí, J.) SRIMANTA KUMAR CHAKRABARTY v. SABAR ALI HOWLADAR. 32 I C. 702 (Cal.).

S. 6 (a) of the B. T. Act prescribes that where a tenure has been held from the time of the permanent settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement, except upon proof that the rent is enhanceable either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held. Where there is no proof of local custom, the Court has to determine, first, whether the tenures have been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, and secondly, what are the conditions under which the tenure is held. ——S. 7—Liability to enhanced rent.

A stipulation that the tenure holder is to pay rent for lands besides those mentioned in the Kabuliyat which may be under his cultivation or which may be found in excess upon measurement indicates that rent is not fixed in perpetuity and hence the same can be enhanced. (Rampini and Sharfuddin, JJ.) SURJA PROSAD SUKUL v. MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARI COMPANY, LTD. 38 C.L J. 369.

——S. 7—Enhancement, Question of rights, cannot be raised in Second Appeal.

Where the landlord seeks to have the rent of a tenure-holder enhanced, the first point for investigation is, whether the rent is liable to enhancement. When this has been made out, the next point for determination is, whether there is a customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity. It is only when this has been answered in the negative that the rent can be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable. Where none of these matters had been investigated in the Court of First instance nor raised there, the question could not be raised on appeal. (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) THE MIDNAPORE ZEMINDARY CO. LTD., v. SRIDHAR MAHATA. 49 Cal. 866 = 36 C.L.J. 96 = 67 I.C. 775 = 1922 Cal. 152.

——Ss. 7, 30, 191 and 192—Etmans—Temporary settlement—Enhancement of rent.

A temporary settlement holder is not by virtue of Ss. 191 and 192 of the B. T. Act precluded from exercising the ordinary powers of a landlord under S. 7 or S. 30 of the Act. Etmans are tenures and therefore S. 7 applies to the enhancement.

The rent of a tenure is always liable to enhancement unless the landlord has precluded himself by contract or is estopped by law and the mere fact that the parties have agreed that resort may be had to the Patni Regulation to recover arrears of rent cannot mean that the rent was permanently fixed. (N. R. Chatterjee and Duval, JJ.) JOGESH CHANDRA ROY v. MOKBUL ALI CHOWDHURI. 23 C.W.N. 945 = 54 I.C. 850 = 30 C.L J. 140.

In course of proceedings under Chap. X of the B.T. Act, plff. applied for the enhancement of rent and deft. asserted that the tenure had been held at a rent which had not been changed since the Permanent Settlement and the rent could not be enhanced. Plff. withdrew his application with liberty to sue afresh. More than twelve years thereafter the plff. sued for enhancement of rent of the same tenure under S. 7 of the B.T. Act on a contract embodied in some old kabuliyats. Held that the Law of Limitation was no bar to a suit of this nature. (Sanderson, C.J. and Teunon, J.) 'Estate' in S. 95 (a) means all that the holder is entitled to by way of reformation or accretion. Lands handed over to the Manager of the Court of Wards and lands subsequently reformed are the whole estate. S. 97 of the Act gives the Court of Wards power to sue in the case of an estate coming under S. 95 (a) of the Act. When the Act gives the Dt. ———S. 15 — Non-compliance — Decree against an heir cannot in the absence of representation, be executed against others.

Failure on the part of several heirs of a tenant, to comply with the requirements of S. 15 of the Act, does not entitle the landlord to treat one of them as representative of the entire tenancy and a decree obtained against one cannot be executed against the entire tenancy. Where a representation is established, the decree binds all the heirs even though some were not parties to the suit. (Mukerjee, C.J. and Fletcher, J.) Act. Two of them abandoned the tenure and others had their names recorded as tenants in actual occupation. ———S. 15—Heirs of tenure-holder—Non-registration in the sherista does not affect their rights.

The mere failure of the heirs of the recorded tenure-holder to cause their names to be registered in the landlord's sherista does not entitle the landlord to affect their interest by sale in execution issued in a suit against a person, who, to the knowledge of the landlord had no interest in the property. The sale must be one in justice and equity and should operate as a sale of the tenure. 10 Cal. 996, rel. (Walmsley and Buckland, JJ.) PROVAS CHANDRA CHATTERJEE v. JAHARUDDIN MONDAL.

———Ss. 15 and 16—Holder of superior interest succeeding to permanent tenure—Notice of succession to Collector, if necessary.

The object of Ss. 15 and 16 of the Act appears to be to give information to the superior landlord or tenure-holder of a change in his tenants or subordinate tenure-holders, and not to enable the Collector to amend his register. Therefore, where the holder of superior interest himself becomes entitled to a permanent tenure, it is not necessary for him to serve on himself a notice of his succession, before he can file a rent suit. (Brett and Richardson, JJ.) MOFI ZUDDIN v. LAKHAN. 18 I.C. 234 (Cal.), ——Ss. 15 and 16—Failure to get names recorded in landlord's sherista—Liability for rent—Presumption.

So far as tenures are concerned, the Bengal Tenancy Act makes it obligatory upon the tenants to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista whenever they become entitled to them by succession. In the case of a tenure, where only one tenant takes the trouble to have his name recorded in the landlord's sherista and the others, either by design or negligence, fail to do so, it may be presumed that the tenants who failed to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista consented to the tenant who had his name recorded representing them both in transactions and in suits affecting the landlord and the tenants. 10 C. 896; 26 C. 677, Ref.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 15.

But other principles arise where the Court has to deal with the case of the sale of a holding, as to which there is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act compelling raiyats to have their names recorded in the landlord's sherista. No presumption as to representation can be drawn by a Court where only one of the co-raiyats has his name recorded in the landlord's sherista, and the others failed or neglected to do so. 9 C.W.N. 843, Ref.

It is a question of fact in each case whether the recorded tenant does in fact represent the holding in dispute and the fact that only one tenant is registered is an item in the evidence upon the question whether he is or is not the representative tenant qua the landlord. ———S. 16—Patni tenure—Interest acquired by succession — Registration is compulsary—Defaulter cannot question legality of sale.

It is incumbent on persons, who acquire an interest in a patni tenure by succession, to get themselves registered in the books of the landlord, under S. 15 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. If they fail to take the necessary steps and at the same time make default in the payment of rent, they cannot very well be heard to assail the legality of a sale under the Patni Regulation on the ground that their names were not mentioned in the application to the Collector. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 18.

The word 'Khudkhast' in the Permanent Settlement Regulation applied to raiyats. The permanent tenants settled in the village were called the Khudkhasht raiyats, i.e., cultivating the land of their own village or the village in which they resided. They were distinguished from the Paikhasht tenants, i.e., the temporary tenants who were residents of other or neighbouring villages. Khudkhasht tenants were protected from eviction while the Paikhast were treated as tenants-at-will. In sales under Act (VIII of 1865) the purchaser acquires the property free from encumbrances but he is not entitled to eject Khudkhasht raiyats or resident and hereditary cultivators. Where it is found that the defts. are residents and hereditary cultivators and have dwelling-houses on portions of the land and where the lands in suit are described as Khudkhasht in the Survey Record of Rights, plff., a purchaser in a sale in execution of a rent decree under Act (VIII of 1865) is not entitled to recover khas possession of such lands. 2 Pat. 913=1924 P. 207.

If a person is alleged to have been a settled raiyat it must be proved that he continuously held, as a raiyat, land situated in the village, although the land need not be identical throughout the period of 12 years. The holding of land is to be continuous, and, further, the holding is to be in the character of a raiyat. This becomes obvious when regard is had to the definition of the term 'raiyat' given in S. 5, cl. (2). Raiyat means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating by himself, or by members of his family or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and includes also to the successors-in-interest of part of the proprietor, and communicated to the tenant before that date.

There is nothing in S. 120 itself to cut down the generality of the expression "any other evidence that may be produced" used by the Legislature in S. 120, paragraph (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. If it were the intention of the Legislature to exclude such evidence as may be furnished by the dealings between the landlords and tenants subsequent to the 2nd day of March, 1883, it should have expressed that intention in more clear terms. As. S. 120 stood at the time when the Act was passed, it allowed the Court to consider "any other evidence that may be produced" in connection with the question whether the land claimed as sirait was in fact zirait. The Evidence Act deals with the question what evidence is relevant evidence, and there is no power in the Court to reject any evidence as irrelevant if the landlord offers that evidence and the Evidence Act says that it is relevant.

A demise on the footing that the land demised is the proprietor's private land is hardly an agreement or compromise within the meaning of the terms as used in paragraph (2*a*) of the section but quite apart from any other consideration, the agreement or compromise which the Revenue Officer is not to regard is an agreement or compromise made before the Revenue Officer in a proceeding connected with the record-of-rights. The disputed lands were comprised in a revenue paying estate which was purchased by the plaintiffs on the 6th March 1916 at a sale for arrears of revenue. The defendant was a cultivator who had acquired the right of occupancy raiyat in the Record of Rights finally published in 1895. On the 16th July 1901 he took from the then proprietors a permanent lease under what was described as a Taluki Pottah. The plaintiffs contended that the effect of the permanent lease granted to him by the proprietors on the 11th July 1901 was to extinguish the rights of occupancy which he then possessed and that thereafter he must be deemed to have held as a tenure holder. Held that the occupancy right has not been affected by the subsequent acquisition of the tenure. 26 C.W.N. 565 (P.C.), Foll. The word "acquire" in respect of occupancy rights is really used in the Act; but in the preceding S. 21, sub-section (2) the expression occurs "shall be deemed to have a right of occupancy under law then in force." But it appears to be carefully avoided in S. 22, sub-section (2) in the sentence commencing "If the occupancy right in land is transferred to a person." It would appear then, from the context, that the word "acquire" implies the accrual to a raiyati tenancy of rights conferred by the Statute rather than the transfer of rights by another tenant. ——S. 22—Joint Proprietary right—Lease of share—Tenure holder—Acquisition of occupancy right.

A lease was executed in respect of a certain share in a Zemindari and no specific land was mentioned for the lessee to cultivate. Held, the lease created only a tenure. A tenure-holder cannot acquire a right of occupancy in the lands comprised in his ijara or farm while holding the village as an ijardar or a farmer. To determine whether the right conferred by a lease is that of a tenure-holder under the B.T. Act, the intention of the parties has to be looked into. The principal object of giving the lease of an entire village or a share therein is to enable the lessee to collect rents from tenants. The fact that the lessee may bring under cultivation some lands in the village will not alter the character of the tenure created by the lease. There can be no lease for the purpose of cultivation in a village where no lands to be cultivated are specified in the lease. A lessor who is a part proprietor in an ijmali or joint village, has no right to create any right in respect of any specific lands in the village to the prejudice of the other co-proprietors without their consent. A co-proprietor in a village cannot acquire any occupancy or non-occupancy right in the village. (Miller, C. J. and Jwala Prasad, J.) STONEWIGG v. DWARKA SINGH.

———Ss. 27 and 37—Assessment of rent—Suit between ex-proprietor and tenant—Purchase or revenue sale.

The position of the purchaser of an estate at a revenue sale, at any rate in respect of his relations with his tenants is not absolutely independent of that of the ex-proprietor and he is subject to the same limitations imposed by the B. T. Act in regard to suits for the enhancement of rent as the ex-proprietor including the time limit imposed by S. 37 of the Act. When rent has been assessed in a suit between the proprietor of an estate and the tenant, there is a statutory presumption under S. 27 of the B. T. Act that it is fair and equitable and that presumption is not affected by the fact that the estate changes hands by reason of revenue sale. (Beachcroft, J.) ———S. 27—Presumption of rent.

A prior decision in a rent suit may be taken to determine the rent claimed in that suit and to give rise to the presumption that the rent in subsequent years remained the same. (20 Cal. 505, 21 C. 236, 4 C.W.N. 43, Foll.) The weight to be attached to such a presumption depends on whether the decision was arrived at after an adjudication of the question of the amount or rate of rent. If there had been such an adjudication, the Court in the subsequent suit need only look to subsequent events to determine whether there had been any change since. If there had been no such adjudication both prior and subsequent events must be considered. (Brett and Mitra, JJ.) BENI PRASAD KOERI v. RAJ KUMAR CHOWBEY. 17 I.C. 111=16 C.L.J. 124.

———S. 29—Permanent Enhancement—Cannot be had without writing and Registration.

The true effect of S. 29, B. T. Act is that there is no permanent enhancement when there is an attempt to increase rent without writing registered. When by a fresh agreement the rent of an occupancy holding is altered in such a way as to violate the provisions of S. 29 of the Act, the landlord is only entitled to the rent at the original rate. The alteration of money rent of an occupancy holding by a fresh agreement into produce rent with a proviso that the rent exigible on default is to be in excess of the original rent, is unenforceable as it violates the provisions of S. 29. Where a Kabuliyat expressly and in general terms provides that no custom or usage should be allowed as a ground for non-payment of the full rent reserved, a plea for reduction of rent on the ground of a specific custom should not be allowed to be raised for the reason that it is not merely in contravention of the terms of the Kabuliyat but is also opposed to proviso (5) of S. 92 of the Evidence Act. If he failed to do so, he would pay the whole rent from the beginning. In a suit by the landlord to recover the rent at Rs. 23 for the tenant's failure to execute the new agreement after 3 years, it was held that the proviso in the contract was inserted to defeat the provisions of S. 29 and the rent being defined as lawfully payable in money the landlord was entitled to a decree at Rs. 8 per year; and the realization at Rs. 23, is an enhancement, (Sharfuddin and Coxe, JJ.) Section 29 of the B. T. Act applies to the rent of an occupancy raiyat and S. 147-A—applies to a suit between a landlord and a tenant as such. Where a suit was brought by the plaintiff for ejectment of the defts. on the allegation that defts. who had been holding under a time expired kabuliyat were trespassers, there was a compromise under which defts. agreed to remain in possession of the land and were to be recognised as tenants with occupancy rights at the rents which were mentioned in the compromise. The defts. agreed to pay a lump sum of money for old arrears. There was default in the payment of the sum agreed upon and the landlord brought a suit for recovery of the amount.

Held, that the suit was not governed either by Section 29 or Section 147-A of the B.T. Act, as the prior suit which ended in a compromise was a suit between a landlord and trespasser. (Coutts and Adami, JJ.) CHOUDHURI SHEO GOBIND SINGH v. MAHABIR MISSER.

Section 29 has no application to an increase in the amount of rent by reason of an increase in area. It applies only to an increase in the rate of rent.

The word "specially" in the section has no reference to the quantum of the reduction of rent allowed for the consideration there mentioned but merely required that owing to special circumstances the rent is lower than it otherwise would have been. Mere proof that rent was a low rent would not be sufficient, unless it is also proved that the low rate was arrived at for a particular consideration. An agreement to pay a certain rent entered into by a raiyat in settlement of a dispute to avoid litigation is not an agreement to enhance rent within Cl. (c) of S. 29. When the origin and the incidents of a tenancy are not known, it may be inferred that there is a bona fide dispute as to the amount of rent. ——S. 29 (3)—Enhancement of rent—Right of landlord.

To entitle a landlord to enhanced rent under S. 29 (3) of the B. T. Act he must prove three things:—(i) that the raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of his landlord; (ii) that he is released from the obligation of cultivating the crops; and (iii) that he deems the rent which he agreed to pay fair and equitable. S. 29 (3) of the B. T. Act applies where the purpose of the tenancy is the growing of a particular crop and, in consideration of that the rent is not merely a low rent but a rent especially low on that account. ——S. 30—Reclamation pattah—Reservation of progressive rent—Maximum reached—Suit for enhancement of rent, if lies.

Where lands in the Sunderbans of Bengal are let on a reclamation lease and provision is made for the gradual enhancement of rent up to a prescribed maximum, a presumption arises that the maximum so prescribed is to be the full rent so long as the tenure subsists. The general provisions of the B.T. Act for enhancement of rent do not apply to such a case. 9 W. R. 65; 15 B.L.R. 125; 9 Cal. 505, ref. A claim for enhancement of rent on the ground of rise in the average local price of staple food crops during the currency of the existing rent, is to be determined by a Settlement Officer in a proceeding under S. 105 of the Act. The parties should not be driven to a separate suit for its determination. ———Ss. 30 (a) and 31-B—Prevailing rates—Ascertainment of.

The prevailing rate of rent in any local area is a question of fact depending on the actual rents existing from time to time. It increases and diminishes according to existing circumstances, the process being automatic. When the rate has been determined, it will be deemed to be the prevailing rate unless there is an increase in rent in the village or a rise in the price of staple food crops. There is nothing in S. 30 of the B.T. Act to restrict it to the land actually used for cultivation. To attract the operation of the section it is sufficient that the land in question is a holding held at a money rent by an occupancy raiyat. Nor would S. 182 remove homestead lands from the operation of S. 30. It would no doubt be open to the tenant to prove that the rent of homestead land by custom or local usage is not liable to be enhanced under S. 30 (b) but failing the proof of any such custom of usage homestead land would come within the operation of S. 30 (b). Although S. 40 of the B. T. Act does not state explicitly that no order of commutation is to be made till opportunity has been afforded to the party liable to be affected thereby to appear and contest the applications, it is obvious on first principles that no order should be made till notice of the application has been served. The object of the application for commutation is to secure an alteration of the most essential element of the tenancy, namely, the rent. It is of the utmost importance to the party whether the rent is to be paid in kind or in cash and if the rent is to be paid in cash, what sum should be taken as the proper amount payable in lieu of rent previously paid in kind. An order for commutation cannot be made without notice to the party affected and where it is so made by the Revenue Court it acts without jurisdiction and its order is ultra vires. It is open to the applicant to establish his right by proving that occupancy holdings are transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord or that the landlord has in fact recognised the transfer. The Revenue Officer is not bound to decide the question of the custom of transferability in entertaining an application for commutation. As they defaulted in payment of the reserved rent the plaintiff brought a suit for fasli 1325 and part of fasli 1326. The defendants pleaded that during the revisional survey the rent was recorded at Rs. 24-8-0 and that the plaintiff was not entitled to pay more. The trial Court decreed the suit at a rental of Rs. 24-7-0. The appellate Court held that the tenancy created by the kabuliat was a new tenancy and that the defendant while executing the zarpesgi lease did not lose his original status of a raiyat and decreed the suit in full. Held that the transactions of mortgage and lease were independent of each other and the rent recoverable by the plaintiff was regulated by S. 48 of the B.T. ——Ss. 49 and 85—Ejectment—Notice—Lease from year to year.

In 1891 plff. granted an under-raiyati lease to the deft. The lease was not for any specified term, but was described as karsana patta (yearly lease). Held that the lease was terminable by a notice to quit under S. 49 (b) Per Mookerjee, J.—It is of the very essence of the annual tenancy that it is terminable by the landlord on notice, to quit. S. 49 prescribes no form of notice, nor does it indicate the length of notices. An under-raiyat is protected from ejectment until the end of the agricultural year in which a notice to quit is served upon him by his landlord, and this indicates the time when it becomes obligatory upon him to lease. ——S. 49—Notice to quit by several joint landlords—Notice signed by one.

A notice under S. 49 of the B. T. Act purporting to emanate from three landlords but in fact signed by one of them is a proper notice to quit. There is no necessity for the notice to be signed by the landlord at all. It is sufficient that the notice is sent at the instance of the landlord calling upon the under-raiyat to quit the land. 29 Cal. 231, foll. (Chitty and Smither, JJ.) ——Ss. 49 and 85—Raiyat-if can create under-lease.

A raiyat holding at a fixed rate of rent is competent to create a permanent under-lease. A raiyat may by custom have a right to create a permanent sub-lease and the sub-lease so created is not inadmissible in evidence but the party who wants to prove it must establish the custom before it is admitted in evidence. A permanent sub-lease granted by a raiyat is inadmissible in evidence even if the terms of the document have been partly performed and the raiyat can eject the sub-lessee by a notice to quit under S. 49 (6). 16 C.L.J. 144, 17 C.W.N. 469, 21 C.L.J. 478, foll. ——Ss. 49 and 85—Notice—Invalid sub lease.

Where the sub-lease to an under-raiyat, granted by the raiyat of a non-transferable occupancy holding is not valid against his landlord under S. 85, the landlord can eject the under-raiyat without any notice under S. 49 when the raiyat transfers the holding to the under-raiyat. S. 49 applies where the occupancy raiyat still remains in the position of the land-lord, and not where the occupancy raiyat has forfeited his interest by having transferred his interest without the consent of the land-lord.

A notice served under S. 87 of the B. T. Act is not required for the land-lord to re-enter in a case like this. (Fletcher, J.) JADAB CHANDRA SIRDAR v. GOVINDA CHANDRA MANDAL. 29 I.C. 466 (Cal.).

——S. 49—Denial of title in prior suit—Suit to eject—Notice to quit.

Plaintiff, a gomastah of a land-lord obtained certain lands from him and let them out to the defendant. In a suit for rent brought by plaintiff against defendant, the latter pleaded that he had always paid his rent to the plaintiff for the benefit of the land-lord and that he was a raiyat holding directly under the land-lord. The plaintiff sued to eject the defendant, without notice, as a trespasser. Held, that the defendant could not be evicted without notice to quit under S. 49 of the B. T. Act. Where a transfer of the whole holding has been made, the landlord is ordinarily entitled to enter on the holding. A relinquishment of the whole holding without any proof, of payment of rent or of any arrangement made to pay the rent is a relinquishment in fact, which entitles the landlord to eject the tenant. ——S. 49 (b)—Notice under—Formalities of—English Law not to be imported in India.

On the 26th December, 1914 a notice was served by the plaintiffs upon the defendant. This notice was described as a notice under S. 49, Bengal Tenancy Act. It stated in the first place that the plaintiffs did not admit that the defendants were under-raiyats. But it was added that if they were under-raiyats, they should vacate the land. There was no specification of the date when the defendants were required to vacate the land. The suit in ejectment was not instituted till the 7th January, 1918. On a question arising as to the validity of the notice. Held, that technicalities of the English Law relating to the form and contents of a notice to quit should not be introduced in connection with the provisions of S. 49, Bengal Tenancy Act. There was sufficient compliance with the requirements of S. 49 if what was served upon the tenant gave notice to quit the land at the end of the agricultural year next following and the suit was instituted after the lapse thereof. ——S. 49 (b)—Ejectment--Permanent lease by raiyat—Lessee is not an under-raiyat.

Where a raiyat grants a permanent lease without the consent of the tenure-holder and the lessee and his heirs remain in possession for more than 12 years their status is not that of an under-raiyat and they cannot be ejected by the service of a notice to quit under S. 49 (b) of the B. A permanent sub-lease by a raiyat (not being a raiyat holding at a fixed rate) to an under-raiyat is not operative as such between them. But the grantee is an under-raiyat who holds otherwise than under a written lease, and his tenancy is liable to be determined in the manner provided by S. 49 (b) of the Act. Till such ——Ss. 50 and 29—Distinction between.

S. 50 of the B.T. Act contemplates a case where a tenancy has been held at a certain rate, while S. 29 applies only to a case where rent has been actually paid for a period of three years. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) JANAKI BALLAV ROY v. ENAT MANDAL.
37 C.L J. 489=72 I.C 136=1923 Cal. 600.

——S. 50—Presumption—Sub-division or variation in Rent do not affect.

A sub-division of a tenure does not deprive the tenant of the benefit of S. 50 of the B.T. Act, nor does it affect the continuity of the tenure. A slight variation in rent, though unexplained, does not deprive the tenant of the benefit of the presumption under S. 50 of the B. T. Act. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) TARAKUMAR GHOSE v. KUMAR ARUN CHANDRA SINGH. 36 C.L.J. 389=74 I.C. 383=1923 Cal. 261.

——S. 50—Presumption—Rebuttal—Contract of tenancy subsequently entered into between the parties.

Where there is a uniform rate of rent for 20 years, it is open to the landlords to rebut the presumption arising in favour of the defendants by a contract of new tenancy entered into subsequently which entitles the landlords to claim rent from the tenants after the expiry of the term of the lease at the rate of rent payable for the cultivated lands of the village. (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) SARAT CHANDRA DE DAS v. TARAPRASANNA BHATTACHARYA.
70 I.C. 437=36 C.L.J. 333=1923 Cal. 141.

——S. 50—Applies to suits or proceedings under the Act and not to a suit in ejectment.

S. 50 (2) is by its terms, limited in its application to suits or proceedings under the Bengal Tenancy Act. A suit for ejectment does not fall within that description. But it has been ruled that even in cases where S. 50 is not directly applicable, the Court may act on a presumption similar to the one arising under the section, if the facts justify the necessary inference. The same principle plainly applies to suits or proceedings where the rule embodied in S. 50 is extended by analogy. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) MANMATHA NATH KAR v. PROBODH CHANDRA. 37 C.L.J. 52=73 I.C. 416=1923 Cal. 102.

——S. 50—Applicability —Rent— Partly payable in kind and partly in cash.

Rent means whatever is lawfully payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant. It is in this sense that the expression "rent" is used in S. 50 of the B. T. Act. The substantive rule enunciated in S. 50 (1) and the presumption embodied in S. 50 (2) of the B. T. Act do not become inapplicable because a tenure-holder or raiyat holds at a rent payable partly in cash and partly in kind or entirely in kind. 12 W.R. 14; 14 W.R. 388; 15 W. R. 479, Rel. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) DINA NATH PAL v. RAJA SATI PRASAD GARGA BAHADUR.
27 C.W.N. 115=36 C L.J. 220=72 I.C. 663=1923 Cal. 74.

——S. 50—Sub-division and Amalgamation do not affect continuity of tenure.

S. 50 (3) of the B. T. Act was inserted for the benefit of the ryots and not with a design to prejudice tenure holders. The operation of S. 50 (1) and (2) is not excluded in the case of tenures merely by reason of sub-division or amalgamation. 36 C. 287, not foll. S. 50 (1) of the B. T. Act contains the substantive rule on the subject of protection from enhancement. The sub-division of a tenure does not work a breach in the continuity of the tenure, if each fragment is held at a proportionate rent and the aggregate rent equal to the original rent. (Mookerjee and Rankin, JJ.) KRISHNA KAMINI DASI v. NILMADHAS SAHA.
36 C.L J. 382=73 I.C. 312=1923 Cal. 66.

——S. 50—Enhancement of rent—Suit for—Matters to be considered.

A suit to enhance rent proceeds on the presumption that a Zamindar holding under the Permanent Settlement has the right, from time to time, to raise the rents of all the rent-paying lands within his Zemindari, according to the perganah or current rates, unless either he is precluded from the exercise of that right by a contract binding on him or the lands in question can be brought within one of the exemptions recognised by Reg. VIII of 1793. Consequently in each of these cases, the nature of the tenure and the conditions under which it is held is the primary question to be determined with reference to the documents and circumstances disclosed therein. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) ABINAS CHANDRA DAS v. MAJUB ALI CHOWDHURY. 36 C.L.J. 196 (2)=70 I.C. 273=27 C.W.N. 328=1922 Cal. 461.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 50.

——Ss. 50 and 104 (h)—Presumption—None, where origin of tenancy known—Suit under S. 104 (h)—Maintainability.

The presumption as to the fixity of rent laid down in S. 50 of the Act does not apply where the origin of a tenancy is known. It is not competent to a Civil Court to revise the rent fixed in the Settlement Rent Roll. Where a person is not really affected by an entry of rent in the Record of Rights he would not be entitled to claim a revision of rent under S. 104 (h) Cl. 4 of the B. T. Act, even though his case may fall under Cl. 3 of the section. (Woodroffe and Suhrawardy, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. RAM CHARAN ACHARJYA. 70 I.C. 207 (Cal.).

——Ss. 50, 105 and 108-A.—Presumption, when rebutted—Lease for 3 years—Holding over—Rent—Settlement of enhanced rent.

A kabuliat, dated 1282, B. S. for 3 years in favour of certain tenants contained the following clause "After the termination of the period of settlement we shall take a fresh settlement on a proper rent." It was further stated in the kabuliyat that "we shall enjoy the tenancy for a fixed term under the conditions stated above and to this effect we execute this raiyati kabuliyat for a fixed period." The landlords did not exercise their right to take possession of the tenure or to alter the rent after the expiration of the term of the kabuliyats. On an application made before the Settlement Officer for settlement of fair and equitable rents on the grounds of excess area and that the rate of rent is lower than the prevailing rate and also on account of rise of prices of staple food crops. Held (1) the Kabuliyats were executed before the B. T. Act came into operation and the term mentioned therein also expired before that date and (2) there was was nothing to prevent the landlords from enforcing the terms of the kabuliyat after the expiration of the year 1284 B. S. and the fact that they did not take possession or otherwise after any of the terms of the previous tenancy gave rise to the inference that a new tenancy commenced from after that date upon the same terms as regards payment of rent and other stipulations except the stipulation with regard to the period of the settlement. That being so the origin of the present tenancy should be considered to be from the year 1285 B. S. and the presumption under S. 50 of the B. T. Act, was rebutted in the case. (Suhrawardy and Ghose, JJ.) UDOY CHANDRA BASU v. MAHOMED ALI BEPARI. 65 I.C. 389 (Cal.).

The mere fact of payment of rent at a uniform rate for any number of years, apart from the presumption that can be raised under S. 50 B.T. Act, does not raise any presumption of fixing of rent. (Suhrawardy and Cuming, JJ.) YAKUB ALI CHOUDHURI v. RAJ KUMAR DUTTA. 65 I.C. 527 (Cal.)

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 50.

——Ss. 50 and 115—Presumption—Record of Rights, publication of, excludes.

After the publication of the Record of Rights in respect of a tenancy under Chap. X of the B. T. Act, the tenant is precluded by S. 115 from claiming the presumption under S. 50 of the Act. (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton, JJ.) BAMANDAS BIDYASAGAR BHATTACHARYA v. SADHU MAJHI. 26 C.W.N. 945 = 64 I.C. 445 (Cal.)

——S. 50—Presumption of fixity of rent may be rebutted by proof of—Additional sum paid as rent.

The presumption as to fixity of rent, raised by S. 50 of the Act, is rebutted by an inference that an additional sum paid by a tenant was lawfully a part of the rent paid with the consent of the tenant. (Newbould, J.) RAJESWAR v. BAHADUR. 63 I.C. 317 (Cal.)

——Ss. 50 and 158—Applicability of—Denial of tenancy—Presumption.

The principle underlying S. 158 of the B.T. Act, is that there should be an admitted tenancy. Where there is a denial of tenancy the inquiry contemplated by that section cannot be made. In dealing with an application under S. 158 of the B.T. Act, it is not necessary to find whether the tenant is entitled to the benefit of the rule contained in S. 50 ordinarily this section is applicable when the landlord seeks an enhancement of rent. (Walmsley, J.) MONMOHAN GHOSE v. NARAIN CHANDRA DAS. 55 I.C. 709 (Cal.)

——Ss. 50 and 116—Presumption—Uniform payment of rent—Enhancement of.

The presumption under S. 50 of the B.T. Act is not applicable to a tenant recorded in the Record of Rights as an occupancy raiyat under S. 102 (b) of the Act and not as raiyat holding at fixed rates. 24 C.L.J. 363 ref. (Chatterjee and Duval, JJ.) GURU CHARAN NANDI v. SARAB ALI. 23 C.W.N. 1041 = 52 I.C. 79 = 30 C.L.J. 9.

——Ss. 50 and 105—Presumption—Kabuliyat—After commencement of tenancy—Rent enhanceable.

The mere fact that the rent was enhanceable under a Kabuliyat executed after the inception of the tenancy is not sufficient to rebut the presumption arising under S. 50, clause (2) of the B. T. Act, the question being whether the rent was in fact altered or not. If it was not altered then the tenant was entitled to the full benefit of the presumption. (Beachcroft, J.) DHIRENDRA NATH GHOSE v. PURNA CHANDRA DUTTA. 51 I.C. 904 (Cal.).

——Ss. 50 and 115—Presumption under.

After the publication of the Record of Rights under Chap. X of the B.T. Act, in respect of a tenancy, the tenants are debarred by the provisions of S. 115 of the Act from claiming the presumption which S. 50 of the same Act mentions. (Woodroffe and Huda, JJ.) MURLIDHAR ADITYA v. RADHA MOHAN HARZA. 51 I.C. 552 (Cal.).

Consolidation of raiyati holdings does not alter their nature, unless with the agreement between the landlord and tenant to change its nature. Raising hats on a tenancy does not raise a presumption of permanency. The fact that there was no change in rent, for many years, does not mean that the original contract was to pay a fixed rent. Where a tenancy is transferred and the purchaser is described as marafatdar, it means that the purchaser is not recognized as a tenant. (Chatterjee and Greaves, JJ.) MANMATHA NATH MITTER v. ANATH BANDHU PAL. 50 I.C. 222=23 C.W.N. 201.

——S. 50—Landlord and tenant—Lease to tenant—Liberty to settle land on expiration of term—Pre-existing tenancy.

A lease creating a tenancy for a particular term at a fixed rent and giving the landlord the right at the expiration of that term to settle the land with whomsoever he pleases, cannot be taken as a mere recognition of a pre-existing tenancy. (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda, JJ.) DHARANI KANTA LAHIRI v. ISMAIL SHAIKH. 46 I.C. 221 (Cal.).

Even a slight variation of rent not explained by causes like alteration in area rebuts the presumption under S. 50. (Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) PRASANNA DEBA RAIKAT v. MOHANAND DAS. 40 I.C. 553 Cal.

——S. 50—Presumption of fixity of rent—Rebuttal of enhancements.

The liability to enhancement is imposed not only by the jama wasil baki papers but by the law which, in the absence of a presumption under S. 50 or upon rebuttal of that presumption, imposes a liability to enhancement upon tenants. 16 C.L.J. 24, foll. (Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) NIROD KRISHNA GHOSE v. PRODUT KUMAR TAGORE. 32 I.C. 794 (Cal).

——S. 50—Presumption—Principle of.

The presumption in S. 50 of the Act does not rest upon the question whether one uniform rate of rent has been paid or not but upon whether the rent has been changed or not, so that where it is proved that the rent in respect of a tenure has remained unaltered for upwards of 20 years the defts. would be entitled to the presumption under S. 50 of the Act. (Woodroffe and Mullick, JJ.) DINAMANI CHOUDHURANI v. JAGAT CHANDRA. 23 I.C. 773 (Cal.).

——Ss. 50 and 115—Record of Rights—Entry as occupancy raiyat in—Presumption of fixity of rent, if applicable.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 50.

A tenant, recorded in a Record of Rights prepared under Chapter X of the Act as an occupancy raiyat merely, cannot according to the S. 115 get the benefit of the presumption as to fixity of rent under S. 50. (Imam and Chapman, JJ.) BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADHUR v. FAIZUDDIN, 22 I.C. 943 (Cal.).

——S. 50—Landlord and tenant—Suit not under Bengal Tenancy Act.

The presumption in S. 50 cannot be relied upon when the suit is not one under the Act; but the Court may draw the necessary inference from facts proved and apart from S. 50 of the Act, from the fact of the payment of uniform rent for a long time, the Court can draw an inference that the contract was to hold at fixed rates. (Chatterjea and Teunon, JJ.) ASUTOSH RUDRA v. GANGA BISHAN BANERJEA. 22 I.C. 367 (Cal.).

Cf. 10 I.C. 164 (Cal.).

——S. 50—Presumption—Fixity of rent—Permanent tenancy.

Long possession at unvarying rent is evidence of permantent tenancy. 30 Cal. 801, ref. Where the holding is transferred and the rent continues to be paid for 13 years in the name of the original tenant, fixity of rent is not to be presumed. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) UDDHAB CHANDRA GHOSE v. DHAN KRISHNA BISWAS. 20 I.C. 263 (Cal.)

——S. 50—Additional rent—Excess area.

If the landlord agrees to let and the tenant to take a particular piece of land irrespective of its area, the landlord cannot claim additional rent if the area appears to be greater than one stipulated for, but the landlord would be so entitled if they agreed that a certain number of bighas should be the subject of tenancy. (Coxe and Chatterjee, JJ.) AKBAR ALI MIAN v. HIRA BIBI. 15 I. C. 332=16 C.L.J. 182.

——S. 50—Occupancy holding—Suit or proceeding under the Act—Presumption of permanency—Ejectment suit on the ground that holding is non transferable—Suit, if under the Act—Custom—Transferability—Evidence.

Even in cases where the section is not directly applicable, the Court may act on a similar presumption, if the facts justify the necessary inference. S. 50 of the B. T. Act has no application to a suit for ejectment by the landlord on the allegation that the tenant of a non-transferable holding has sold it to the deft. and has abandoned the land as such a suit is obviously not a suit or proceeding under the B.T. Act. 10 C.W.N. 930 foll. A custom or usage of transferability of occupancy holdings can be proved by transfers recognized by landlord either without the payment of nazar or upon payment of a nazar also fixed by custom. The landlord need not have made an objection to a transfer unsuccessfully. The usage to be effective must not be a growing usage but one which has already grown up. 10 C.W.N. 197.

——S. 50—Presumption—Production of receipts for 33 years is insufficient to raise.

In order to establish tenancy at fixed rent in perpetuity, the tenants would have to establish that they have been holding at the rate of rent which has not been changed since the permanent settlement. 45 C. 913; 1 Pat. L.J. 67, not followed, 37 C. 30; 54 I.C. 672, followed. The production of rent receipts showing payment of uniform rate of rent for 33 years is not sufficient to prove that the rate of rent has not changed since the date of the permanent settlement. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) MAHARAJA BAHADUR KESHO PD. SINGH v. RAM JAS PANDE. 2 P. 92=1923 P. 324.

——Ss. 50 and 115—Record of Rights—Suit for enhancement long after publication—Presumption.

Where a landlord brings a suit for enhancement of rent against an occupancy raiyat after the publication of a Record of Rights, the raiyat cannot rely upon the presumption raised in S. 50 as that section is controlled by S. 115. (Sultan Ahamad, J.) SHEIKH ABDUL BAQI v. KUNJA BEHARI PANDEY. 36 I.C. 818 (Pat.).

——S. 50—Fixed rate tenancy—Specific plot—Evidence.

To enable a Court to come to the conclusion that a tenant is a fixed rate tenant it must be established that it has not been changed from the time of the permanent settlement. The rule laid down in sub-S. (1) of S. 50 of the B. T. Act, is a rule of law, whereas the rule laid down in sub-S. (2) is a rule of evidence raising a presumption that the conditions laid down in sub-S. (1) have been satisfied. In a case where the evidence, if accepted gives rise to a presumption under S. 50 (2) of the B.T. Act, that the entire area is fixed rate holding but it is conceded that a portion of the holding is not held at a fixed rate, the presumption arising under S. 50 (2) is affected and the holding cannot be held to be a fixed rate holding. publication of the Record of Rights, the tenant can get the benefit of the presumption under S. 50. 37 Cal. 30 rel. (Chamier, C.J., and Jwala Prasad, J.) PHULCHAND LAL v. KARMAN SINGH. 33 I.C. 415 (Pat.).

——S. 50 (1)—Settlement of fair and equitable rent—Enhancement—Plea that defendant is a fixed rate raiyat—Evidence.

Under S. 50, sub-S. (1) where a raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the permanent settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of alteration in the area of the holding. This embodies a substantive rule of law. Sub. S. (2) lays down that if it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under the B.T. Act, that a raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement. This deals with the mode of proof and raises a rebuttable presumprion. There is no reason why an occupancy raiyat should be excluded from the category of a raiyat for the purposes of this section. A raiyat at a fixed rate is not created by S. 50 which merely furnishes a rule of evidence to enable a person to prove with facility that he is a raiyat at a fixed rate. (Mookerji and Walmsley, JJ.) NARENDRA LAL v. BENODE BEHARI. 27 C.W.N. 740=1924 Cal. 143.

——S. 50 (1 & 2)—Permanent Settlement—Presumption.

The words "permanent settlement" in S. 50, sub. S. (1) of the B. T. Act, relate to the Permanent Settlement of 1793. The presumption of S. 50, sub-S. (2) of the Act, applies even if the rent was permanently settled at a later date than 1793. To gain the advantage of S. 50 the defendant has to show that the rate of rent has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement of 1793. Even if S. 50 of the B. T. Act, does not apply, the fact that uniform rent has been paid for a period of 20 years might give rise to a presumption in favour of the defendant. 13 C.L.J. 415, rel. (Greaves and Panton, JJ.) OSMAN MANDAL v. RADHIKA MOHAN ROY. 67 I.C. 294=1923 Cal. 298.

——Ss. 50 (1) (2) (3) and 105—Presumption—Acquisition of non-transferable holding—New tenancy—New Kabuliyat stating rent variable.

Although the purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot claim recognition by the landlord as a matter of right yet if he obtains recognition from the landlord whether by payment or otherwise, then in the absence of special circumstances he is admitted into the original tenancy with all its incidents and becomes the successor-in-interest of the vendor.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 50.

The inclusion in a kabuliyat executed subsequently to the creation of the holding, of a condition purporting to make the rent variable without any variation in fact does not affect the presumption arising under cl. 2 of S. 50. The true question in such cases is whether the instrument on which the landlord relies is merely confirmatory of the pre-existing interest or tenancy or whether it creates a new tenancy; in the case of a raiyats holding, this question must be considered with reference to the provision contained in cl. (3). (Teunon and Richardson, JJ.) ABHOYA SANKAR MUZUMDAR v. RAJANI MANDAL. 22 C.W N. 904 = 47 I.C. 359 = 29 C L J. 371.

———S. 50 (1) and (2)—Enhancement of rent.

Where a tenure is held at the same rent for twenty years before suit, the tenant is protected from an increase of rent under S. 50 (1) of the Act, unless the contrary required by S. 50 (2) is proved. A kaubliyat does not amount to contrary evidence within S. 50 (2). Rent cannot be enhanced when there has been no alteration in the area of the land held permanently. (Jenkins and Chatterjee, JJ.) BISSESWAR RAY v. RAJENDRA KUMAR SINGH. 25 I.C. 228 = 18 C W.N. 949.

———S. 50 (1)—Landlord and tenant—Presumption—Sub-division or amalgamation.

A sub-division or amalgamation does not in all cases negative the statutory presumption in favour of tenant under S. 50 (1) of the B.T.Act. A raiyat, claiming the benefit of S. 50 (1) of the Act, must only show that the particular land has been held at unchanged rent since the permanent settlement and he has also to prove the identity of the land. The land need not have remained a separate holding throughout the period. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ADIT SINGHA v. SUKHRAJ RAI. 21 I.C. 385 = 17 C.L.J. 435.

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption under.

On the construction of the kabuliat in the case: Held, that it proceeded upon the basis that there were pre-existing rights, and consequently it could not be relied upon for the purpose of showing that there had been a change in the rent since the date of the permanant settlement. 45 M.L.J. 779 = 33 M L.T 432 (P.C) = 28 C.W N. 753 = 18 L W. 147 = 73 I.C. 556 = 1923 P.C. 86 (P.C.).

———S. 50 (2)—Holding at uniform rent—Proof of payment not necessary.

What has to be established to raise the presumption under S. 50 (2), B.T. Act, is not that rent has been actually paid at a uniform rate during 20 years, but that the tenant has held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during 20 years. Such holding at a uniform rent may be established, even if it is not proved that rent has actually been paid during a portion of the 20 years. (Mookerjea and Rankin, JJ.) SATIS CHANDRA BISWAS v. NIL MADHAB SAHA. 37 C.L.J. 598 = 73 I.C. 77 = 1923 Cal. 665.

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption—When arises.

Per Teunon, J:—Mere demand on the part of the landlord for enchanced rent and refusal to receive or acknowledge the old rent does not enable him to deprive the tenant of the benefit of the previsions of S. 50. The rent at which a tenancy is held continues until a change has actually been effected. Such change can be effected only by consent or by proceedings in Court. The special Judges finding that the tenants have held at rents which have not been obtained for the twenty years preceding the suit and that the presumption thus arising has not been rebutted was affirmed in the absence of majority of kabuliyats. Per Huda, J.:—The presumption under sub-S. 2 of S. 50 can only arise when the tenant proves affirmatively that he has held at rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the 20 years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding. These words place on the tenant the burden of proving either that he has actually paid rent at a uniform rate for twenty years or that if not actually paid there has been at any rate an agreement between him and his landlord that he should hold at the old rate. Where the holding of uniform rate since the time of the permanent settlement has not been proved, the landlord has a right to demand an increase and in any case to refuse to receive rent at the old rate in order to prevent the presumption under sub-S. 2 of S. 50 arising against him. (Teunon and Huda, JJ.) MOHINI KANTA SAHA CHOWDHURY v. PREONATH NEOGY. 1922 Cal. 143 = 35 C L.J. 309 = 49 Cal. 551.

See on LETTERS PATENT APPEAL.

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption — Proof of actual payment is not necessary to raise.

Under S. 50 (2) of the B. T. Act, the tenant is not required to establish actual payment of rent during the twenty years at a uniform rent, he is to establish that he and his predecessors in interest have held at rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the suit or proceeding. This involves a real distinction for a person may hold as a tenant though he does not actually pay the rent agreed upon to his landlord. When the evidence showed that rent was paid at a uniform rate from 1845-1897, but for 17 years afterwards there was no payment of rent though it had not been altered by mutual agreement or decree of Court. Held, the presumption under S. 50 (2) arose. (Mookerjea, Newbould and Pearson, JJ.) MOHINE KANTA SAHA CHOUDHURY v. PREO NATH NEOGY. 49 Cal. 661 = 67 I.C. 381 = 35 C.L.J. 309 = 1922 Cal. 111.

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption as to fixity—When to be raised.

In deciding whether a tenant is entitled to a presumption as to fixity of rent in his favour, the question to be considered is whether the tenant or predecessors in interest have held at a rent, which has not been changed during 20 years immediately before suit or proceeding in which the question arises. (Sanderson, C.J. and Richardson, J.) GOVINDA CHANDRA GANGILI v. MANMATHA NATH PAL CHAUDHURI. 62 I.C. 677 (Cal.).

———S. 50 (2)—Tenant holding at a fixed rent can claim benefit of—Presumption.

If the tenant is found to have paid a certain rate of rent for over twenty years and there is no proof of variation of rent, the tenant becomes a tenant holding at a fixed rent and can claim the benefit of the presumption of fixity under S. 50 (2). (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) KUMARI DASYA v. HEMANTA KUMARI DEBI. 60 I.C. 402 (Cal.).

———S. 50 (2)—Ejectment—Limitation—Rent—Exhancement—Presumption.

Defts. Nos. 1 and 3 who purchased a tenure from deft. No. 4 paid rent for about 37 years and it was accepted. Held, that plff. could not get khas possession of the tenure as his right to do so was barred by limitation. He could not ignore the right of defts. 1 and 3 who were entered in the Record of Rights as tenants. Plff. however produced a kabuliyat of the year 1840 executed by the predecessor-in-interest of the deft. No. 4, the vendor of defts. Nos. 1 and 3. There was an express stipulation in the kabuliyat that the tenants would pay enhanced rent according to the pargana rate: Held, that the kabuliyat might be considered either as a new contract under which the tenants agreed to pay enhanced rent or a contract containing the incidents of the tenancy which was in existence from before. The rent was therefore enhanceable. (N. R. Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) UPENDRA NATH GHOSE v. DWARKA NATH BISWAS.

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption—Rebuttal of statement in rent receipts that holding is sarasari—Uniform rent for fifty years.

The mere statement in some rent receipts that a holding is sarasari is not sufficient to rebut the presumption arising under S. 50 (2) of the B.T. Act from the fact that the rent had been unchanged for more than 50 years. (Fletcher and Panton, JJ.) SATISH CHANDRA MUSTAFI v. ABDUL MAJID MUHAMMAD.
47 I.C. 780 (Cal.).

———S. 50 (2)—Presumption—Sub-division of tenure—Effect.

A mere sub-division or amalgamation of an old tenure does not necessarily mean the creation of a new tenure so as to destroy the presumption under S. 50 (2) of the Act as to the fixity of rent. (36 Cal. 287, not foll.) 25 I. C. 228 foll. (Fletcher and Samsul Huda, JJ.) PRASANNA DEB v. SAFURUDDIN.
46 I C. 433 (Cal.).

———S. 50 (2)—Resumption—Rebuttal—Amalgamation of tenures—New tenancy.

Four separate tenures were amalgamated into one in 1853 under a kabuliyat which expressly provided that enhanced rent would be paid according to the rate in the village, held, that the kabuliyat created a new tenancy in 1853 and the presumption arising under S. 50 (2) of the B.T. Act was rebutted. (N.R. Chatterjea and Newbould, JJ.) UPENDRA NATH GHOSE v. GOPI CHARAN SAHA.

A kabuliyat of 1840 expressly stipulated that tenants should pay the enhanced rate according to the pargana rate. The kabuliyat as a new contract to pay enhanced rent or a contract reciting incidents of former tenancy clearly showed that rent could be enhanced. Therefore it rebutted the presumption in S. 50 (2) of the B.T. Act. (Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) UPENDRA NATH GHOSE v DWARKANATH BISWAS. 44 I.C. 593=22 C.W.N. 322.

———S. 50 (2)—Rent receipts—Uniform rate for 20 years.

Where in a suit for enhancement of rent the tenants produce rent receipts showing payment of a uniform rate of rent for over twenty years, the onus lies on the landlord to show that the persons who were formerly on the land were not the predecessors of the tenants and that he has a right to increase the rent. (Fletcher and Teunon, JJ.) GOPALCHANDRA BANERJEE v. MUHAMMAD SOLEMAN MULLICK.

———S. 50 (2)—Rent—No enhancement for 20 years—Presumption—Contract.

If a landlord abstains from enforcing enhancement for twenty years or more, this in itself confess no right upon the tenant but merely raises a presumption under S. 50 (2) of the B.T. Act. Where the relationship of landlord and tenant if founded upon a contract, a mere assertion by the tenant in the absence of a clear statutory provision to the contrary cannot confer upon him rights other or higher than those embodied in the contract. ———S. 50 (2)—Presumption where there has been alteration in holding—Duty of tenant to produce rent receipts.

The presumption under the section may arise even though there has been an alteration in the area of the holding. If the landlord's papers prove that the tenant was holding the land at the same rent for more than twenty years before the suit for enhancement, the tenant need not produce his rent receipts in order to avail himself of the presumption under the section. (Chatterjee and Smither, JJ.) MADHU SUDAN v. JANURUDDIN. 41 I.C. 767 = 22 C.W.N. 999.

——S. 50 (2)—Presumption—Rate of rent.

The section applies to a holding held at a certain rate in which abatement has been allowed in respect of portions of the holding which have gone out of cultivation if the abatement bears to the whole rent the same proportion that the land given up does to the whole area. (Chitty and Breachcroft, JJ.) GENU SHEIKH v. TARAMANI. 41 I.C. 259 (Cal.).

——S. 50 (2)—Uniform rent—Presumption—Non-payment of rent for some years, effect.

When rent is paid at a uniform rate, the presumption under the section will arise that the tenant held at that rent from the time of Permanent Settlement. A tenant can get the benefit of the presumption under S. 50 (2) although there was no payment of the rent for some of the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) KHSHIROD GOBINDA CHOUDHRY v. RAJENDRA NARAIN SHAHA. 38 I.C. 94 = 27 C.L.J. 281.

——Ss. 50 (2) A. and 115—Presumption under—Occupancy raiyat.

An occupancy raiyat, after his name has been so entered in the Record of Rights, is not entitled in view of S. 115 of the Act to the benefit of the presumption arising under S. 50 (2). (Teunon and Chapman, JJ.) HARIHAR PERSAD BAJPAI v. AJUB MISRI. 22 I.C. 604 = 45 Cal. 930.

——S. 50 (2)—Presumption of permanency—Suit not under the Act.

Though S. 50, Cl. 2 of the B.T. Act applies to suits under that Act, there is nothing precluding the Court from drawing an inference of a jote being held at a fixed rent from the Permanent Settlement, from the fact of long payment of rent at an uniform rate. (Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J.) PRAN KRISHNA SAHA v. MUKTA SUNDARI DASSYA. 21 I.C. 544 = 18 C.L.J. 193.

——S. 50 (2)—Presumption—Variation in rent if rebuts—Corresponding variation in area—Effect.

A small variation in rent though unexplained is not sufficient to rebut the presumption arising under S. 50 (2) of the Act of uniform payment from the time of the Permanent Settlement. A small variation in the rent is sufficiently explained by a very nearly corresponding variation in the area in the absence of circumstances to the contrary. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) W.M. ——Ss. 50 (2) and 103 (b)—Conflict between—Latter prevails.

When there is a competition under S. 103 (b) and that under S. 50 (2) the former shall prevail, and under S. 115 the tenant cannot ask the Court to draw a presumption from any evidence establishing uniform payment or rent after the permanent settlement. A tenant cannot rely upon the presumption under S. 50 (2) in a suit brought by the landlord a few days prior to the final publication for the enhancement of rent when no question of status was raised in the plaint. S. 115 of the B.T. The decision in a prior suit for rent as to the amount of rent payable does not operate as res-judicata in a suit for rent for the subsequent year, although it may give rise to a presumption under S. 51 of the B.T. ——S. 52—Rent claimed on basis of excess in area—Burden of proof.

In a suit for additional rent on the basis of excess in area the landlord has to prove the excess and this implies he has also to prove what area of land was originally let. The section is concerned with cases of alteration of area and not miscalculation of area.

As the mere proof that a tenant's rent has been calculated at some date in the past upon the supposition that his holding is of a certain size, a contract cannot be inferred that he is liable at any time to re-assessment upon the actual area. When a letting as the basis of management is proved, the tenant must show the rent was consolidated rent for all land within specific boundaries, but if the landlord fails to prove the original area his suit must fail. ——Ss. 52 and 105—Claim for excess rent for additional area—Enhancement of rent—Question as to, cannot be gone into.

Where a landlord applied for excess of rent for excess area and also for enhancement of rent, and gave up his claim to the latter but a decree for enhancement of rent was passed, held, the Special Judge should not have considered the question of enhancement but should have confined himself to the question of fair and equitable rent having regard to the provisions of S. 52 of the Act. (N. R. Chatterjee and Pearson, JJ.) RAM RENU ROY v. MIDNAPUR ZEMINDARI CO. LTD. 67 I.C. 1001 = 1923 Cal. 111.

——S. 52—Enhancement of rent—Excess area—Proof of—Nature of the suit.

If the landlord can show that since the creation of the tenancy, rent had been assessed, and that when rent was last assessed, the assessment was on the basis of a certain area and that the defendants are in possession of land in which no rent was assessed at the time, then the landlord is entitled to increase of rent. (Newbould and Panton, JJ.) RAJA JOGENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOUDHURY v. AKTAR.

——S. 52—Suit for additional rent for excess area—Landlord's duty.

The landlord must, in a suit for additional rent on account of excess area, prove what the original area was, what was the standard of measurement and that there was excess by the same standard of measurement. If, in a suit for enhancement of rent, the plaintiff also claims additional rent on the basis of the excess area, but gives no necessary evidence under S. 52, he should be allowed to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit. (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) INDU BHUSAN SARKAR v. JATU MALLIK. 62 I.C. 699 (Cal.)

To enable a Court to grant an enhancement of rent it must be in a position to find what the area was, at the inception of the tenancy. The landlord must prove that there has been some increase in the area as compared with the area of th tenancy at its inception. The expression "area for which rent has been previously paid" in S. 52 of the B. T. Act means the area with reference to which the rent previously paid has been assessed or adjusted. (Beachcroft, J.) AZIZ KHAN v. SARAJBULA DEBI. 35 I.C. 480 (Cal.).

In a suit under S. 52 of the B. T. Act for additional rent, the onus of proving an increase in "area for which rent had been previously paid" is on the landlord. He may discharge the burden in two ways: (1) By proving that the tenant is in possession of excess land outside the boundaries of land originally settled with him e.g., land obtained by encroachment or alluvial increment; and (2) by proving that the original settlement of the land rent was fixed at a rate per bigha or other unit of measurement or at different rates according to the quality of land and so forth and that in fact and substance the agreement was that the tenant should pay at that rate or at those rates for all the land of which he was put in possession according to its true area, and by further proving that the existing rent is less than the rent payable under such an agreement. The rent might be a consolidated rent, even if it was calculated at so much per measured or estimated bigha. The question would depend upon the intention of the parties, to be gathered in the absence of a written instrument, from all the circumstances. Where, however, it is proved that the tenant is holding land outside and beyond the original boundaries, the question as to the rent being a consolidated rent cannot well arise except possibly in connection with land gained by alluvion. ——S. 52—Holder of temporary tenure—Alluvion and diluvion—Contract not to reduce rent.

Apart from any question of contract, S. 52 of the B. T. Act is applicable both to tenure-holders and raiyats. But a tenure-holder is at liberty to contract himself out of his right to apply for reduction of rent under S. 52. In the case of a holder of a temporary tenure, S. 52 of the B. T. Act must be read subject to the terms of the contract between him and his landlord. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. KAMAL KRISHNA PAL. 44 I.C. 222 (Cal.).

———Ss. 52 and 188—Suit for alteration of rent—Joint landlords.

A suit for alteration of rent under S. 52 of the Act is an act which the landlord is authorized to do under that Act within S. 188 and which must be done by all the joint landlords together or by their representative. The representative must, however, be a single individual authorized to act on behalf of the entire body of landlords. Therefore a suit under S. 52 by two members of a Joint Hindu family is not properly instituted. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SATIPROSAD GARGA v. ———S. 52—Elements necessary for proof under—Land lying within specified boundaries.

the present area occupied by him, the extent of the two being measured according to one and the same standard. The landlord will be entitled to additional rent for excess lands occupied by the tenant unless it is proved that the rent was only a consolidated rent for an area within specified boundaries irrespective of its precise quantity or extent. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) LAKHI NARAIN v. SRI RAM CHANDRA. 15 C.W.N. 921 = 11 I. C. 212 = 14 C L J. 146.

If a landlord can prove what was the area upon which rent has been paid and what is the increased area upon which he claims, the Court will give him a decree in respect of the excess. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) RADHIKA RAMAN v. SATNARAIN KOERI. 74 I. C. 961 (P.).

——S. 52—Enhancement of rent—Excess area.

In an enhancement suit, a landlord has to prove simply the excess in the area held by a tenant without the definite direction, under cl. 5, S. 52 of the Act. He cannot claim enhanced rental for excess area where a consolidated jama is paid for a holding; but the case is otherwise where rental is paid according to the area held. In both the cases, the measurement must be the same throughout. (Jwala Prasad, J.) SHEO KUMAR LAL v. RAMPHAL DASS. 68 I.C. 959 (P.)

——S. 52—Second appeal—Proof of previous measurement, if necessary.

A second appeal lies where a fair and equitable rent is settlad under S. 52 of the Act. Under the section the question for determination is whether the tenant holds at consolidated jama or at a certain rate per bigha. Each party can show whether the tenant holds at consolidated jama or at a certain rate per bigha. It is not necessary to show that measurem n was taken when the rate was fixed or even he practice in local area to that effect. (Mul ck and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) KESHEO PRASAD SINGH v. TRIBUAN.

——S. 52 (a)—Enhancement of rent on account of excess area—Claim by landlord—Onus of proof—Existence of prior settlement.

The tenant's liability to pay additional rent is not limited to cases where the area is in excess of that comprised in the settlement at its inception. It extends to cases where the land is proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him under the last settlement. The settlement and record of rights defines the relationship between landlord and tenant in various respects including the area of the holdings for which rent is paid and is presumed to represent what is the relationship between them until the contrary is proved. The effect of such a settlement would be to throw the onus upon the party questioning it, to show that it did not accurately represent the true state of affairs. Where the subsequent settlement shows an area to be in excess of that under the settlement of 1898, the landlord has a right to claim enhancement of rent. (Miller C. J. and Adami, J.) S. 188 has no reference to joint tenants and does not prevent a co-sharer tenant from bringing a suit authorized by the Act. In a mourasi mokarari settlement the most reasonable interpretation is that the tenant agreed not to claim reduction on the ground of diluvion. A permanent lease from a person who had made permanent improvements on the property gives permanent rights on the lessee. (Chatterjee and Mullick, JJ.) S. 52 (c) does not apply when the abetment is claimed not on account of land not found in the possession of the tenant but on account of land included in the tenure out of which some land had to be left uncultivated in order to erect an embankment to protect other land. Though prima facie the tenant is entitled to abatement for the whole period when the land lay uncultivated, if the rent has been paid without abatement up to a certain period, he is not entitled to remission for that period but only for subsequent years for which rent has been claimed by the plff. Under S. 52 a landlord has to prove that there has been an increase in area for which the rent was previously paid and he must show that the land was measured at the time of the beginning of tenancy by a particular standard of measurement and that there has been an increase in the area by the same standard of measurement. ———S. 53—Rent—Tender — Interest—Cess.

Under S. 53 of the B. T. Act, the rent for the quarter of the agricultural year becomes due on the first of Aswin when the new year commences. A suit instituted during the currency of the second Bhado is premature in so far as the arrear for the last quarter is concerned. A tender of rent to be valid must include the interest due at the date of the tender though the landlord demanded damages. Under S. 41 read with S. 4 of the Bengal Cess Act, the landlord is entitled to only half an anna in the rupee on rental paid by the tenure holder. (Coutts and Doss, JJ.) ———Ss. 53, 65 and 158-B—Produce rent—Arrears—Holding.

Though produce rent is not paid in instalments it can fall into arrears. Under S. 65 of the B.T. Act, holdings do not become liable to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent but in execution of a decree for the rent of the holding. So far as S. 65 is concerned there seems to be no distinction between a holding which is held on produce rent and a holding held on a money rent. There is no authority for the proposition that only nagdi rent can fall into arrear and that as holdings are only liable to sale for arrears of rent, holdings held on produce rent and partly on money rent cannot be sold. ——S. 60—Ijaradar is not a proprietor—Section does not apply—Bengal Land Registration Act, Ss. 78, 79, 81.

S. 60 of the B.T. Act deals with cases where rent is due to the proprietor of an estate. Where the rent is not due to the proprietor the plaintiff being not a proprietor but an ijaradar, and as ijaradar, the plaintiff could not get his name registered under the land Registration Act, S. 60 has no application. No doubt "proprietor" is defined in S. 3, cl. (2) of the B.T. Act as a person owning an estate or part of an estate. But S. 60 lays down that the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act "as proprietor of that estate" shall be a sufficient discharge, so that although a proprietor may be the owner of an estate or a part of an estate the section merely speaks of tha proprietor of that estate which indicates an entire estate. The case where rent is payable to two or more proprietors the extent of whose interest is required to be registered under the Land Registration Act, and which is dealt in the second part of S. 78 of that Act is not dealt with by S. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The object of S. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act appears to be to afford indemnity to tenants who pay rents to the person whose name is registered under the Act, and to prevent them from pleading in defence to a claim for rent by such person that the rent is due to a third person but the section does not appear to have provided for cases where the names of all the part proprietors have been registered under the Land Registration Act. the tenure, for the rent so paid by him in case the tenure is sold on account of his default to pay any one instalment. He is not even entitled in equity to subrogation by payment of such rent in such a case because the tenure itself is brought to sale on account of his default. (Woodroffe and Carnduff, JJ.) RAM JIBAN v. TAJUD-DIN. 9 I.C. 489=15 C W.N. 404.

——S. 65 and Chapter XIV—Auction purchaser—Not liable to pay antecedent arrears of rent.

Under the Bengal Tenancy Act the auction-purchaser, purchasing the holding in execution of the decree for rent, is not liable to pay off the antecedent arrears of rent, and any mention or statement of such arrears, which accrue due prior to the date of the suit is wrong, and sale will be set aside on proof of material injury. The tenant judgment-debtor is alone liable for the previous arrears of rent and not the auction-purchaser. The tenure is not liable for the arrears of rent, which accrued due prior to the institution of the suit or between the date of the suit and the date of sale. (Mullick, J. and Bucknill, J.) ——S. 65—Road cess—Rent—Decree for road cess—Purchaser in execution of the decree—Priority over mortgagee.

"Rent" includes "road cess" and so under S. 65 a decree for road cess is a first charge upon the tenure. An auction purchaser in execution of such a decree has a title paramount to the mortgagee of the tenure. (Mullick, J.) CHIODITTI v. QUADRESS.

When the landlord leases his proprietary right in a holding to another and the latter purchases the holding in execution of a decree for rent subsequent to lease against the tenant, there is no interest of the tenant left in the holding for the lessor landlord to proceed against, in execution of a decree against the tenant in a suit brought to recover rent due from the tenant prior to the lease of the proprietary interest. ——S. 66—Suit for more than one year's rent—Decree for ejectment on default.

In a suit under S. 66 of the B T. Act, if the landlord asks for more than one year's rent, he disentitles himself to the remedy under the section. A decree under S. 66 of the B. T. ——S. 66—Withdrawal of a portion of claim—Application on second appeal—Whether may be granted.

Where in a suit for rent and for ejectment the plff. found that he could not succeed in his prayer for ejectment, unless he withdrew a portion of his claim for rent and therefore prayed in second appeal to withdraw it, the application at that stage was rejected. 23 I C. 777 (Cal.).

——S. 66 (2)—Decree for ejectment executed pending appeal—Payment of, within 15 days after confirmation by appellate Court—Effect.

Pending an appeal against a decree for ejectment under S. 65 of the B. T Act, the decree was executed and possession taken by the landlord. Held, that proceedings in execution could not be nullified by the judgment-debtor's depositing the decretal debt within 15 days of the dismissal of the appeal. The term "date of the decree" in sub-S. (2) of S. 66 of the Act does not mean the appellate decree when the decree appealed against has been executed. 25 Cal. 311, ref. (*N. R. ——S. 66 (2)—Non-occupancy raiyat—Ejectment—Under-raiyat paying decretal amount.

S. 66, cl. (2) of the B. T. Act, contemplates that the payment made, to be a good payment, must be a payment by or on behalf of the judgment-debtor. The Court cannot, therefore accept the tender of the amount by an under raiyat and prevent the execution of the decree. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) BROJENDRA NATH MITRA v. ARMAN SHEIKH.

Where a judgment was passed directing that the arrears for 4 years should be paid within 15 days, and that in default a decree for ejectment should be made, and the judgment-debtor paid one year's arrears and got the decree amended, held that "Decretal money" in S. 66 meant only the amount as limited by the amendment and that the amendment was rightly granted. ——S. 67—Kabuliyat before the passing of the Act—Section does not apply—Rent sale—Purchaser takes holding with ordinary incidents of tenancy.

Where a kabuliyat has been executed prior to the B.T. Act the provisions of S. 67 of the Act are not applicable to the case and the interest on arrears of rent must be calculated as provided in the contract. But where the holding has been sold in execution of a rent decree, the purchaser takes the holding with the ordinary incidents of a tenancy. A stipulation for the payment of interest at an exhorbitant rate cannot be supposed to be an incident of a tenancy which would attach to it even after a sale for arrears of rent. The distinction between usual and unusual terms of a contract of tenancy is a distinction which should be taken into consideration in determining whether the incident in question continues to attach to the tenancy notwithstanding its sale for arrears of rent. 26 C. 315; 24 C. 37, Rel. (Chatterjee and Cuming, JJ.) ANNADAMOYE DEBI v. SAUDAMINI DEBYA. 37 C.L.J. 338= 27 C.W.N. 502=72 I.C. 719= 1923 Cal. 559.

——S. 67 — Interest provided for in Kabuliat—Higher rate if barred.

If the rent fell into arrears, the Kabuliat provided "that the tenant should pay interest at six pies per rupee per mensem on the cash rent and one cotta per rupee per month on the rent payable as paddy." The landlord on the ground that the tenants were holding over since the first term of kabuliyat had expired, the rent having fallen in arrears, demanded higher rate of interest on the ground that a new contract might be deemed to have been entered into by the holding over of the tenants: Held no higher rate of interest could be allowed and S. 178 does not help the appellant on the ground that there was a fresh contract. S. 67 is not limited in its application where rent is payable quarterly. There is no reason why

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 67.

S. 67 should not be applicable to interests on arrears of paddy rent paid annually, because the definition of arrears of rent in S. 54, cl. 3 is not confined to money rent. (Newbould and Panton, JJ.) BRAHAMOYI v. SOMARALI.

——Ss. 67, 68 and 178—Kabuliyat before Act—Holding over after Act—Intsrest cannot be claimed at Kabuliyat rate.

Where an agricultural lease expires before the passing of the Act and the tenant holds over he is not liable after the passing of the Act to pay interest as stipulated in the original Kabuliyat. In a suit for arrears of rent for a period subsequent to the passing of the Act the plaintiff claimed interest at 150 per cent. per annum as stipulated in the original lease. Held, that the rate was exhorbitant and could not be allowed. ——Ss. 67 and 179—Permanent mokurari lease—Evidence of.

S. 67 of the B.T. Act applies only where the tenancy is not a permanent mokurari tenancy situated within a permanent settled area. There were no clear expressions in the kabuliya showing that the rent was fixed except a provision that if at any time the land on measurement be found larger in area than that on the basis of which the rent was fixed, the additional rent payable for such additional area would be in proportion to the rent originally fixed: Held, that the lease was a permanent mokurari lease. ——S. 67—Interest on rent—Accrual of.

Under the B. T. Act interest on rent accrues not from the expiration of the dates on which the instalments are payable according to the kists stipulated in the lease, but from the expiration of the quarters of the agricultural year in which the instalments fall due. (Chatterjee, J.) In spite of the general rule of non-interference, Civil Courts may, on grounds of equity interfere in cases of unconscionable bargains, e.g., a demand of 75 p. c. interest from a tenant besides damages. In a Kabuliyat executed before the Act came into force the rate of interest was mentioned but if no mention was made in a subsequent sulehnamah which created no new tenancy, the interest would be as in Kabuliyat. ——Ss. 67 and 68—Interest—Arrears of rent—Contract to the contrary.

In the absence of any express or implied contract to the contrary, a landlord is entitled to benefit of general law with regard to interest on the arrears of rent (i.e.,) to the benefit of Ss. 67 and 68 of the B. ——Ss. 67 and 68—Bhowli rent—Nature of—Interest on arrears.

Claim for bhowli rent is in the nature of claim for damages for breach of contract, and it becomes ascertained as soon as the Court has adjudicated upon it. S. 67 applies to rents payable quarterly, and not to bhowli rent. Interest can be claimed on arrears of bhowli rent apart from S. 67, B.T. ——S. 69—Appraisement—Procedure.

An application for appraisement or division being generally made when the landlord and tenants are on bad terms. The proper course in such cases is not to depute an amin, but a responsible officer. The division or appraisement must be made by him on the spot at or very near the time when crops are ripe for harvest. (Gruning, M. C.) ——S. 69—Appraisement — Discretion — Exercise of.

An order under S. 69, B. T. Act for appraisement of crops depends upon the conditions of sub-clauses (1) (a) and (b) being fulfilled and thereafter upon the discretion of the Collector. In case of an allegation that the raiyats had deliberately grown a poor crop and misappropriated the same, the landlords are entitled to an enquiry into the allegation. (Morshead, M.C.) BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 70.

——S. 70—Order enforceable as decree—Meaning—Batai amin—Appraisement or division of crops—Omission to give landlord notice.

Omission to give landlord notice under S. 70 (2) is not a mere irregularity, but is an illegality which vitiates the whole proceeding. An amin appointed to appraise or divide the crops is not entitled to sell them without a final order. An order passed finally and enforceable as a decree is necessary in case of batai as in case of appraisements. An order merely directing the deposit of the sale proceeds of crops in the Treasury without direction to pay them to any one is enforceable as a decree within S. 70 (5). 10 C.L.J. 599, appr. ——S. 70—Jurisdiction of the Sub-Divisional Officer to decide the dispute of the applicability of the system of appraisement to a holding.

The jurisdiction of a Sub-Divisional Officer to decide a dispute as to the applicability of the appraisement system must be specifically impugned in the plaint and not by researches made from the pleadings of parties by the Court. The levy of peishkush by the proprietor of an estate from the nisfidars, (holders of resumed lakheraj lands) and lakherajdars is not illegal, as peishkush cannot be regarded as an imposition in the nature of an abwab but a right to it is an interest in the land which can be acquired by prescription. From the peculiar situation and character to the lands of the estates and the antiquity and the purpose of the payment of peishkush it may be inferred that a right to levy it had legitimate contractual foundation at its inception. A Kabuliyat provided in addition to the fixed annual rent for payment of certain articles and labour and also that on default of the articles or the labour, plff. may recover a fixed sum in addition to monthly rent. Held, the sum which is the equivalent of the articles and labour is in the nature of an imposition. Whether a certain sum claimed is illegal or not depends on the intention of the parties. If on a fair interpretation the sum can be claimed as part of the total rent, the tenant is bound to pay it. ——S. 75—Patni taluk—Money rent—Suit for declaration—Rights of tenant.

The plffs. alleged that they held a patni taluq on payment of certain money rent to the defts. but that the latter took proceedings under the Patni Regulation for realization of the value of certain paddy rents which, they said were payable, for the taluq, and the plffs., in order to save their tenure from sale deposited the amount claimed by the defs. The Plffs. accordingly sued for a declaration that the taluq bore money rent and not paddy rent, and for refund of the amount realized from them in excess of the proper rent. Held, that S. 75 did not apply and therefore did not bar the suit; first, because the excess rent realized from the plff. by proceedings under the Patni Regulations could not be said to be exacted by the Zemindar within S. 75 which evidently contemplated exactions by means other than process of law; and secondly because the section did not take away the right of a person, from whom rent had been realised in excess, to recover such excess amount from the landlord within the ordinary period of limitation. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 76.

To make S. 76 applicable it must be shown by the tenants that the tank was excavated for the purpose of agriculture or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture. Mere proof that it was for drinking purposes is not enough. (Ghosh and Pratt, JJ.) GOBINDA CHANDRA BASU v. KAMIJUDDI SOYAL.
17 I.C. 115=16 C.L.J. 127.

———S. 84—Tenant holding under kabuliyat —Custom—Acquisition of land for market.

If a tenant holding under a kabuliyat is bound according to custom, to give up possession of the land in the event of a market being established thereon, the landlord is not bound to adopt the procedure in S. 84 of the B.T. Act for acquiring the land for such a purpose. That section is inapplicable to a contract contained in a kabuliyat. If the custom is proved the tenant cannot insist on the landlord taking only a specific portion and no more. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) BEJOY CHANDRA ROY v. PRODYAT KUMAR TAGORE.
55 I.C. 268 (Cal.).

———S. 85—Ryot at fixed rate—Can make a permanent settlement with under-ryot.

It is competent to a ryot holding at fixed rates to make a permanent settlement with the under-ryot or to give the under-ryot a transferable and heritable interest in the land. (Newbould and Panton, JJ.) PROBODH CHANDRA DAS v. BIRSINHA BAGANI. 71 I.C. 319 (Cal.)

———S. 85—Under-raiyat — Agreement to accept heritable tenancy is not against section.

An under-raiyat does not violate the terms of S. 85 by agreeing to accept a heritable tenancy from his landlord and when such an agreement is entered into the landlord cannot ignore the agreement and eject the heirs of the under-raiyat on the ground that the tenancy is not heritable. 60 I.C. 457=25 C.W. 715.

———S. 85—Sub-Lease—Voidable or void.

Sub-lease of a holding at fixed rates is not governed by S. 85. A perpetual lease is an encumbrance which could be avoided by an execution purchaser, even if he be the superior landlord, before he can take khas possession. (Newbould, J.) ———S. 85—Occupancy raiyat—Lease—Intermediate tenure—Suit for rent.

Deft. No. 2 an occupancy raiyat, granted a lease of his holding to deft. No. 1 for a term beyond that allowed by S. 85 of the B. T. Act. Subsequently deft. No. 2 created an intermediate tenancy in favour of the plffs. also unauthorized by S. 85. Held, that deft. ——S. 85—San ba san meaning of.

Where a registered under-rayati lease mad provision for the holding passing from generation to generation and for being sold by the under-raiyat was styled san ba san (year to year) lease and it was also stipulated that if the under-raiyat ever reduced the rent by raising an objection he would be liable for eviction without notice. Held that the under-raiyati lease was a permanent lease and contravened S. 85 of the B. T. Act, and therefore was invalid. (Walmsley and Panton, JJ.) KARIM BAKSH v. ABDUL JABBAR MIAJI.

Per Beachcroft, J.—A sub-lease by a raiyat for a period exceeding nine years, whether registered or not is void, and can be questioned by the grantor or a person claiming through him. Where a raiyat giving a permanent sub-lease, in contravention of the provisions of S. 85 (2) of the B. T. Act induces his lessee to accept on the faith of representation that his own status is such as to validate such a sub lease. he cannot afterwards be allowed to prove in a suit against a sub-lease that his status was other than what he represented. ———S. 85—Under-raiyat—Lease exceeding nine years—Right to recover possession.

An under-raiyat holding an under-lease for more than nine years has, i he is in possession of the property on the basis of the lease, sufficient to interest in the property sue for its possession. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) GURMONDAL v. PEARI MAJHI. 43 I.C. 864=22 C.W.N. 61.

When a sub-lease is in excess of the period sanctioned by section and is registered, it is inadmissible in evidence. But when it is followed by possession of the property by the sub-lessee, he can sue for possession if subsequently dispossessed. When a tenant cannot or does not produce his lease in writing he can establish his tenancy from possession and other circumstances. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 85.

———S. 85—Lease in contravention of,

A lease granted in contravention of S. 85, clause (1) of the Act is operative as between the grantor and the grantee (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.) BAMAN DAS BHATTACHARYA v. NILMADHAB SAHA. 44 Cal. 771 = 20 C.W.N. 1340 = 33 I.C. 754 = 24 C.L.J. 541.

In spite of S. 85, a raiyat may agree with under-raiyat to renew the sub-lease, on the same terms, after the expiry of the first term. (Mookerjee and Chatterjee, JJ.) LANI MIA v. MUHAMMAD ISAM MIAH. 33 I.C. 448 = 20 C.W.N. 948.

———Ss. 85, 161-A and 167—'Sub-Tenancy' meaning of—Ejectment of sub-tenant—Notice.

'Sub-tenancy' under S. 161-A clearly means a tenancy directly under the tenancy which has been purchased. Such an inferior sub-tenancy is not an encumbrance within the meaning of the section. No notice under S. 167 is necessary for the ejectment of an under-raiyat not holding under a registered lease. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) SARADA KIRPA LALA v. CHATINYA CHARAN D 25 .C. 741 (Cal.).

———S. 85—Applicability—Permanent tenancy created by one under-raiyat in favour of another—Validity.

S. 85 does not apply as between an under-raiyat of the 2nd and another of the 3rd degree and consequently the former can validly create a permanent tenancy in favour of the latter. (Jenkins, C.J. and Chatterjee, J.) GURU DAS v. KALI DAS CHANGA. 24 I.C. 287 = 18 C.W.N. 882.

———S. 85—Sub-lease by raiyat—Rights of landlord.

The section enables the landlord to impeach a sub-lease granted by a raiyat contrary to S. 85. The under-raiyat therefore holding a permanent lease from the raiyat can sue for possession or defend his possession against the raiyat or his representatives, who cannot contend that the lease was contrary to S. 85. Where the raiyat was an auction purchaser under a money decree and the under-raiyat was a permanent lessee under him, the latter is not bound by the subsequent proceedings to set aside the auction sale if he was no party to it and his lease would not be affected in any way. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) SADHAN SARDAR v. LAKAN MONDAL. 15 I.C. 255 (Cal.).

———S. 85—Raiyat granting lease to under-raiyat—Stipulation to grant fresh lease on expiry of term, if null and void.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 18 S. 85.

A stipulation in a lease deed by a raiyat to an under-raiyat to give a fresh lease on the expiry of term is not in contravention of S. 85 of the Act and the under-raiyat could not be ejected without an option given him to take a fresh lease at a fair rent. (Rampini and Handley, JJ.) ALI MOHAMMAD v. NAYAN RAJAH. 16 C.L.J. 122 = 13 I.C. 912 = 16 C.W.N. 620 (note)

———Ss. 85 and 86 (b)— Ejectment—Surrender.

If a raiyat surrenders his holding, the landlord may re-enter by ejecting the under-raiyat without a notice to quit if unprotected by these sections. (Chatterjea, J.) MUKTA SUNDARI DASI v. CHANDI BHOWMIN. 10 I.C. 164 (Cal.)

———S. 85 (2)—Sub-lease contrary to the section is inadmissable in evidence—Doctrine of estoppel.

A sub-lease contrary to S. 85 (2) is in admissible in evidence. A raiyat cannot question the validity of a sub-lease purporting to be a perpetual lease, where it was not vitiated by misrepresentation as to extent of interest or status as raiyat. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) RAJ KUMAR DAS v. PANCH KOERI TALUKDAR. 60 I.C. 507 (Cal.)

———S. 85 (2)—Sub-lease exceeding nine years, if admissible in evidence—Effect of.

A sub-lease granted by a raiyat after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act for more than nine years is inadmissible in evidence to prove the tenancy of an under-raiyat but it does not take away the right of the under-raiyat to defend possession or recover his possession if dispossessed. (Chatterjea and Panton, JJ.) NANDA KUMAR v. DINA BHANDU NANDI. 59 I.C. 748 (Cal.).

———S. 85 (2)—Sub-lease for more than nine years—Registration—Effect of.

S. 85 (2) of the B.T. Act is a statutory bar to the registration of a sub lease by a raiyat for a term exceeding nine years. The consent of the landlord cannot validate the registration and even if registered it is inamissible in evidence. (Newbould, J.) ———S. 85 (2)—Under-raiyati lease—Term of more than 9 years—If admissible.

——S. 85 (2)—Sub-letting—No consent of landlord—Rights of under-tenant.

Where an occupancy raiyat gave a registered sub-lease of the holding in contravention of S. 85 (2) of the Act, it was inoperative as against the superior land-holders though registered. As deft. was in possession even before the invalid sub-lease, his status was that of the under-raiyat but if he was ejected without the consent of the superior landlords, the sub-lease is invalid against them, consequently the sub-tenancy could not be treated as an encumbrance within S. 161, B.T. Act or as protected interest under S. 160 (c). (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ). FAKIR CHANDRA SINGH ROY v. BANAMALI SAIN. 18 C.L.J. 252=21 I.C. 104=19 C.W.N. 412.

A sub-lease by a raiyat creating tenancy for more than 9 years though registered against the provisions of S. 85 (2) is treated as not registered and therefore the document is not admissible in evidence and does not affect the holding. ——S. 85 (2)—Sale of occupancy holding—Reversal of sale.

An occupancy holding sold in execution of a money decree was leased out to the plff. by the purchaser. The deft. applied for the reversal of the sale in which he did not implead the plff. In a suit to recover possession by the plff., defendant pleaded that the basis of the plff.'s claim having been upset, he had no enforceable title against him. Held, that the reversal order did not affect the plff, as he was not a party to the proceedings. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 86.

——S. 85 (3)—Previously created sub-lease—Duration of.

A Sub-lease by a raiyat created before the passing of the Act is valid up to 9 years after passing of the Act. Though the title of the tenant may continue beyond that period by reason of possession of the land and payment of rent, the sub-lessee is always liable to be ejected on a proper notice to quit. (Beachcroft, J.) SAMARADDI v. KALI CHANDRA PAL.
50 I.C. 713 (Cal.).

——S. 85 (3)—Under-raiyat allowed to hold over—Forcible ejectment—Legality.

The representative in interest of the raiyats who granted lease to under-raiyats are not entitled as between themselves and the under-raiyats to take up the position that the grant was inoperative; Sub-s. 3 applies as between landlord and under-raiyat. The tenancy of an under-raiyat who has been allowed to hold after the termination of nine years from the commencement of B.T, Act and to continue in occupation as tenant is to be terminated in accordance with the provisions of the law and the tenant cannot be forcibly ejected from the land. (Mookerjee and Caspersz, JJ.) ARAB ALI v. RACHMADDI. 10 I.C. 552=13 C.L.J. 656.

——S. 86—Occupancy holding—Surrender of portion of holding sold by tenant to a stranger—Transferee not bound.

A surrender by a raiyat of a part of his holding which has been already sold to another does not bind the transferee. A person who has parted with his interest in property cannot surrender it in favour of the landlord and he cannot confer upon the landlord a higher right than he could have passed to any other person by assignment. The case of the surrender of the entire holding is different because then the tenancy would cease to exist and the landlord would be in a position to re-enter. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) CHAILESH CHANDRA BOSE v. UMESH CHANDRA RUDRA. 37 I.C. 574=24 C.W.N. 573.

An occupancy raiyat having sold a portion of his holding surrendered his tenancy in respect of the portion sold, to his landlord who thereupon sued his vendee for khas possession: Held the vendor having transferred a portion of the holding had nothing left in him in that portion to surrender. ———S. 85—Non-transferable occupancy holding—Transfer of portion—Forfeiture—Surrender of portion—Re-entry by landlord—Subordinate rights.

There is no forfeiture where a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding is transferred. On a surrender of a portion of the holding, the landlord is entitled to re-enter that portion notwithstanding any subordinate rights which the raiyat may have created upon the portion and notwithstanding the former's being aware of such subordinate's rights. ———S. 86—Surrender by registered tenant—Collusion—Right of unregistered co-sharer tenant—Validity of surrender.

It is not open to a registered tenant of an occupancy holding to surrender, in collusion with the landlord a part of the holding in favour of the latter with the express object of destroying the right of his co-sharers or their transferees and thus prejudice their title and possession; and the surrender cannot be accepted as a good foundation for an action in ejectment by the landlord. 14 C.W.N. 229, dist. ———S. 86 (b)—Surrender after—Transfer of portion of interest to third party amounts to an assignment—Effect of—Subsequent surrender.

A surrender by the tenant after he has dealt with a portion of the holding in favour of another person amounts to no more than an assignment in favour of the landlord. But there is no reason why the landlord should be in a worse position than if the assignee were a third party and why he should not acquire all the interest which was left in the tenant at the date of the transfer. ———S 86 (1)—Raiyat—Under-lease not for fixed period—Surrender of holding—Registration—Suit against lessee.

A raiyat holding under a lease not for a fixed period can surrender the holding under S. 86 (1) of the B. T. Act. Such a surrender need not be by an instrument even though the tenant held under a registered lease. When a raiyat surrenders his holding and the surrender is accepted by the landlord who enters into possession, the tenant cannot sue to recover the holding from persons to whom the landlord has let it after surrender. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 86.

———S. 86 (5) and (6)—Non-transferable holding—Sale of—Right of landlord to surrender.

A landlord, to whom a part or whole of a non-transferable holding is surrendered after it is sold, can eject the vendee if he has not been guilty of fraud or collusion. Per Teunon, J:—A raiyat surrendering the holding to a landlord after selling a portion to a stranger, does not entitle the landlord to eject the transferee as the transfer of a part of the holding, is an encumbrance or limitation of the raiyat's right in the whole and operates to prevent a surrender. Per Curiam:—Courts will not allow a landlord to benefit by his own fraud. (Teunon and Richardson, JJ.) DUSTURALI v. RAM KUMARI GOPE. 30 I.C. 567=22 C.W.N. 972.

———S. 86 (5), (6) and (7)—Occupancy holding—Transfer of part of—Surrender.

A transfer of a part of an occupancy holding does not entitle the landlord to eviot the purchaser though he is not bound to recognize him as a tenant. An occupancy tenant cannot surrender the portion of the holding sold by him to a stranger. (Woodroffe and Mookerjee, JJ.) ANANDA MOHAN ROY v. GURUDAYAL SINGH. 49 I.C. 979=22 C.W.N. 965.

———S. 86 (6)—Encumbrance.

Per Newbould, J.—Sale of a part of non-transferable holding does not create an encumbrance within S. 86 (6). (Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) ZAMIR MUNSHI v. BISSESWARI DEBYA. 40 I.C. 544=25 C.L.J. 480.

Per Richardson, J.—The section invalidates surrenders by tenant to landlord, so as to defeat claims of encumbrancers. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) RAM KUMAR v. RAMESHWAR SHAH. 38 I.C. 523 (Cal.).

———S. 86 (6)—Right of landlord to khas possession.

A landlord is not entitled to khas possession against the transferee, if the transferor has made a surrender without the transferee's consent as the surrender is not valid. (D. Chatterjee and N.R Chatterjea, JJ.) HASUNI BIBI v. SADIR MAMUND SARKAR.
30 I.C. 252 (Cal.).

———S. 86 (6)—Encumbrance—Meaning of.

Per Woodroffe, J. Coxe, J. (contra)—'Encumbrance' is one that is binding between the tenant and the encumbrancer and not binding on a landlord. In case of surrender the landlord is equitably bound by the tenant's transaction by way of a mortgage. Neither landlord nor the tenant can derogate against his grant. (Woodroffe and Coxe, JJ.) MAHOMED NARASURUDDIN SARKAR v. SHEIKH ISAB.

27 I.C. 1003=21 C.L.J. 183.

——S. 86 (6) and 88—Occupancy holding—Usufructuary mortgage—Encumbrance.

Where a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding was usufructuarily mortgaged with a covenant not to surrender, but the mortgagor surrendered it. Held, the encumbrance being by a registered deed and surrender being effected with the consent of the plaintiff, it was invalid under S. 86 (6) of the B. T. Act. An encumbrance on a part of a holding is an encumbrance on the whole. (D. Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) RAM UDAR SINGH v. MR. WILLIAM COXE.

——S. 86 (6) and (7)—Tenant surrendering holding to strangers.

A tenant after surrendering a holding, sold it to a third person and again executed a kabuliyat in favour of the landlord. The landlord sued the trespassers on ground of non-transferability. The unauthorised purchase does not create an encumbrance on the holding within S. 86 (6) and (7), and the landlord could eject the purchaser who could evidently recover damages from the tenant vendor. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) RAMONI MIHAN ROY v. KALUMUDDI. 17 I.C. 682=17 C.W.N. 1101.

——S. 86 (6) and (7)—Surrender by tenant—Prior transfer of portion of non-transferable holding—Landlord's rights.

A surrender of a non-transferable holding by an occupancy raiyat to his landlord, where the raiyat has previously transferred a portion of the holding to another person, entitles the landlord to enter upon the whole holding and eject the transferee or to settle it with another tenant. ——S. 86 (6)—Surrender—May be with or without consideration.

Where there is a surrender by the tenant to the landlord, the right of the encumbrancer is preserved. A surrender need not be without consideration. Whenever a holding is returned to the landlord by a tenant whether for or without consideration, the act amounts to a surrender on the part of the tenant. (Ross, J.) ——S. 87—Landlord and tenant—Non-transferable occupancy holding—Limitation Act, S. 18.

Where there is a transfer of a non-transferable occupancy holding the landlord can re-enter only on the theory of abandonment in S. 87 of the Act. Where such abandonment took place 12 years before the landlord's suit to recover khas possession, the only way of overcoming the bar of limitation is to establish a case within S. 18, Limitation Act. ——S. 87—Co-sharer's rent decree—Sale in execution—Purchase by decree-holder—Right of other co-sharers.

If a co-sharer landlord purchases a holding sold in execution of a decree obtained by himself for his share of the rent, the other co-sharer landlords are entitled to joint possession to the extent of their shares in the zamindari. But they would not be so entitled if the decree is one under S. 87 of the B. T. Act. In such a case they would only be entitled to a fair rent to the extent of their shares. ——S. 87—Abandonment of holding—Transfer of whole of non-transferable raiyati holding.

S. 87 of the B. T. Act, is not exhaustive and there might be other methods of abandonment. To entitle a landlord to eject a transferee of the whole of the non-transferable raiyati holding he must prove either expressly or by inference that the raiyat has left the holding and disclaims any interest in it. The fact that the tenant has sold the entire holding and given possession of it to the purchaser is a sufficient and distinct repudiation and refusal to pay rent need not be proved. (Chatterjee and Cuming, JJ.) ASANULLA MOLLA v. SANKAR DAS SANYAL. 54 I.C. 548 (Cal.).

——S. 87—Non-transferable occupancy holding—Abandonment—Mortgage with possession.

A usufructuary mortgagee of a non-transferable holding from an occupancy raiyat is entitled to maintain his possession against the landlord unless there has been an abandonment of the holding within S. 87 of the B. T. Act, or a relinquishment or a repudiation of the tenancy. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) PRIONATH BOSE v. KUSSAM KUMARI DASSI.

having recourse to the provisions of S. 87 of the B.T. Act. (Teunon and Richardson, JJ.) WHAHID ALI BHUYA v. MAHAMAD ANSAR ALI. 47 I.C. 147 (Cal.).

——S. 87—Finding of abandonment.

There is nothing in S. 87 of the Act, to aid the finding of abandonment by a tenant. (Chatterjee and Walmsely, JJ.) PRIYANATH MITTER v. ANATH NATH DEY. 37 I.C. 942 (Cal.).

Abandonment is not by itself sufficient to extinguish the tenancy rights of a transferee of a lessee under the T.P. Act, though it may terminate a tenancy under B. T. Act. (Newbould, J.) SAKAYET MOOLAH v. ALAM MOLLAH. 33 I.C. 98 (Cal.)

——S. 87—Tenancy, Splitting of—Abandonment.

Where tenancy in favour of several tenants is not split up and even one of the original tenants is in possession, the tenancy is not abandoned within the section. (Mullick, J.) GOPI SUNDARI DASI v. HALADHAR MAZUMDHAR. 30 I.C. 383 (Cal.).

——S. 87—Abandonment of holding--Mortgage by tenant—Forfeiture—Acceptance of rent under protest—Waiver.

S. 87 of the B. T. Act, is not exhaustive. The landlord may proceed by suit if he can prove that the facts and circumstances of the case lead to an inference of abandonment. 4 C.W.N. 493; 7 C.L.J. 72, foll. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) MOTOOKDHARI v. JUDGDIP SINGH. 19 C.W.N. 1319= 28 I.C. 343 =21 C.L.J. 261.

——S. 87—Abandonment — Effect of — Usufructuary mortgage—Creation of.

S. 87 of the Act is special section and where the conditions mentioned therein are established, a landlord can treat the holding as abandoned on following the procedure laid down therein; mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage is not abandonment but coupled with other facts might be one. Where on such an abandonment the landlord settled the land with the plaintiff: Held, that the title of the plff. was completed and he was entitled to recover. (Jenkins, C.J. and Ray, J.) MONOHARPAL v. ANANTHA MOYEE DASYA. 20 I.C. 198= 17 C.W.N. 802.

——S. 87—Scope of—Land agriculture—Homestead—Ejectment—Non-transferable holdings—Transferee as trespasser.

S. 87 contemplates cases where there is cultivation of the holding by the tenant, and not where a holding consist partly of agricultural and partly of homestead. If the tenant of a non-transferable holding executes a usufructuary mortgage places the mortgagee, in possession and abandons the holding, the landlord can treat the mortgagee as a trespasser and ask for ejectment though the case is not strictly within S. 87. (Chatterjee, J.) SHASHI MOHAN SUTRADHAR v. BIPIN BEHARI KARMOKAR. 9 I.C. 20 (Cal.).

A Hindu widow can abandon a raiyati holding. (Ross, J.) DEO NARAIN SAHU v. RAMANAND SAHU. 63 I.C. 211 (Pat.).

Under S. 87 of the Act, a plaintiff must prove (1) that the raiyat voluntarily abandoned his residence without notice, (2) that he did go without arranging for payment of his rent as it fell due, and (3) that he ceased to cultivate the holding by himself or by some other person. (Das and Adami, JJ.) RAMJANUN SINGH v. KHUB LAL SINGH. 2 Pat. L T. 219= 59 I.C. 908=1921 Pat. 151.

——S. 87—Mere execution of usufructuary mortgage—Forfeiture or abandonment.

A tenant continuing to live in the village is not considered to forfeit his tenancy or abandon his holding merely because he executes a usufructuary mortgage and delivers possession under it. (Jwala Prasad, J.) AJODHYA PRASAD SINGH v. JAGDEO SINGH. 37 I.C 915 (Pat.)

——S. 87—Abandonment of homestead—Test.

Test of abandonment of homestead is discontinuance of residence in the village. Purchaser of non-transferable homestead from a tenant is liable to be ejected as trespasser, by the Zemindar. (Sharfuddin and Roe, JJ.) RAGHUBAR SINGH v. RAM GHULAM MISSIR. 36 I.C. 653=1 Pat. L.J. 502.

——S. 87 (2) and (3)—Abandonment, when effectual.

To make an abandonment effectual, notice to Collector under S. 87 (2) is not necessary; the notice is essential for the suit which the tenant can bring under S. 87 (3). A landlord who has not given such notice, can still prove the abandonment. The question of abandonment is a question of fact. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) KAMALA KANTA CHAKI v. BEJOYA KANT LAHIRI. 15 I.C. 639 (Cal.).

S. 88 of the B.T. Act does not warrant a decree for ejectment in a landlord's suit for ejectment of the purchasers of a holding on their failure to jointly and severally attorn to the landlord within a time fixed by the Court. (Walmsley and Panton, JJ.) GIRIBALA DASI v. KUDRUTULLA PRAMANIK. 47 I.C. 575 (Cal.).

——Ss. 88 and 161—Holding at fixed rent—Transfer—Landlord's fee not paid—Adverse possession against-tenant—Encumbrance.

A sale of the whole of a raiyati holding at fixed rent is not invalid merely because the landlord's fee is not paid. But when the sale is only of a part of such a holding the landlord is not bound to recognise the purchaser, as such a sale constitutes a division of the holding. A title acquired by adverse possession against a tenant is an encumbrance within S. 161 of the B. T. Act. 14 C.L.J. 136, rel. (Walmsley and Panton, JJ.) FAZAR ALI MISTRI v. AMIR BUKSH MIAN. 47 I.C. 334 (Cal.)

——S. 88—Consent in writing—"Rent or roll," meaning of—Jama Wasil baki, whether rent roll.

A 'consent in writing' cannot be implied from certain documents. A jama wasil baki (an annual statement of the rents payable and received from a particular estate) is not a rent roll within the meaning of proviso to S. 88. The rent roll mentioned therein is a Jamabandi, a permanent document kept in the estate office of landlord which contains a list of the tenants and the rents payable by them and which is kept up and amended from time to time. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) RAJANI SUNDARI DASI v. HARI SUNDARI DASI. 41 I.C. 501=22 C.W.N. 693.

——S. 88—Dakhila signed by agent showing divison—If binding on landlord.

A Dakhila signed by an agent showing division amounts to consent in writing by the landlord to a sub-division of the Dharpatni lease within the meaning of S. 88 of the Act. 25 Cal. 531, rel. (Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ.) RAJKUMAR SARKAR v. RAJANI KANTA CHAKRAVARTI. 13 I.C. 449 (Cal.).

A landlord in suing for rent must implead all purchasers, he is aware of. Any purchaser not so impleaded is not bound by the decree. (Coxe, J.) AKHOY KUMAR v. NARAIN DEY. 9 I.C. 663 (Cal.).

——S. 88—Road-cess return—Receipt by patwari—Statement in plaint by previous landlord.

A road-cess return which is not a rent roll within S. 88 of the B.T. Act does not prove that there has been division of holdings especially where the road-cess return has been rejected by the Collector and has not in any way been acted upon. Nor is a rent receipt signed by the Patwari admissible as evidence of such division, inasmuch as giving evidence as to a division of the holding is outside the scope of the authority of a patwari who is a mere Collector. A plaint filed by a previous landlord for recovery of rent, would also not justify such a conclusion. (Das, J.) MUNSHI JUTHAN LAL v. RAM DAT SINGH. 51 I.C. 995 (Pat.).

——Ss. 88 and 188—Division of holding—Recognition by landlord—Rent receipts by gumastah—Contract between tenants—Distribution of rent.

The mere acknowledgment of receipt of rent which is less than the total jama, without any indication that it is in respect of a portion only of the holding, cannot constitute consent to a division of the holding, within the meaning of S. 88 even when continued over a number of years; but if it should clearly appear on the face of the receipt itself that the rent is paid in respect of a particular portion only of the holding, this may be sufficient acknowledgment to bind the landlord. The "express consent in writing" required by S. 88 may be given by means of a rent receipt, and in each case the adequacy of the consent must be gathered from all the circumstances. A receipt showing the area of the transferred portion and the rent paid therefor should be sufficient to constitute express consent within the meaning of the section. Where a landlord repudiates the acts of his gumastah in giving receipts the onus is on him under S. 106 of the Evidence Act to prove want of authority. S. 88 of the B. T. Act refers to a sole landlord or the entire body of joint landlords where there are more than one landlord. A division which does not bind the whole body of landlords does not come within the scope of the section. There is no provision in the B. T. Act which requires a landlord to recognise a distribution of rent. The landlord is authorised to do so but the authority is derived not from the Act but from the general law as an incident the ownership of property. (Miller, C. J. and Mullick, J.) SRIKUSHEN PRASAD v. MUSAMMAT JEOHASI KUER. 45 I.C. 295=4 Pat. L.W. 316=1918 Pat. 210.

When there is no collusion or restriction of authority by contract or by the act of the Zamindar or custom, an entry in the thekadar's papers relating to the area of the holding or an assessment of rent means under the section an express consent of the thekadar which binds the zamindar. (Chapman and Roe, JJ.) MAHAMAD NAZIRUL HUSSAIN v. CHUNI KANTI. 1 Pat. L.W. 229=38 I.C. 706=2 Pat. L.J. 151.

——S. 88—Recognition of transfer—Rent receipts granted by patwari—Effect.

Rent receipts by patwari and a letter from one patwari to another stating that the rent would be paid by the transferee of the occupancy holding do not mean recognition of the transfer. Per Chamier, C. J.—A patwari or rent collector cannot consent on behalf of his master to the transfer of an occupancy-holding. The landlord need not show that his Patwari had no authority to consent to a transfer. Per Kingsford, J.:—A division of a holding and distribution of the rent do not bind the landlord unless made with his express consent in writing, 14 W.R. 211; 25 W.R. 19; 25 Cal. 531; 16 C.L.J. 174, Dist. A suit for accounts against a common manager appointed under S. 95 does not lie without the sanction of the Court which appointed him. A common manager is like a Receiver. The fact that a person ceased to be a common manager has not terminated his liability to render accounts. 40 Cal. 150, ref. Till he has been finally discharged he is still subject to the orders of the Court and his privilege is commensurate with his liability. A common manager appointed under S. 95 is a public officer within S. 2 (17) (d) of the C.P. Code, and a suit for accounts against him is not maintainable without notice under S. 80 of the C.P. Code. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) BENI MADHAB SUKUL v. UPENDRA CHANDRA SINGHA.

Per Curiam: A suit by common manager appointed by a District Judge under S. 95 against an ex-common manager, for account and for recovery of such sums of money as may upon account being taken, be found due, is maintainable, as such a suit is for the purpose of management of the estate under C. C. (3) of S. 98 of the Act. Per Ghose and Geidt, JJ., contra). Such a suit shall be brought with the sanction of the Dt Judge under r. 4 of the rules framed by the High Court in accordance with S. 100 of the B. T. Act. Held, on the facts that the Dt. Judge was cognizant of all the steps taken by the manager and this was a sufficient compliance with S. 98, B.T. Act. Per Geidt, J. Rule 4 framed by the High Court under S. 100 of the B.T. Act, is a check on expenditure, and the only necessary consequence of the infringement of the rule, is to make the manager liable for all expenses improperly incurred. (Ghose and Geidt, JJ.) ——S. 95—Common manager — Position and powers of—Suit for accounts—Misappropriation—Position of manager.

A common manager appointed by the District Judge under S. 95 of the B. T. Act who has regularly submitted accounts for the period of his management to the Judge, which accounts have been duly audited and passed by the Judge after giving full opportunity to all the co-owners to examine them and after consideration and disposing of their objections, cannot be sued by one of the co-owners to render a general account for the whole period of his management, after his discharge. Where a co-owner sued a common manager for accounts Held, that this was not a suit in which the plff. sought to recover from the deft. certain specific sums of money which were not included in the accounts, and that the allegations in the plaint were vague and indefinite and so the suit should be dismissed on that ground. 39 Cal. 587, dist. A common manager is in a position corresponding to that of a Receiver. Except with the sanction of the District Judge, no suit can be brought against a common manager by a co-owner for misappropriation or retention of certain specific sums, which, in the ordinary course of management, ought to have appeared in the account and which, the co-owner was aware, at the time, were not included in the accounts or with due inquiry might have discovered, were not included in the accounts. A co-owner would not be precluded from bringing a suit against a common manager for acts of misconduct or misappropriation done outside the limits of his authority as such manager under the B.T. Act. Common manager appointed under S. 95 should not be compelled to hand over the share of rents to a co-owner whose claim is in dispute. He should be directed by District Judge to retain the portion in his hands. (Sharfuddin and Coxe, JJ.) BHABONGANA DEBYA v. HORINDRA NARAIN ROY. 16 I.C. 48=17 C.W.N. 445.

——Ss. 95 and 98—Right of common manager to defend suit for possession—Necessity of making co-owners parties.

A common manager appointed under the Bengal Tenancy Act represents the co-owners for defending a suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession and it is immaterial if the co-ownars are or are not made parties. ——S. 98—Receiver—Appointment of.

The provisions of O. XL, r. 1 are not restricted by B.T. ——S. 98—Power of Dt. Judge—Suit on basis of Dt. Judge's order—Limitation.

No question of limitation arises in a suit by a retired common manager to recover arrears of his pay on the basis of the Dt. Judge's order for payment inasmuch as the Dt. Judge has ample powers to pass orders in respect thereof under S. 98. (Fletcher and Smither, JJ.) TRAILOKYA NATH v. DURGA NATH.

——S. 98—Common manager—Powers.

A common manager cannot be sued in respect of misappropriations in the ordinary course of management without the sanction of Dt. Judge as his position is similar to that of a Receiver. The High Court having made rules under S. 100 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, defining the powers and duties of Managers, has power under S. 107 of the Government of India Act to revise the orders of a District Judge under Chap. ——Ss. 101 and 111—Enhancement of rent—Alteration, suit for—Local area.

A suit for enhancement of rent under S. 30 of the B. T. Act and a suit of the nature described in S. 52 are included in the expression 'suit for alteration' of rent in S. 111. Under S. 101 of the B. T. Act, an entire district is included in the term 'local area' although an area smaller than an entire estate as a whole is usually meant by the term "local." (Mookerjee and Chapman, JJ.) ——Ss. 101, 102 and 103—Record of rights—Record of custom—Value of—Presumption—Evidence Act, S. 35—Effect of.

Under S. 101, a Revenue Officer can prepare a record of rights, in respect of lands in any local area notified by the local Government but he cannot record the existence of any local custom that may affect such lands as part of the Record of Rights, as under S. 102 a village custom is not one of the particulras to be recorded. If a Record of Rights contains an entry as to custom, there is no presumption under S. 103-B as to its correctness, and although under S. 35, Evidence Act, it is relevant, the burden of proving the existence of a custom lies on the party relying upon it. ——Ss. 101 (a) 101 (3) and 111-A—Scope of—Change in wording of section—Effect—Order by local Government on application—Ultra vires—Civil Court—Jurisdiction — Notification—Issue of—Civil suit to set aside order barred.

The expression 'a large proportion of landlords' in Section 101 (2) (a) of the Act includes not merely proportion numerically but also landlords having a large interest in the estate. A change in the wording of a section does not necessarily involve a change in the land. S. 111-(A) of that Act does not debar the Civil Court from determining that the Local Government's order under section 101 (2) (a) was ultra vires and illegal. This discretion to determine if the application is in due form under S. 101 (2) (a) rests in the Government and when it has decided that point and issued the Notification, a Civil Court is barred by S. 101 (3) from interfering with the order. ——Ss. 102, 104-H and 188—Suit under S. 104-H—Revised rent roll.

A suit under S. 104-H of the B.T. Act does not lie on the ground that an enhancement of rent should not have been made by reason of a rise in the price of staple food crops since the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy are mentioned in S. 102 (h) whilst the rent payable comes under S. 102 (e) of the Act. In a suit under S. 106 of the B. T. The correctness of the entries which is presumed under S. 103-B, the right to challenge it only by a suit under S. 104-H and the conclusiveness of the entry as to area under S. 104-J is not applicable to such a plea. A person may withdraw from a suit, without permission for a fresh suit under S. 106 Bengal Tenancy Act for a declaration as to the correctness of the entry of the deft.'s name in the record of rights as owner of a share and yet subsequently sue in the Civil Court for a declaration of title and possession; but the case is different under O. XXIII, r. 1 (3), Civ. Pro. Code under which plff. cannot subsequently sue on the same cause of action after withdrawal without permission to bring fresh suit. (Chatterjee and Newbould, JJ.) ASWINI KUMAR AICH v. SARADA CHARAN BASU. 37 I.C. 253=24 C.L.J. 19.

———Ss. 103 and 105—Scope of—Co-sharer landlord—Application whether maintainable—Partition—Mode of effecting.

There is a fundamental difference between the scope of Ss. 103 and 105. S. 103 contemplates a record of existing facts while S. 105 contemplates an alteration of exising facts. An application under S. 105 for the settlement of joint equitable rent does not lie at the instance of one of several joint landlords; it must be presented by the entire body of persons who are joint landlords. The mere fact that one of the co-sharers is not willing to join the plaintiff in an application under S. 105 does not dissolve the relationship of joint landlords among themselves. The only remedy for such joint landlord is to effect a partition with his co-sharer or to have a common manager appointed. Where a landlord challenges the entry in the record of rights before a Revenue Officer who is competent under S. 105-A to try the issue before trying the question under S. 105 the proceeding is in essence one under S. 105 and not under S. 106. Defendant produced the Perganah Register, the Kanongo Register, and the Thak map and the Settlement to show by omission of entries of lakhirajas therein, that no lakhirajas existed in the village. Held, that long possession without payment of rent raises a presumption of lakhiraj right. ——Ss. 103-A and 106—Record of Rights—Entry in—Suit before Settlement Officer for declaration that entry is incorrect—Custom—Appropriation of trees—Onus.

An entry having been made in the published Record of Rights that the tenants were entitled to appropriate the trees standing upon their occupancy holdings, the proprietor instituted suits before the Assistant Settlement Officer for a declaration that the entry was incorrect and that he was entitled to half the value of the trees. Held, the ordinary law is that the tenant has the right to cut and the landlord has the right to appropriate ; if the tenant claims any right of appropriation, he must prove a custom to that effect and it was open to the officer who prepared the Record of Rights to enquire whether the tenants had discharged the onus which the law has placed upon them. But as S. 103-B of the B.T. Act provides that the Record of Rights is presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved by evidence, the onus is upon the plff. to show that she had the right to the share. The Record of Rights is no doubt entitled to the benefit of the presumption attached to it but where the Court has before it the evidence upon which the record was prepared and the plff. denied the correctness of the records, the Court is bound to come to a finding whether that evidence is sufficient to justify the entry. ———Ss. 103-B and 106—Record of Rights—Presumptions of correctness—Road cess returns and quinquennial register prepared under Regn. XLVIII of 1793—Admissibility of.

In a suit by the landlords for correction of an entry in the Record of Rights to the effect that the rent of a tenure was fixed, the plffs. alleged that the rent was open to enhancement and adduced in evidence quinquennial registers prepared under Regn. XLVIII of 1793 and the tenant produced some road-cess returns to prove that the rents had been unchanged for over 20 years. Held, the road cess returns were inadmissible in evidence having regard to provisions of the Bengal Cess Act. To start with, there was a presumption in favour of the defts, from an entry under S. 103-B of the B.T. Act. Therefore the onus of proof rested entirely on the plaintiffs landlords to negative the effect of the said presumption. Assuming the entries in the quinquennial register were admissible in evidence they were not sufficient to negative the presumption under S. 103-B of the B.T. Act. (Ghose and Chotzner, JJ.) ——S 103 (B)—Record of Rights—Presumption of correctness is not rebutted by its being against the General law.

The presumption of correctness attaching to an entry in the Record of Rights cannot merely be rebutted by showing that it is opposed to the general law. The deft. was an under-raiyat of plff. in a khasmahal of Govt. and the deft. had by a contract made previously to the Record of Rights, agreed to pay to the plff. rent at Rs. 10-2-0. The Revenue Officer fixed the fair rent payable by the deft. at Rs. 12, in preparing the Record of Rights. Held, that under S. 104, the Revenue Officer could settle a fair and equitable rent, that his decision had the force of a decree and was res judicata between the parties and that the plff. was entitled to a decree at the rate of Rs. 12. ——— S. 104-H—Rent free title decided by Settlement Officer before the Amendment Act—Not res judicata.

——— Ss. 104-H and 111-A—Record of Rights — Court bound by — Re-settlement—Arrears of rent.

A "re-settlement" or a new contract of lease contemplates a new obligation and a new contract to pay new rent and is not the same cause of action as the rent which becomes due under the original contract of letting. It is not open to a Court to go behind the Record of Rights to ascertain the true nature of the tenancy between the parties. A Record of Rights prepared during the Settlement of Government Revenue under S. 104-H and 111-A of the B.T. Act is conclusive, subject to the tenant's right to sue under S. 104-H (3). A suit for a declaration that the plff. is an occupancy raiyat and not a tenure holder as erroneously described in the Record of Rights is a declaratory suit coming under the category of suits under Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act referred to in section 111-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act; and the period of limitation for such a suit is six years. ——— S. 104-H (3)—Scope—Nature of relief.

Under S. 104-A, the plaintiff can only claim alteration of an entry of rent settled or about to be settled. Though the Court will examine the grounds given by plaintiff for such alteration, it will not grant declaration in respect of matters referred to in rule S. (3). Plaintiff cannot in a suit under S. 104-A, ask for a declaration that part of land is nij jote or that certain tenants have not acquired occupancy rights therein. The landlord or tenant, whoever be the aggrieved party, may sue under S. 184-A, against the person benefitted by the entry, usually the Secretary of State. The under-

In settling a fair rent under S. 104-H (4) of the B. T. Act, what the Court has to consider is the rent of other holdings of the same class comprised in the same Settlement Rent Roll. The mere fact of the villages being neighbouring ones does not necessarily show that they are comprised in the same Settlement Rent Roll. (Chatterjee and Duval, JJ). MANMATHA NATH KAR v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 54 I.C. 718 (Cal.).

——— S. 104 (J)—Entry as to rent in Record of Rights—No Evidence to contradict can be given.

S. 104 (J) precludes any evidence from being given to contradict the statement as to the rent mentioned in the Record of Rights where a Settlement roll has been prepared under the provisions of S. 104-A to 104-F. It does not matter whether the evidence is in writing or by matter of record or otherwise. The provisions of the statute are conclusive that no evidence can be given to contradict matters which fall within S. 104-(J) (Fletcher and Cuming, JJ.) ——— S. 104-J — Presumption—Rate and amount of rent—Scope of.

The presumption in S. 104-J merely has reference to the rate and amount of interest, so that the mere fact that a certain rate of rent was found to be payable to the plff. by the deft's father, raises no presumption that the deft. is the plff.'s tenant. mal or lakhiraj—Rent settled—Suit by tenant for declaration of title.

Plff's holding was recorded in the Record of Rights as mal land liable to assessment of rent. Deft. landlord applied for settlement of fair and equitable rent under S. 105 of the B.T. Act. Plff. pleaded that his holding was his nishkar lakhiraj. An issue was raised on the point but owing to the plff's failure to adduce evidence, the Settlement Officer proceeding upon the Record of Rights assessed the holding to rent. Plff. then instituted the present suit for declaration of his nishkar lakhiraj title: Held, that the Settlement Officer had recorded a decision on the issue within S. 107 of the B.T. Act. The suit was barred under S. 109 of the Act. It is not necessary for the application of S. 109 of the B.T. ——Ss. 105, 105-A, 106 and 107 (2)—Scope of—Record of Rights—Application for settlement of rent—Power of Settlement Officer to decide status of tenant.

On an application by a landlord under S. 105 for the settlement of the rent, though no formal issue was framed as to the status of the tenants, the Settlement Officer was bound to try and decide the question of the status of the tenant, as the question was one of the kind described in clause (e) of S. 195-A. The word "issue" in S. 105-A of the B. T. Act, cannot mean merely an issue framed and recorded according to law. The object of S. 105 of the B. T. Act, is to give the deft. in proceedings under S. 105. the right to raise questions which would properly form the subject-matter of proceedings under S. 106. Therefore although in such a case the tenant does not apply under S. 106 to have the entry corrected, the Settlement Officer should order a correction of the entry to be made in the Record of Rights. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 105.

——Ss. 105 and 109—Settlement officer's decision—Final as to settling rent—Statutory bar.

When a Settlement Officer goes wrong in deciding the question under S. 106, which does not arise, his decision so far as it is a decision settling rent cannot be interfered with and on such a point no second appeal will lie. It is impossible to go behind the statutory bar raised by S. 102, to the rent fixed in proceedings under S 105 so far as the proceedings have been properly conducted. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) SHASHIBHUSHAN HUZRA v. ASWINI KUMAR SAMANT. 28 I.C. 981=19 C.W.N. 637 (note).

——Ss. 105 and 109-A—Appeal—Enhancement of rent—Application by landlord.

The Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply and the Special Judge has no jurisdiction to enhance the rent of a tenant holding land as Korfa for residential purposes. S. 109-A is no bar to an appeal in a case of settlement of rent in which a question of jurisdiction is definitely raised. (Chapman and Newbould, JJ.) RAMDAS MUKHOPADHYA v. BIPRADAS PAL CHOWDURY. 27 I.C.446=19 C.W.N. 35.

——Ss. 105 and 188—Joint landlords—Revenue paying estates—Lands falling under more than one estate—Revenue Sale of one estate.

Where one of three revenue paying estates in the occupation of the defts. was sold for arrears of revenue and was purchased by the plff. and the estate purchased comprised an ½ undivided share of the plots included in the various tenancies. Held, that the plff. is not in the position of a joint landlord along with the proprietors of the estates which have not been sold and that the plff.'s suit under S. 105 of the Act for settlement of fair rents is not barred by S. 188 of the Act. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ASKARAN SATIYA v. SATISH CHANDRA. 24 I.C. 281 (Cal.).

A patta which does not limit the period but provides for a certain rate of rent from a certain year onwards, creates a permanent tenure. The consolidation of two items payable by the tenant does not constitute a variation or enhancement. (Teunon, J.) HARDAS v. ABHOY CHARAN. 24 I.C. 58 (Cal.).

——Ss. 105, 105-A and 106—Rent suit—Entry in record—Objection as to correctness—How taken.

A tenant cannot question the correctness of entries in the record, in proceedings on an application by the landlord under S. 105 before the enactment of S. 105-A; but he can do so by a suit under S. 106 or by a suit for declaration in Civil Courts. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 105.

———S. 105—Record of Rights—Khatian—Non-registration of proprietor's name as owner—Application for settlement of rent.

The mere fact that the proprietor's name did not appear in the Khatian of the Record of Rights as owner of the tenure is no ground for holding that he was not entitled to apply under S. 105 of the B.T. Act for settlement of a fair and equitable rent. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) UPENDRA NATH GHOSE v. JAMINI MOHUN-LAL. 21 I.C. 37=18 C.W.N. 268.

———Ss 105, 106, 109 and 158 (d)—Scope of.

S. 109 merely prohibits suits regarding matters already subject of proceedings under S. 105 or S. 106. Where at the final publication of the record of rights, the proprietor took proceedings under S. 106 of the Act and the Revenue Officer directed that the lands should be recorded as liable to payments of rent, and thereupon the proprietor instituted a suit for the assessment of fair rent, in the Civil Court as it was then too late to apply under S. 105 of the Act. Held, that the suit is maintainable if not under the general law as a suit in the nature of declaratory suits, then as an application under S. 158 (d) of the Act. 19 Cal. 182, Dist. ———Ss. 105 and 106—Landlord and tenant—Settlement of fair rent.

A Settlement Officer can settle fair rents and the Special Judge on appeal can direct settlement of fair rent on excess lands on a proceeding under S. 105 of the Act even before the amendment of Act (III B.C. 1898). Even if the case be taken to come only under S. 106, the Revenue Officer and the Special Judge on appeal can assess rent on the excess land although the proceedings might have been headed as being one under S. 105. The word 'in respect of the land held by tenants' includes excess lands held by the tenant. 37 Cal. 30 at 41 Rel. on. (Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) DHUNMUN PANDEY v. NEWAS PRASAD.

An application under S. 105, B.T. Act which can be withdrawn under O. 23, C.P.C., is not a suit and a suit for enhancement of rent is maintainable even if the plaintiff withdraws previous application under S. 105, B.T. ———S. 105—Existing rent—Second appeal.

Where it was found that the rents had not been paid for over a generation it was held that there was no existing rent to attract the presumption under cl. (1) and there had been no increase or reduction of rent but merely the fixing of fair and equitable rent. A proceeding under S. 105 is not subject to second appeal. (Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ.) KALI SANKAR v. KALOO MOLLAH. 9 I.C. 493 (Cal.).

———S. 105—Settlement of rent—Application filed by all landlords, but signed by some—Maintainability.

Whether proceedings under S. 105, B.T. Act are suits is open to question. An application being filed by all landlords, but withdrawn by some afterwards, the point still remains undecided as regards who desire to proceed with it. An application is not deemed void by reason of a flaw in the signature or if any one of the proprietors is not mentioned in it. (Miller, C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, J.) ———Ss. 105 and 109—Matters not raised, nor decided are not—Not res judicata.

It cannot be held on the analogy of the doctrine of constructive res judicata that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court has been constructively excluded even when a point has been neither raised nor decided under S. 105 read with S. 105-A. of the B.T. ——Ss. 105 and 103—Enhancement of rent—Proceedings for—Limitation.

It is not necessary to sue for a declaration that an entry in the Record of Rights that the defendants were raiyats at fixed rates is wrong, before instituting a proceeding for enhancement of rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act. If a suit is substantially such a declaratory suit as is contemplated in the proviso to S. 111-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, then the plaintiff cannot, by adding a prayer for confirmation of possession, escape the six years' rule. The point from which limitation is to run is the date of the publication of the adverse entry in the Record of Rights unless there has been any subsequent invasion of the plaintiff's right, in which case, it starts from the later date. ——Ss. 105 and 109-A—Rent settled in a proceeding under S. 105—Road cess return showing lesser rate filed prior to such proceeding—Effect of.

The Landlord has a right to recover rent at a higher rate than that entered in the road-cess returns, if subsequent to the lodging of the road-cess return rent is enhanced. ——Ss. 105-A and 109—Settlement of rent—Decision on status of tenant—Civil Courts.

A Settlement Officer, when hearing an application for settlement of fair rent has jurisdiction to enquire as to whether a tenant belongs to the class to which he was shown in the Record of Rights. It is not competent to a Civil Court under S. 109 of the B.T. Act to enquire into the status of a tenant, which was the subject of enquiry before a Settlement Officer. ——Ss. 105-A and 106—Scope of—Section 105-A.

The intention of section 105-A of the B.T. Act is that where a party without resorting to S. 106 applies for settlement of fair rent under S. 105 and the issues mentioned in S. 105-A are raised they shall be tried and settled by the Revenue Officer and rent settled accordingly. ——Ss. 105 (a) and 109—Applicability of—Suit in Civil Court—Bar.

In order to attract the operation of S. 109 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which contemplates creating a bar to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts under certain circumstances, it is essential to establish that the Civil suit had for its subject a matter which had already formed the subject of an application under S. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The introduction of S. 105 (a) has not altered the scope of S. 109 which has to be construed on the same line as before the introduction of that sub-section. (Bucknill, J.) SHEOPRATAP DUBEY v. SHEOGULAM LAL.

On an application for enhancement of rent the facts were found to be these. At the time of which any historical knowledge was available, the tenure in question was created the lands were not all cultivable and had to be reclaimed. The rent was therefore fixed not on the quantity of the lands let out but on the quantity of land that could be brought under cultivation by the Talukdar. It was specifically mentioned in the Kabuliats of 1223 (B.S.) that the rent payable at the time was to be paid on the quantity of the land under cultivation until there was a measurement. A later document of 1249 contained no terms as regards enhancement. Held, that the document of 1249 was merely a recognition of the original tenancy created in 1223 and the rent could be increased according to the terms embodied in the Kabuliat of 1223. A Revenue Officer deciding disputes under S. 106, is confined to the question of possession only. (Cuming, J.) SEBA DAS JANA v. NIRODA BALA DASI. 63 I.C. 602 (Cal.).

——S. 106—Proceedings under does not bar civil suit to rectify Record.

The fact that a proceeding under S. 106 of the Act for correcting an entry in the Record of Rights was commenced and withdrawn is no bar to a civil suit to correct the entry in the Record of Rights. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885). S. 106.

A suit to enhance rent proceedings on the presumption that a zemindar, holding under the perpetual settlement has the right from time to time to raise the rents of all the rent paying lands within the zemindary according to the pergannah or current rates unless either he is precluded from the exercise of that right by a contract binding on him or the lands in question can be brought within one of the exemptions recognised by Regn. (VIII of 1793). It also assumes that the defts., had some valid tenure or right of occupancy in the lands which are the subject of the suit. The mere fact of a tenure being hereditary does not show that the rent of the tenure has been fixed in perpetuity. The use of the expression 'patni taluk' in the contract of tenancy does not necessarily create a patni taluk, i.e., a taluk subject to the summary procedure for realization of rent provided by Regn. (VIII of 1819). (Mookerjee, C.J. and Fletcher, J.) RAJA NIROD CHANDRA SINGHA SARMA v. HARIHAR CHAKRAVARTHI CHAUDHURI. 38 I.C. 867=32 C.L.J. 19.

——S. 106—Entry in Record of Rights—Joint landlords—Suit for partition—Onus.

Plff. and his co-sharers were entered as joint landlords in the Record of Rights. There had been a partition between them long before the Record of Rights and plff. had been in sole possession since the partition. Held, that though there was nothing to show what were the precise terms of the partition still in the absence of any evidence on deft.'s side to show that the plff's. possession was as a co-sharer on his behalf, the plff. should be recorded as the sole landlord. ——S. 106—Suit under—Plff.'s evidence.

The plff. in a suit under S. 106 must prove not only incorrectness of the entry in Record of Rights but also in what respect it is incorrect and also he must show how it can be corrected, otherwise his suit must fail. ——Ss. 106 and 109—Scope of.

S. 109 of the B.T. Act, is a bar only in regard to matters forming the subject of investigation under Chap. ——S. 106—Suit under—Question of title—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

A person not in possession of land claimed as rent free at the date of the Record of Rights, cannot have the mere question of his title to hold the land rent free tried in a suit under S. 106 of the B.T. Act (VIII of 1885). Nor can he obtain possession of the land in a suit under that section.

If the plaintiff has a title and his claim to possession is not barred by limitation, he is entitled to possession. But he cannot get all the reliefs in a suit under S. 106, whereas he can get a complete relief by a suit in the Civil Court. (N. R. Chatterjee and Greaves, JJ.) ——S. 106—Scope of—If question of title between rival tenants can be disposed of.

A suit for a declaration of title and for possession without any claim to correct an entry in the Record of Rights, is not one under S. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and must therefore be brought in a Civil Court and between landlords of neighbouring estates, the only question is one of possession at the date of final publication of the list and Revenue Courts have therefore no jurisdiction to determine the same. ——S. 106—Suit under—Record of Rights—Onus on plff.

Where a suit is instituted under S. 106 the plff., must prove that the entries in the Record of Rights are not correct. When a certain time is given to do a certain act, and the person bound to perform it, is by an act or order of the Court, prevented from carrying it out, he can deduct the time so spent. ——S. 106—Suit involving question of title—Settlement officer can't transfer.

Under S. 106 of the B. T. Act a Revenue Officer is competent to decide the question, whether the relationship of landlord and tenant subsists, if the question is not one between neighbouring estates. Where a recorded tenure-holder brought a suit under S. 106 of the B.T. Act for declaration that the entry in the survey was wrong and that he was himself the proprietor, the suit raised a question of the title between rival proprietors. Where a settlement officer has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit under S. 106 of the B. T. ——S. 107—Decree of Revenue Officer—If final.

The decree of a revenue, Officer in suits under S. 106 of the Act as to the liability of the defts. to pay rent in respect of certain lands is made final by S. 107 of the Act and the defts. cannot in any subsequent proceedings or suits by the proprietor for assessment of fair rent to contest that decree. 29 Cal. 707 P.C. dist. ——Ss. 107 and 109—Decision by Special Judge—Order—Appeal—Limitation.

G was recorded as a raiyat at fixed rate by the survey authorities and J the landlord claimed an enhancement of rent under S 30 (a) (b) of the B T. Act. The Revenue Officer decided the case on 30-10-1916 and J appealed to the Special Judge who on 4-2-1919 held that G was an occupancy raiyat and not fixed rate tenant, and allowed the appeal with costs and on 8-5-1919 of his own motion fixed Rs. 13-8-0 as costs of this appeal. No separate decree was drawn up and G filed a second appeal to the High Court on 8-8-1919. Held, that the appeal was barred by limitation as the time ran from 2-4-1919, the date of the judgment and not from 8-9-1919 the date of the additional order defining the amount of the costs awarded under the previous order. The order of 4-2-1919 in so far as it gave reasons for the findings was a 'judgment' and in so far as it made a declaration or order, it had the effect and force of a decree. The additional order as to the costs was not an amendment of the judgment under S. 152 of the C. P. Code but it may be taken as an amendment of the decree but under Art. 156, time runs from the date of the original judgment and not from the amendment and S. 5 of the Lim. Act was not applicable unless the grounds on which the appeal is based, are intimately connected with the amendment. Per Sultan Ahmad, J.—The word 'decision' in S. 107 of the B.T. Act means 'an adjudication on the merits'. The order for payment of costs having already been made by the first order dated 4-2-1919, the subsequent order stating the amount of costs was simply interlocutory and therefore not a part of the final judgment. The indulgence which can be shown under S. 5 of the Lim. Act must be based upon proper materials. Per Jwala Prasad, J.—O. 20, R. 6 (2) requires a statement of the amount of costs incurred in the suit and the Revenue Officer has to give his directions as to costs in his decision in any proceeding under Ss. 105, 105-A and 106 S. 143 (2) of the B.T. Act making applicable S. 35 of the C. P. Code read with O. 41, R. 35. The subsequent order of 8-5-1919 was not an amendment of the decision but it was a completion of the decision. A party intending to appeal from a decision is entitled to wait till the order as to costs is made in order to see if he will have to take objection as to the costs while appealing from the decision, and the time for appeal runs from that date. The appellant having been misled by the practice to prepare a decree as to memo. of costs separately, S. 5 of the Lim. Act was applicable. 32 Cal. 908, Foll. ——S. 108—Revenue Officer—Power of revision of any order under Ss. 105 to 107.

Under S. 108 of the Act a Revenue Officer specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf has the power of revising any order or decision passed under Ss. 105, 105-A. 106 or 107 made by himself or any other Revenue Officer. A Record of Rights had been prepared accurately but an unauthorized interpolation had been made and was corrected by the Settlement Officer. The entry had not been made owing to a bona fide mistake of the Settlement Officer or of any of the parties within S. 108-A of the Act and no appeal lay to the Special Judge under S. 109-A, therefore there was no second appeal or revision to the High Court. But if it be held that the Settlement Officer purported to act under S. 108-A, an appeal lay to the Special Judge and for his action under S. 109-A (2) a second appeal lay to the High Court. The jurisdiction of a Civil Court is not excluded by S. 109 in regard to a point which, though it might and should have been raised in a proceeding under S. 105 read with S. 105-A has neither been raised nor decided in the proceeding under that section. ——Ss. 109 and 105—Constructive—Res judicate.

Where the tenant claimed abatement of rent under S. 52 but no such question was raised or investigated in the proceeding under S. 105, on a plain and literal reading of S. 109, the position could not be maintained that the suit concerned a matter which had already been the subject of an application under S. 105. The appellant urged a wider construction to be put upon S. 11. Where it was contended that as in a case where S. 11, C.P.C., is applicable, a question which might and should have been raised is deemed to have been raised and decided the High Court should hold under S. 109 that a matter has been the subject of an application under S. 105 whenever it might, if the defendant had so chosen, have been raised and decided under S. 105 read with S. 105-A. Held that this contention was unsound. If the construction put forward by the appellant were accepted, words which are not found there would have to be read into S. 109. It would be held on the analogy of the doctrine of constructive res judicata, that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court had been constructively excluded even when a point had been neither raised and decided under S. 105-A. ——S. 109—Contract against section—Fair rent—Settled on basis of, cannot be enforced.

In every case where the provisions of S. 109 (c) of the Bengal Tenancy Act are invoked, there should be a strict compliance with its requirements. The settlement officer has to determine in the first place whether the terms of the agreement are really such that if they were embodied in a contract, they would not be enforced under the Act. If the conclusion is in the affirmative, he is to satisfy himself that the rent agreed upon is fair and equitable. It is only in the event of his being so satisfied, but not otherwise, that he can settle such rents as fair and equitable. Where the Revenue Officer instead of complying with the terms of S. 109 (c) passed an order in these terms "The tenant agrees. Though the increase is rather large, the attested compromised rent may be settled as fair and equitable." Held that S. 109 (c) did not contemplate settlement of fair and equitable rent on the basis of such an ambiguous order and in accordance with a contract, which contravenes the provisions of the B.T. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 111-B.

The effect of S. 111-B of the Act is that subject to S. 109, the landlord and tenant are at liberty after three months from the date of the certificate of final publication of the Record of Rights, to seek any remedies open to them in the ordinary Civil Courts. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) DHANANJOY MANJHI v. UPENDRANATH DEB. 46 I.C. 428 = 22 C.W.N. 685.

———S 111-B—Record of Rights, publication of—Suit within three months, for determining whether relationship of landlord and tenant arises—If lies.

A suit raising substantially the question whether the relationship of landlord and tenant exists between the plffs. and defts. must fall under S. 111-B of the Act if brought within 3 months of the final publication of the Record of Rights. (Richardson and Newbould, JJ.) ARATU MIRA v. MANI JENA, 20 I.C. 505 (Cal.).

———S. 111-B (b) and (c)—Scope of—C. P. Code, O. 7, Rr. 10 and 11.

A suit involving issues mentioned in (b) and (c) should not be dismissed but should be treated as if instituted on the day following the expiration of the period of three months after the publication of Record of Rights. The plaint however should be returned or rejected under Rr. 10 or 11. (Chatterjee and Richardson, JJ.) PRAN KRISHNA SAHA v KRIPA NATH. 21 C.W.N. 209 = 35 I.C. 76 = 29 C.L.J. 17.

———S. 113—Increase of rent of waste.

Where waste lands are included in the holdings of a tenant for purposes of reclamation and it is stipulated that on their being cultivated, they should be assessed at settlement rate of rent, neither S. 113 nor any section will bar the increase in the rental. (Casperss and Doss, JJ.) JOGESH CHANDRA RAY v. MAKBULAB. 25 C.L.J. 128 = 38 I.C. 595 = 21 C.W.N. 534.

S. 113 applies to the rents finally settled under the provisions of Chap. X but it does not apply to rents otherwise settled, nor to mere entry of existing rent in a Record of Rights. It is not limited to cases where there was no dispute between the landlord and the tenant as to the correctness of rent settled. (Chatterjea and Richardson, JJ.) MEYAJAN BINAN v. JOYMALLA. 34 I.C. 32 = 21 C.W.N. 546.

———S. 114—Cost of survey and settlement is an assessment on persons in respect of land.

A putni lease under the plff. ran thus:—"Should any tax, toll or rent or whatever sum under whatever denomination, be assessed in future, the same should be paid by the lessee if they were assessed on the two taluks but it was to be payable to the lessor if it was assessed on the lessor's income.' Under Chap. X of the B. T. Act the plff. had to pay to Government his share of the cost of Cadastral Survey and Settlement under S. 114. In a suit by plff. against the deft. for the sum, held, that the assessment under S. 114 was not upon the land but upon certain persons in respect of the land and so was not recoverable under the patni lease terms. (Mookerjee, A.C.J. and Fletcher, J.) BEJOY SINGH DUDHURIA v. HEM CHANDRA CHAUDHURI. 62 I.C. 925 = 38 C.L.J. 349.

S. 115 of the B. T. Act does not come into operation at all until all possible proceedings under Chap. X have been exhausted. If discontinuous receipts for rent produced by the tenant show that rent has been paid at the same rate for the years covered thereby, the Court may, by an application of the principle of continuity, infer that there has been no change in the intervening periods. 36 C.L.J 336, Rel. (Mookerjee and Walmsley, JJ.) NARENDRA LAL CHOWDHURY v. BENODE BEHARI SADHU KHAN. 27 C.W.N. 740 = 1924 Cal. 143.

———Ss. 115 and 50—Clash of presumptions—Presumptions as to fixity of rent—Entry in record of rights.

S. 115, Bengal Tenancy Act, provides against clashing of presumptions. It will not permit the presumption under S. 50 of the Act to override that raised from the record of the particulars under Chap. X. It will not be reasonable to suppose that the Legislature intended by enacting S. 115 to preclude evidence of uniform payment of rent for the statutory period in support of the entry of fixity of rent in the record of rights where such entry is presumably based on the evidence of such uniform payment. It will be shutting out a very valuable piece of evidence in favour of a comparatively weak one. If the tenant succeeds in proving a uniform payment of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent shall not be liable to be increased whereas the presumption of the correctness of an entry in the record of-rights though based on such uniform payment is only a rebuttable one. (Richardson and Suhrawardy, JJ.) RASH BEHARI GUHA v. DWARKA NATH BANDOPADHYA. 27 C.W.N. 936 = 76 I.C. 401 = 1923 Cal. 365.

———Ss. 115 and 50—Record of rights—Finality of—Presumption does not arise.

Once the record of right becomes final, a tenant cannot in view of the provisions of S. 115 of the B. T. Act claim the presumption under S. 50 of that Act. In S. 115 the expression "thereafter" means after the particulars have been finally recorded after recourse to all the provisions contained in Chap. X for the attainment of finality in this respect. 37 C. 30, foll.; 45 C. 930; 51 I.C. 552, Ref.; 12 C.W.N. 904, ——S. 115—Damages—Use and occupation—Suit for—Title of plaintiff declared.

A suit for damages for use and occupation without asking for a declaration of title is maintainable where the plff.'s title was declared in a previous suit as against the deft. and he obtained symbolical possession and had also asserted successfully on previous occasions his right to get such damages. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) GIRI NARAIN CHATTERJI v. MODHU SUDAN MOOKERJI. 18 I. C. 751=17 C.W.N. 324.

——S. 115—Presumption under S. 50 cannot be relied on after publication of record.

Under S. 115 a tenant cannot rely upon the presumption under S. 50 (2) after the final publication of the record of rights except in a suit instituted under S. 106 challenging the entry itself within three months from the date of its final publication. ——S. 115—Scope of.

The section aims at concluding once for all the question of tenant's status so far as uniform payment of rent for 20 years is concerned, but it does not bar the proof of tenancy from the time of permanent settlement by any other means as for example by producing original grant. (Jwala Prasad, J.) JANKI KUER v. HIRANAND PANDE. 68 I.C. 23 (Pat.).

——Ss. 116 and 181—Khudkast—Zerait land—Jagir—Service—Tenure.

"Khudkast" does not mean zerait or private lands of the proprietor within S. 116 of the B. T. Act. Nor do the words "jagir khudkasht land" necessarily mean a service tenure within S. 181 of the B. T. Act. (Jwala Prasad, J.) DEONATH MISRA v. AMAR SINGH.

——S. 116, Sch. III, Art 1 (a)—Zerait Land—Non-occupancy rights — Accrual of—Ejectment.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 120.

S. 116 is no bar to the accrual of non-occupancy right in Zerait land and a suit to eject a tenant of Zerait land on the ground of efflux of time must be brought within 6 months from the expiration of the term, as provided in Sch. III, Art 1 (a) of the Act. (Chamier, C.J.) JANKI SINGH v. JAGARNATH DASS.
3 P.L.W. 105=42 I.C. 177=1917 Pat. 318.

——S. 116—Acquisition of occupancy right in zerait.

Where the land is serait land and a person occupies it like a licensee, S. 116 applies and occupancy rights are not acquired. (Mullick and Jwala Prasad, JJ.) UDAI CHAND v. JANG BAHADUR SINGH. 2 Pat. L.J. 353=40 I.C. 500=2 Pat. L.W. 118.

Sch. III, Art. 1 is not applicable in the case of zerait lands. No right of occupancy or non-occupancy can be acquired in serait lands. Hence Sch. III, Art. 1 does not apply to a suit for ejecting a tenant from such lands as that article only applies where occupancy rights exist. (Atkinson, J.) JANKI SINGH v. JAGAN NATH DAS. 39 I.C. 389 (Pat.)

——S. 120—Zerait land—Occupaacy rights cannot be created by contract or grant—Evidence—Section does not exclude any evidence relevant under the Evidence Act.

The Bengal Tenancy Act does not pretend to enumerate the different modes by which rights of occupancy could be acquired at the time when the Act came into force; it merely saves such rights as had already been acquired. The acquisition of occupancy rights by grant was, up to the passing of the B.T. Act, foreign to the law of Bengal. There is nothing in either S. 20 or S. 21 or in any other section of the B.T. Act which provides that a right of occupancy can be acquired either by grant or by contract. An occupancy right is inherent in the status of the raiyat and is not the landlord's to grant. If a landlord confers occupancy right on a tenant in zerait land that does convert the zerait into raiyati land for all time. If a question arises as to the character of the land purchased by the landlord from the tenant there must be an enquiry as to the original character of the land. If it was originally raiyati land the landlord cannot by getting khas possession treat it as zerait. But if it is proved that the land was zerait land within the meaning of S. 120 of the B.T. Act, the land regains its character as such if it comes into the possession of the landlord. The tenant with whom the land is settled subsequently cannot acquire the rights of occupancy in it. When a question arises as to whether the land which is claimed to be zerait land is in fact zerait land an assertion of title on the part of the landlord and communicated to the tenant before 2-3-1883 will be conclusive evidence in his favour. Assertions after that date though not conclusive may be taken into consideration as evidence in favour of the landlord. There is nothing in S. 120 which tells the Civil Courts definitely and clearly that they are to exclude from their consideration that which is relevant evidence under the Evidence Act, and when they are bound to regard under S. 120 paragraph (3), of the Act. (Das and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) MAHARAJAH KESHO PRASAD SINGH v. PARAMESHRI PRASAD SINGH. 2 Pat. 414=1923 Pat 65=4 Pat. L.T. 125=1 Pat. L.R. 111=71 I.C. 902=1923 P. 276.

——S. 120—Zerait land—Recital in Lease—Is no evidence—Survey record, presumption from, is a rebuttable one.

A description of a land as serait in a lease will not be any evidence to show that the land was really serait for there must be evidence under S. 120 to show either that the land was held in the seer cultivation of the landlord for 12 continuous years immediately before the passing of the Act or that it was recognised by village usage as proprietor's Khamar, zerait, Seer Nig Jote or Kamat. Clause 2 of S. 120 allows the evidence of the land being specifically let as proprietor's private land, before the 2nd of March 1883. The presumption afforded by the survey of record of rights is a rebuttable one. (Jwala Prasad and Bucknill, JJ.) BENI CHOUDHURI v. TRILOKENATH TEWARI. 1922 P. 425.

——S. 120—Recitals in deed—Not excluded.

The recital in a mortgage by the landlord that the mortgage property is zerait land is admissible in evidence against him as an admission. Recitals in a mortgage deed in favour of a third person are not excluded by S. 120. (Coutts and Sultan Ahmad, JJ.) RAM KHELAWAN v. RAM NATH. 1 Pat. L T. 640.

——S. 120 (2)— "Any other evidence" meaning of—Policy of—Legislature.

An admission by a tenant in his previous deposition is admissible "as any other evidence" under S. 120 (2). Assertions of witness to the effect that the land was cultivated by the landlord as serait are admissible and the mere execution of kabuliyat is no evidence that the land was serait though it might be taken into consideration along with other evidence. The Policy of the Legislature is to prevent a Zemindar from absorbing the raiyati lands of estate and converting them into his private lands. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) ——S. 120 (2)— "Any other evidence"—Admissions in Kabuliyat—Inadmissibility—Right of occupancy not barred by agreements.

S. 120 (2) (a) of the B. T. Act makes inadmissible in evidence, documents executed between landlord and tenant containing admission as to proprietor's Kamat rights and the absence of occupancy rights in the tenants. Where the terms of a lease contemplate that the land was to be cultivated by the lessee and rent in cash or kind was to be paid to the lessor, the lessee becomes a raiyat and not tenure-holder. The words "khudkast" does not conclusively connote proprietor's private or serait lands "Any other evidence that may be produced" in S. 120 (2) of the B.T. Act should not be construed in a restricted sense especially where the question is raised before a Civil Court. Sub-S. (2) merely directs a Revenue Officer as to the evidence for which he is to look in coming to a decision. 20 C.W.N. 14, 17 Cal. 466, 7 C.W.N. 400, 13 C.W.N. 661, 13 C.W.N. 135, 1 C.L.J. 456, Ref. The words "any other evidence" that may be produced in section 120 (2) (a) does not include evidence contained in an agreement between landlord and tenant. The recital in a kabuliyat executed by the tenant after 2nd March 1883 is not admissible in evidence to prove that the land is zerait. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) ——S. 147-A—Scope of.

S. 147-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act gives effect to the whole scheme of the Act, viz., to prevent the landlord from circumventing the provisions of the Act to the detriment of the illiterate tenant. (Suhrawardy and Cuming, JJ.) NAFAR CHANDRA PAL CHOWDHURY v. BHASI MOLAX. 65 I.C. 881 (Cal.).

——S. 147-A — Non-compliance with—Objection cannot be taken in execution proceedings.

Under a compromise in a rent suit, the deft. took some more land and entire rent was fixed for the whole land, original and additional. ——S. 147-A—Raiyat holding under fixed rent—Compromise.

A tenant in possession of a holding for a long time and having acquired a right of occupancy cannot by any agreement contract himself out of that right nor can a compromise decree not passed in accordance with S. 147-A of the B.T. Act have that effect. (Huda, J.) SHEIKH NASARAT v. KALI DAS CHUCKERBUTTY. 54 I.C. 750 (Cal.).

——S. 147-A.—Compromise decree not complying with terms of the section is a nullity.

Where the provisions of S. 147-A of the B.T. Act have not been complied with a compromise decree fixing the rent as between a landlord and tenant is a nullity and no effect can be given to it. 17 C.W.N. 496, Ref. The fact that the rate of rent recorded in the compromise was also recorded in the partition proceedings can make no difference. Where the original rate of rent is known or proved (as by an entry in the Record of Rights) it is not open to the parties to effect an enhancement of rent under the cloak of a compromise. (Ross, J.) KUNJ BEHARI CHAUDHURY v. CHARAN SINGH. 72 I.C. 40 (Pat.).

——S. 147-A—Applicability—Suit between landlord and trespasser is not governed by section.

If a tenant who holds over after the expiration of the term of his tenancy is sued bona fide in ejectment as trespasser and the suit is compromised by recognition of the tenant as occupancy tenant from the date of the compromise, the enhancement is not illegal under Ss. 29 and 147 of the B.T. Act as the suit is between landlord and trespasser and not between landlord and tenant. (Coutts and Adami, JJ.) SHEOGOBIND SINGH v. MAHABIR MISSER. 4 Pat. ——S. 147-A—Consent decree in contravention of—Not a nullity.

A consent decree passed as between a landlord and tenant in contravention of the provision of S. 147 (a) of the B.T. Act is not a nullity and it cannot be set aside in a separate

A Court can inquire into and give effect to a lawful compromise even if one of the parties repudiates or recedes from it in Court. S. 147-A, Cl. (3) of the Act provides for such power. (Miller, C.J. and Jwala Prasad, J.) UTTIM SAHU v. ARZANI. 46 I.C. 229 (Pat.).

——S. 147-B—Record of Rights—Presumption as to.

——S. 148—Procedure under, is summary—Questions of title may be gone into.

The procedure under S. 148, Bengal Tenancy Act is not a special but a summary one. There is no rigid rule of law that in a rent suit properly so called and filed under S. 148, a question of title may not be determined if it arises. Even if a claim which is not for rent is included in a suit tried under that section, there is no lack of jurisdiction on the part of the judge to deal with the claim. Where a suit for rent against the tenant and an alternative claim for money had, and received, was tried under the summary procedure prescribed by S. 148, the jurisdiction of the Court is not in any way affected and the decision will be binding. Where a plff. obtained a decree against the predecessors of the defts. for rent, the decree established that, at the time it was passed the relationship of landlord and tenant existed between the parties and in the absence of proof by the defts, that relationship had ceased to exist since the passing of the decree, it must be presumed to be finally determined between the parties that the relationship of landlord and tenant existed between them. Co-sharer landlords having separate realisation of rents in respect of their shares, are entitled to realise their share of rent separately. But such an arrangement expressed or implied merely affects the right to sue separately and in no other respect modifies the terms of the holding and the rights to bring the tenure to sale for arrears of rent remains intact. 35 Cal. 331 Ref. In the absence of any sub-division of the occupancy holding with the consent of all the landlords, the right of the entire body of landlords to put up the entire holding to sale is not affected by the purchase of the holding at the sale held in execution of the decree obtained by some of the co-sharer landlords for their shares of rents. A purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding in execution of a decree for rent obtained by some of the co-sharer land lords, is in the position of an unregistered transferee. 9 C.W N. 134 Ref. He is not a necessary party to a suit brought by the entire body of landlords for entire rent. S. 149-A of the Act is an enabling section. A co-sharer landlord is given the right to proceed with the suit for his share only of the rent where he is unable to ascertain whether any amount is due to the other co-sharer. A co-sharer landlord has a right to claim the whole rent on behalf of the entire body of landlords. 35 Cal. 331 (344, 345) ref. It is only in a case so framed that the decree has the effect of a rent decree. rent in a suit framed under B. T. Act S. 148-A the remaining co-sharer landlords can apply under C.P.C. O. 21, R. 90. (Teunon and Cuming, JJ.) WARENDRA BHUSAN ROY v. JATINDRA NATH ROY. 50 I.C. 329 = 23 C.W.N. 619.

——S. 148-A—Rent—Collection of by some co-sharers—Liability of others.

When some of the co-sharers have recovered the whole rent, asserting only an eight annas interest in the superior right, they are bound to make over half of the rent collected to the owners of the other half of the proprietary right. (Newbould and Panton, JJ.) ISWAR DALIN v. GIRINDRA KUMAR NAG. 48 I.C. 726 (Cal.).

Co-sharer landlords who by arrangement with the tenants collect their shares separately and have in previous years brought separate suits for recovery of their dues, can sue jointly for the total amount due to them under the terms of the original lease, which can be enforced by all the co-sharers together, without the consent of the tenants. But if a plaintiff seeks to avail himself of the special provisions of S. 148-A of the Act, he must in his plaint seek to recover the entire amount due to himself and his co-sharers. The nature of the decree to be made in the suit depends upon its true character. If it is a suit for the share of the rent recoverable by the plaintiff separately by reason of the fact that he has on previous occasions collected that sharer of the rent separately from this co-sharer, the decree will be a money decree; if, on the other hand, it is a decree properly framed under S. 148-A, the decree will operate as a rent decree capable of execution under the special procedure prescribed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. (Mookerjee and Walmsley, JJ.) BAIKANTHA NATH SEN v. RAMAPATI CHATTERJEE. 45 I.C. 767 = 27 C.L.J. 101.

——S. 148-A—Tenant of a co-sharer landlord—Under separate agreement—Effect of such tenancy on the co-sharer landlord.

Where a tenant of a co-sharer landlord has executed Kabuliyat respecting his share of the lands in his holding and enters into a separate agreement of tenancy, such co-sharer landlord will be considered, not as a joint landlord but separate landlord. (Jenkins, C.J. and Chatterjee, J.) SAFARUDDI v. FAZAL HUQ. 30 I.C. 414 = 21 C.L.J. 592.

——Ss. 148-A and 158-B—"Rent Due"—Explained—Suit for whole of the arrears—Effect Co-sharer landlord's, meaning of.

"Rent Due" in S. 148-A of the Act is not the rent payable under the contract but the rent actually in arrears, so that a suit for recovery of the whole arrears due is in essence a suit for rent due to all co-sharers and if a decree is obtained, the holding will under S. 158-B pass to the purchaser in execution. The co-sharer landlords are the entire body of persons entitled to collect rent andit is not necessary that the interest of each should be of the same degree. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BROHMANDA NATH DEH v. HEMCHANDRA MITRA.

———Ss. 148-A—and 188—Co-sharer landlords—Suit for rent by one when lies.

Where a tenant makes a contract by which he is liable to pay rent to several co-sharers jointly, one co-sharer cannot maintain a suit for the whole rent. S. 188 of the B. T. Act demands that landlords shall do jointly anything which they are under the Acts required or authorised to do, but there is nothing to prevent one co-sharer from bringing a suit for the whole rent after making the co-sharers who refused to join as plaintiffs, defendants in the suit. 35 C. 331 Ref. Again if a co-sharer can prove that there is a contract express or implied by which a tenant is liable to pay him his share of the rent separately, then he may bring a suit for that part of the rent without joining his co-sharers as defendants, but the decree obtained by him is to be executed as money and not a rent decree. On the other hand, notwithstanding such arrangement for separate collection all the co-sharers may sue jointly for the whole rent. To further facilitate the recovery of arrears of rent due to a co-sharer who is in dispute with his tenants or with his fellow landlords, the legislature enacted S. 148-A of the Bengal Ten. Act. The section requires firstly, that the co-sharer shall sue to recover the rent due to all the co-sharer landlords in respect of the entire holding, secondly, that he must make all the remaining co-sharers parties to the suit, and thirdly, that he must state that he is enable to ascertain what rent is due for the whole tenure or holding or whether the rent due to either co-sharer landlords has been paid owing to the refusal or neglect of the tenant or of the co-sharer landlords, defendants in the suit, to furnish him with direct information on these points or on either of them. In such a case the plaintiff co-sharer will be entitled to proceed with the suit for his share only of the rent and a decree-obtained in a suit so framed shall be as effectual as a decree obtained by the sole landlord in a suit brought for the rent due to all the landlords. If in the suit it is found that the co-sharer landlords have realised rent in excess of their shares, then they will be liable to reimburse the plaintiff to the extent of the excess realised by them. 4 Pat. ———S. 148 (a)—Nature of suit under.

The essential principles underlying S. 148 B.T. Act are that the suit should in form be for the whole rent and in substance for the separate share of rent in arrears and the whole body of landlords should be impleaded with the allegation that the plff. has not been able to ascertain what rents, if any, are due to the former. In such cases the whole rent due must, in the nature of things be always a matter of speculation for the plaintiff and he can assert that he believes that his share of the rent due is the entire rent due and decide on the accuracy of that belief, if and when the impleaded co-sharers appear and claim any arrears as due to themselves. 27 C.L.J, 101, diss; 4 Pat. ——S. 149—Payment of amount claimed in Court—Suit by third person if rendered infructuous by plff. in rent suit obtaining a decree.

The word "pleads" as used in S. 149 of the B. T. Act does not mean that the tenant should set up a valid plea or a plea that is open to him in accordance with law. If the tenant hands in the amount claimed, the Court will serve notice on the third party and unless the third party brings his suit within three months, the plaintiff in the first suit will be entitled to the money. A suit instituted in accordance with clause 33 of S. 149 of the B. T. Act by the "third person" mentioned in that section is not rendered infructuous by the fact that owing to the Court's delay before that suit is tried out the plaintiff in the original rent suit got a decree against the defendant. ——S. 149—Rival landlords—Decision as to title—Onus.

Where in a suit purporting to be under S. 149 of the Act, a decree for money is asked for and an issue of title as between the rival landlords is raised, it was held that the suit was not one exclusively under S. 149 and that the question of title was properly raised. ——S. 149 (3)—Arrears of rent.

In a suit for arrears of rent, money includes entire sum deposited in Court and no question of apportionment is to be raised or decided. ——S. 153—Suit for cess—No Second appeal.

S. 153, Bengal Tenancy Act bars a second appeal in suits for rent where the decree is passed by a District Judge, Additional District Judge or Subordinate Judge and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed Rs. 100 unless a question of special character has been decided by the decree under appeal. Held that in cases where the plff. has not published the notice under the Bengal Cess Act, no second appeal lies from the decision of the Dt. In a suit for the recovery of rent of a holding less than Rs. 100, the defence was that the plff. was entitled to only half a share of the rent: Held, that as there was a dispute as to the share of the plff. there was a dispute as to the amount of rent annually payable by the deft. and a decision having been given on that point a second appeal was competent. (Beachcroft, J.) BASHIRAM NATH v. DINA NATH DEY. 51 I.C. 397 (Cal.).

The dismissal of rent suit, on the ground of the result of a title suit, does not amount to a decision on a question of title so as to be open to second appeal. The expression. "decision of question of the amount of rent" does not include apportionment of rent between two persons. (Greaves, J.) JOGESH CHANDRA ROY v. NIBRAN CHANDRA PODDAR. 50 I.C. 276 (Cal.).

———S. 153—Decision as to title—Dismissal of raiyat's objection to sale of occupancy holding—Appeal.

An order deciding the objection filed by a tenant to the sale of his occupancy holding in execution of a money decree obtained by the landlord against him, is not a decision as to title between the parties, having conflicting claims thereto and no appeal lies against it under S 153 of the B. ——S. 153—Appeal—Question of title raised but not decided.

Under S. 153 of the B.T. Act, it is not sufficient merely that there should be a controversy on the question of title as between parties having conflicting claims to land but the section requires that some question of title should be decided as between such parties. Therefore, where in a suit for rent the Lower Court does not decide the question of title which is raised between parties having conflicting claims thereto, no appeal lies under S. 153 of the B.T. Act. (Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ.) JILLOR RAHMAN v. EBRAHIM KHAN.

A munsif, empowered to exercise final jurisdiction under S. 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, not having decided the question of title to suit land raised by the parties having conflicting claims thereto, in a suit for rent below Rs. 50 the question was decided by the Appellate Court, though the competency of appeal was contended. Held, that though no appeal lay from the decision of the Munsiff, an appeal lay to the High Court from the decision of the 1st Appellate Court as it had decided a question of title between the parties. 12 C.W.N. 835 and 29 Cal. 60, expl. and dist. 11 Mad. 26 (P. An order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale in execution of a decree for rent (where the decree-holder is the purchaser) is an order deciding a question relating to title to land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto. It falls within the proviso to S. 153 of the Act, and is, therefore, appealable though there is no appeal from the decree in the suit on account of the prohibition contained in the section. Irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale under S. 153 Expln., is not the same as fraud. Per Mullick, J.—An irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale, may be with or without fraud. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 153.

An appeal against order refusing to re-hear an appeal heard ex parte from a decree in a rent suit valued at less than Rs. 100 is barred by S. 153 of the B. T. Act.

An application to re-hear an appeal is an application in the suit for the term "suit" includes appeal. 25 Cal. 146 rel. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SAMED SHEIKH v. NABA NEPAL. 19 C.L.J. 310=23 I.C. 12=19 C.W.N. 359.

———S. 153—Suit by lessee under landlord for rent—Suit dismissed on the ground that the lease was invalid—Suit valued at less than Rs. 100—Second appeal if lies.

Where a suit by a lessee of a landlord against the tenants for rent is dismissed on the ground that the lease is invalid and consequently the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist between the plff. and defts. the decision is upon a question relating to title to land or some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto within the meaning of S. 153 of the B.T. ———S. 153—Rate of rent—Second appeal—Rent suit—Defence of eviction by title paramount—If a valid one.

A decision as to the annual rate of rent directly or incidentally is enough to give a right of second appeal under S. 153 of the B.T. Act and no contest on the point is necessary. The defence of non-liability for rent on the ground of eviction by a paramount title might be taken in a rent suit. But the defence must be taken at the proper time and not in second appeal. It is not competent to one of several co-sharer landlords to sue for enhancement of rent or for additional rent in respect of additional area alleged to be comprised in a jote. The mere fact that a tenant agrees to pay a rent to one of the co-sharer landlords separately, does not constitute a severance of the tenancy. ——S. 155—Tenancy continues, how long—Time extension of.

The 'relief' granted under the section includes the meaning that the forfeiture has not taken place, i.e., as soon as the relief is granted, the forfeiture disappears as if it never existed. The tenancy continues till the tenant fails to comply within the time prescribed by the decree in the ejectment suit. The Court can give relief against forfeiture. ——S. 155—Lessee breaking covenant.

Where a lessee acts contrary to his covenant by mortgaging his interest, he is not a tenant entitled to claim the procedure laid down in S. 155 of the B.T. Act or to a notice to quit under the T.P. ——S. 155—Notice—Object of.

The object of a notice to quit under S. 155 of the B.T. Act is to give the tenant an opportunity of remedying the breach if capable of being remedied, or of paying reasonable compensation if not capable of being remedied and thus avoid ejectment. A notice requiring the tenant to remedy the breach or to pay compensation for misuse or breach of contract and to surrender the land, is not valid to support an action for

A Court can entertain an application by a tenant judgment-debtor for extension of time to pay a sum of money awarded under S. 155 of the B.T. Act, even if the decree-holder has applied for execution of the decree and has obtained possession of the property in execution. (Dass, J.) MAHABIR SINGH v. DEOKI RAI.
32 I.C. 137 (Pat.).

A notice intimating to the tenants that they should, within one month from the date of service, restore the land to its original condition and that, if they failed to do so, a suit would be brought against them for ejectment and damages does not fulfil the requirements of S. 155 (1) of the B.T. Act as there is no claim for compensation either in addition or as an alternative to a demand on the tenant to remedy the misuse or breach. A notice does not become insufficient, because it is open to criticism on an unusual examination of some of the phrases employed. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MAHARAJ BAHADUR SINGH v. MAKHAN CHANDRA GHOSH. 31 I.C. 385=29 C.L.J. 430.

A decree for ejectment under S. 155 (b) can be had only if the tenant fails to remedy the breach complained of or fails to deposit the sum in Court which has been fixed by the Court (and the Court is always so bound to fix a sum of money in lieu of the remedy) as reasonable compensation for the breach. S. 155 applies even when the suit for ejectment is based on the breach of conditions in a contract made before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, even when there is a provision for re-entry. ——S. 158—Tenure held since 1848—There shall be no increase or diminution of rent—Increase once as result of litigation.

A tenure was held from 1848 under a distinct provision in the lease that there shall be no increase or diminution of the rent of Rs. 17. Subsequently, as the result of litigation and possibly to buy peace, the tenant agreed with Zamindars that if he restored him to the right to which he was entitled, he would pay the rent of Rs. 108 and odd. The tenancy was identical with the original tenancy, and not a new one. Held, that this increased rent did not disturb the provision against increase and that the effect of the whole arrangement was that in place of Rs. 17, Rs. 108 was the rental and therefore, the rent of the tenure was not liable to enhancement. A claim for assessment of rent under S. 158 of the B.T. Act was dismissed for default under O. 9, r. 8, C. P. Code in the year 1915. The landlords subsequently instituted a suit against the defendant claiming compensation for occupation of the same land and a determination of the annual rent payable by the defendant. Held that an application under S. 158 of the B.T. Act was not a suit and its dismissal for default did not bar the subsequent claim for the determination of the annual rent payable by the defendants. (Miller, C.J., and Mullick, J.) ——Ss. 158-B and 159—Sale under Rent decree—Tenure itself passes to auction purchaser—Art. 139, Lim. Act does not apply.

Article 139, of the Limitation Act is applicable only where the purchaser acquires the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor. But the rights of a purchaser at a sale under a decree for rent must be governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. When a rent decree has been properly obtained, the tenure itself passes to the purchaser and not the right title and interest of the judgment-debtor only. ——S. 158-B—Rent sale—Decree for rent—Unrecorded tenant not a party—Sale—What interest passes.

A landlord obtained a decree for arrears of rent of a tenure against all the recorded tenants and sold the holding in execution. Held, that the entire tenure, and not merely the interest of the recorded tenants, passed by the sale in execution of such a decree. The unrecorded tenant, though he was not a party to the rent suit, cannot sue for a declaration of his right on the ground that his share in the tenure did not pass by the sale. S. 158-B. of the B.T. Act is imperative and requires the giving of notice to the co-sharer landlords before the sale of a holding in execution of a rent decree obtained by one co-sharer. ——S. 167—Incumbrance—Annulment of can be effected only by the method provided by section—Sale for arrears of rent does not cancel mortgage.

A sale for arrears of rent does not ipso facto cancel a mortgage on the holding, being an incumbrance. 24 Cal. 746, Rel. The procedure provided by S. 167 of the B. T. Act is the only mode of annulling the incumbrance, and the purchaser must have recourse to the prescribed mode within the specified period, if he desires to annul the incumbrance. 22 Cal. 364, foll. A landlord purchaser, at a rent sale is, like any other purchaser, bound to follow the provisions of S. 167. If the mortgage is not annulled on the expiry of one year from the date of the rent sale or from the date when the landlord has notice of the incumbrance, the holding in the hands of the landlord-purchaser remains subject to the mortgage no longer liable to be impeached or extinguished. 24 C.W.N. 961, Ref. The relative rights of the purchaser at the rent sale and the mortgagee should be determined with reference to their position at the time of the rent sale. If the purchaser at the rent sale has not availed himself of the privilege of annulling the mortgage within the prescribed period, he holds the property subject to the mortgage and is entitled to redeem. The mortgagee purchasing the property in execution of a decree obtained by him in the suit instituted on the mortgage in which the landlord-purchaser was not made a party, does not lose his right to be redeemed by the purchaser at rent sale. 14 M.I.A. 144, Ref. ——Ss. 167 and 161—What has to be annulled is the darpatni — Incumbrance.

Possession as a tenant cannot be adverse and does not constitute an incumbrance which must be annulled under S. 167 of the Act. The interest of a person in adverse possession is an incumbrance only when the adverse possession has continued for the statutory period. There may be a chain of subordinate interest in a patni and there may be incumbrances, e.g., adverse possession for the statutory period on each of these various grades of subordinate tenures but a purchaser of the patni at a rent sale is not to find out all these interests and serve notices upon each of them under S. 167 of the Act. The sub-tenancy created by the tenant is the dar-patni that is an incumbrance under S. 161 and that only has to be annulled under S. 167. What, therefore, has to be annulled under S. 167 is the sub-tenancy created by the patnidar, i.e., the dar-patni as it was created and which would include all the interests created or carved out of it. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 167.

The destruction of valuable encumbrances is a very severe measure which the law allows, only if a certain procedure is strictly followed, and the claimant must show that he has strictly followed the procedure laid down. An entry in the order sheet that notice has been served is not sufficient proof of service of notice. 7 C.L.J. 262, ref. Where, what was formerly once a taluk was split up into several taluks, a sale of the entire taluk in execution of a decree obtained in a single suit, for rent due upon the entire taluk, is not a sale for the arrears of rent. ——S. 167—Landlord and tenant—Rent—Suit for notice.

Once the relationship of landlord and tenant is established, such relation must be presumed to continue so long as the tenant continues to hold the land, until it is proved that it has ceased to exist. If once the relation is established, the mere fact of non-payment of rent is not sufficient to show that the relationship has ceased. If the landlord elects to treat the deft. as a tenant, the mere fact of his having served a notice under S. 167 of the B.T. Act does not preclude his suing the deft. for rent. In S. 167 of the B.T. Act, the words "date of the sale," mean the actual date of the sale, and not the date of the confirmation of sale. The words "has notice" mean, has knowledge or information "and not has received a notice". ———S. 167—Auction purchaser at rent sale.

An auction purchaser at a rent sale must annul mortgages created by the tenant under S. 167. The mortgage is not annulled of itself, and it stands, until a notice under S. 167 is served on the incumbrancer. If it is not annulled within the period of limitation, it can be enforced against the purchaser. Production of order sheet of a proceeding under S. 167 is not a proof of annulment. The proceedings before the Collector being summary, do not preclude Civil Courts from going into the question of annulment, (N. R. Chatterjee, J.) CHATTARDHARI LAL v. BIRANCHI LAL.

———S. 169 (c)—Sale of darpatni for non-payment of Rent—Patnidar is entitled to rent only up to date of sale—Interest on rent is part of rent.

In execution of a decree for rent due to a patnidar, a darpatni interest was sold in execution and the decree was satisfied by the proceeds of the sale. Subsequently, the patnidars applied for payment to them of the rent which had fallen due after the date of the suit and till the date of the confirmation of the execution sale from the surplus sale proceeds. Held, that the patnidars were entitled to rent only up to the date of the sale and could be paid only the amount of rent due up to that date. Under S. 54 rent becomes an arrear, as soon as it falls due and under S. 67 it carries interest thereafter. Consequently, interest on an arrear of rent becomes part of the rent and a decree-holder should recover the rent and interest together without the necessity of a fresh suit for interest. 11 C.W.N. 1106; 22 C.W.N. 523, Ref. A person offered to deposit the amount on the allegation, that he had purchased the holding long ago, that he was in occupation long before the decree, and that his purchase had been recognised by the landlord: Held, that he was not the judgment-debtor, for the decree was not made against him, nor had he an interest in the holding voidable on the sale within S. 170 (3). The decree against the registered tenant did not bind him and any sale in execution of the decree could not possibly extinguish his interest and that, therefore, he was not entitled to make the deposit under S. 170, clause (3). If the purchase had not been recognised by the landlord, then he was competent to make a deposit and it was not material to consider whether he had acquired an interest in a transferable holding or whether he had acquired by possession for a period longer than 12 years the status of a tenant of a non-transferable holding. ——S. 174—Appeal — Application to set aside sale—Deposit falling short—Mistake of Court—Revision.

An application was made under S. 174 to set aside a sale on deposit of the amount within 30 days from the date of sale. The amount deposited fell short by a few rupees of the amount of the compensation due to the purchaser, through the mistake of the Court. As soon as the mistake was found out, the deficit amount was deposited by the applicants. An application for setting aside the sale, made by the purchaser, in which the decree-holder was no party, was rejected by the primary Court. Held, that no second appeal lay; and the High Court is not competent to revise the proceedings under S. 115 of the C.P. Code, (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) KARAMALI v. TAMIJUDDIN. 58 I.C. 816=32 C.L.J. 12.

——S. 174—Deposit by judgment-debtor—Transferee if can make.

A deposit made under S. 174 of the B. T. Act must be made by the judgment-debtor himself and transferee of a judgment-debtor cannot validly deposit. (Sharfuddin and Richardson, JJ.) SURENDRA NARAYAN SINGH v. LACHMI KOER. 29 I.C. 840=

——S. 174—Deposit by judgment-debtor for setting aside sale—Effect — Subsequent withdrawal of money by judgment-debtor, if permissible—Procedure when so permitted wrongly.

A judgment-debtor who, under S. 174 pays the requisite amount into Court, and gets an order setting aside the sale in his favour, cannot be permitted to withdraw the money deposited by him and if so permitted, he should forthwith be called upon to replace the same, failing which, the money should be realised by executing the order as if it were purely a money decree against the judgment-debtor. ——S. 174—Order reversing sale—Appeal.

An appeal lies from an order under S. 174 reversing a sale under a decree by an incompetent Court and directing that judgment-debtor is not bound to deposit poundage fee since under the High Court rules the decree-holder has a right to a refund of the sum deposited by him if the sale is reversed. Where a judgment debtor appealed against an order refusing to set aside a sale under S. 174 of the B. T. Act, and the sale was set aside on appeal and the decree-holders appealed against the appellate order held, that the judgment-debtor could not in that case raise the objection that no appeal lay, because firstly, he must be presumed to have acted in the Lower Court under the belief that the original order was of a particular description and appealable, and that it was not open to him to take up inconsistent positions; and secondly, the order of the original Court is one under S. 47, C.P.C., and hence open to second appeal. 26 Cal. 449; 11 C.L.J. 202, rel. on.; 38 C. 339, dist. ——S. 174—Act X of 1859—Act VIII of 1865—Rent decree—Execution sale, how set aside.

A sale under Act VIII of 1865 (B.C.) read with Act X of 1859 in execution of a rent decree can be set aside under the section by depositing the decretal amount, &c., Chapter XIV of which has been extended to the District where the sale took place. ——S. 174—Setting aside sale—Deposit of amount—Validity of deposit—Mistake.

A judgment-debtor who was permitted to deposit the decretal amount with costs and compensation, went to the execution moharir who drew up an account and showed that the amount paid in by the judgment-debtor petitioner was correct and on the basis of that account he deposited the sums specified. It was found that no order had been passed by the Court as to what the costs were and the judgment-debtor came well within the time allowed for the deposit and obtained the permission of the Court to deposit the amount. He also obtained an order in the order sheet from the Court that he had deposited the full decree amount with costs and compensation. He was therefore premitted to believe that he had paid the full amount until after the time allowed for the deposit had elapsed, when the decree-holder came forward and pointed out that the amount was not sufficient. Held, that the judgment-debtor having been misled by an honest mistake ought to be allowed to deposit the deficiency in the amount and that the sale should be set aside on such deposit being made. An executing Court is lacking in the due discharge of its duty in entertaining an application to set aside a sale until it has satisfied itself that the statutory condition provided by S. 174 of the B.T Act have been fulfilled. It is the duty of the executing Court, before entering in the order sheet that the full decretal amount with costs and compensation had been deposited to satisfy itself as to what were the costs to be paid by the judgment-debtor and where owing to this neglect of duty on the part of the Court, the petitioner was lulled into security, and the amount of shortage was not very great the judgment-debtor should not be prejudiced on account of the default on the part of the Court. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 174.

Deposit of decretal amount—C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 89.

No application to set aside a sale under S. 174 of the Act can be maintained, until the statutory conditions provided by the section have been fulfilled. 18 Cal. 255 and 25 Cal. 216, not foll. The High Court can set aside an order under S. 174 if made without jurisdiction. The section does not impose any duty on the officers of the Court to give information to the parties and therefore no relief can be given to a party who has been misled by wrong information, given by an officer of a Court. Relief can only be granted where a party has been misled by an 'act of the Court' that is, 'an act of a prescribed officer' acting under prescribed rules of the Court. 26 Cal. 449 (F.B.), rel. A deposit of the decretal amount together with the statutory five per cent. on the purchase money, in order to be valid and within the Court's jurisdiction, must be made within thirty days of the sale. ——S. 174 (1) "Judgment-debtor" Meaning of—Setting aside sale—Right of third person.

A judgment-debtor in S. 174 (1) is one against whom a decree has been made so that a person against whom no decree has been passed cannot apply to have an execution sale set aside. (Mookerjee and Coxe, JJ.) ABDUL SOBHAN v. MONABALI. 14 I C. 453 = 15 C.L J. 170.

——S. 174 (2)—Proviso—Application to set aside sale for irregularity—Subsequent application to set aside sale on deposit—Effect.

The judgment-debtor applied on 23rd August to have a rent sale set aside for material irregularity; on that application notice was issued to the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser. On September 17th the judgment-debtor applied under S. 174 and the Court ordered him to make the deposit of the decree-holder's and the auction-purchaser's amount which was done. The case under R. 90, O. 21 of the Code came up for hearing on Sep. 24th and on that date the judgment-debtor applied for withdrawal from proceedings. Held, per Coxe, J. (Teunon J., dissenting) that under the proviso of S. 174 the judgment-debtor could not apply and that the application itself does not amount to withdrawal from the proceedings under O. 21, R. 90, C.P.C., so as to justify the setting aside, of the sale on acceptance of the deposit. 13 C.W.N. 591; 11 C.L.J. 202, dist. ———S. 180—Submersion of land.

A part of the holding of the deft. was submerged for irregular periods of time. Deft. had paid rent for the entire holding for more than twelve years and had been in possession during the period. The lands by reason of the submersion did not cease to be held by deft. or form part of the tenancy or holding and the fact of submersion did not destroy the right of the deft. to acquire occupancy right therein. He was also found to have lands under cultivation ; he got these lands cultivated by hired labourers whom he supplied with his own cattle and ploughs. He had also his granary and khamar within his own homestead, held on these circumstances it was plain that as the deft. was a raiyat, the disputed land was governed by either S. 182 or by the other provisions of the B. T. Act. It cannot be maintained that because a settled raiyat takes settlement of a piece of land, adjacent to his homestead though for purposes not agricultural, the tenancy of the new plot of land is governed by S. 182 of the B.T. Act. (Mookerjee and Chotzner, JJ.) GIRIS CHANDRA BHATTACHARYA v. BHABATARAN SHAKARI 37 C.L.J. 525=74 I.C. 852=1923 Cal. 667.

———S. 182—Applies only when land is held as Homestead.

S. 182 is not applicable unless the land is held as homestead ; in other words, it is not sufficient for a raiyat that the character of land is such as would justify its use as a homestead and must be established that the land is used by the raiyat as his homestead. BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), S. 182.

——S 182—Occupier of homestead for more than 12 years—Raiyat.

Before a person can become a settled raiyat of a village, he must be a raiyat. Mere occupation of a homestead of a village for more than 12 years would not make the occupier a settled raiyat of the village. (Chitty and Walmsley, JJ.) KAMAL BAIDYA v. GANESH CHANDRA BISWAS. 47 I.C. 829 (Cal.).

——S. 182—Applicability—Homestead of raiyat.

By virtue of the general provisions of the Act or of the special provisions under S. 182 of the Act, the Act applies to the homestead of a raiyat, whether it is or is not a part of an agricultural holding. (Teunon and Richardson, JJ.) RAICHARAN v. SIB RAM. 46 I.C. 489 (Cal.).

——S. 182—Applicability—Ryot building house—Transfer.

The widow of a ryot in possession of an agricultural jote who paid rent to the Zamindar for two years and built herself a homestead which she used as her dwelling, must be taken to have been a ryot as regards the homestead, so that S. 182 applied. ——S. 182—Land taken for building a shop used also for agricultural purposes governed by S. 182.

A raiyat acquiring lands under a lease for building a shop, in which he has resided and from where he carries on agricultural operations in another village in respect of holdings under the same landlord is entitled to protection under S. 182. 10 C.W.N. 941; 10 I.C. 139, Fol. ——S. 182—'Homestead' meaning of—Land used for agricultural purposes.

'Homestead' is land used by raiyat for residential purposes. S. 182 does not apply where the land is not used by the raiyat as his homestead. But it is not necessary for its applicability that the homestead should be in the same village or be held under the same landlord as the holding of the raiyat. The Act applies to all lands for agricultural purposes and not to such lands alone as are actually under cultivation. (Mookerjee and Newbould, JJ.) ——S 182, Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit by purchaser of Homestead land, for possession is not within the article.

Where the plaintiff bought only the house and the homestead land of a person and he was dispossessed by the landlord, who claimed the house through some other tenant and the plaintiff sued to recover the possession of the homestead land. Held, that as the plaintiff did not claim to nearer possession either as a settled raiyat or as an occupancy raiyat and did not occupy the disputed plot for 12 years, and the land was not alleged to be the subject of an occupancy right transferable by custom, the two years' rule of limitation laid down in Art. 3, Sch. III, of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable. (Rampini, J.) CHUNDRA v. KUTBAN. 29 I.C 839=21 C.L.J. 473.

Plaintiff was a raiyat, whose holding consisted partly of agricultural and partly of homestead lands, the latter of which he let to defendants who held certain other lands as raiyats under a different landlord, in a different village. Held, that S. 182 would apply though the defendants had only the interest of an under-raiyat and the provisions applicable to a raiyat would regulate the incidents of the tenancy of defendants of the homestead. Homestead lands forming part of the raiyat's holding fall within the scope of the Act and notice to quit before ejectment is necessary. (Holmwood and Chapman, JJ.) SARBESWAR v. RAI CHARAN. 19 I.C. 78 (Cal.).

——S. 182—Raiyat purchasing homestead of another tenant and cultivating—Applicability of the Act.

The Bengal Tenancy Act applies where a raiyat purchases parcels of land belonging to the homestead of other tenants and cultivates them, as, by so doing they become agricultural lands. (Carnduff, J.) JAJINDRA MOHAN v. KEDAR NATH. 13 I.C. 289 (Cal.).

——Ss. 184 and 185—Periods of limitation—Deduction.

The B.T. Act is a self-contained Act on the subject of limitation even as regards periods of limitation prescribed by it to which Ss. 184 and 185 are inapplicable. (Richardson and Walmsley, JJ.) THE SECRETARY OF STATE v. SHIB NARAIN HAZRA. 46 Cal. 199=47 I.C. 502=22 C.W N. 802.

——S. 184, Sch. III, Art. 6—Decree—Limitation—Decree, if capable of execution.

A decree for which limitation is prescribed by Art. 69 of the B.T. Act, is one capable of execution. If the decree is amended, time runs from the date of amendment. (N. R. Chatterjee and Walmsley, JJ.) MAHAMAYA PRASAD SINGH v. HAMID. 21 I C 61[illegible]=18 C W.N. 266.

——Ss. 185 and 104-H—Suit under S. 104-H—Lim. Act, S. 15 (2), if applicable.

S. 15 (2) of the Lim. Act, does not apply to extend the period of 6 months prescribed for suits under S. 104-H of the B.T. Act. (Mookerjee and Walmsley, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. GANGADHAR NANDA. 45 Cal. 934 = 45 I.C. 228 = 27 C.L.J. 374.

——S. 185—Invalidity of sub-lease.

The question of invalidity of a sub-lease is to be raised only by the landlord of the raiyat. The defts. a trespasser cannot question the validity of the permanent lease given by the raiyat. (Mookerjee and Coxe, JJ.) MANIK v. BANICHERAN. 10 I.C. 469 = 13 C.L.J. 649.

——S. 185 (2) and Sch. III, Art. 3.—Dispossession of landlord by tenant—Constructive dispossession—Limitation.

The term 'dispossession' implies coming of a person and the driving out of another from possession. The plffs. took a lease of 12 cottahs of land from the defts. and obtained delivery of possession of seven cottas only. Defts. agreed to vacate the remaining portion after three months but failed to carry out the terms of the agreement and continued in occupation. Held, that there was no dispossession such as would attract Art. 3, Sch. III of the B.T. Act. S. 185 (2) of the said Act makes Art. 144 of the Lim. Act applicable. Suits instituted within 12 years from the date when the possession of the defts. became adverse after the lapse of the three months would be within time. The Court discourages recourse to the fiction of constructive dispossession in cases under Art. 3, Sch. III of the B.T. Act. (Mookerjee, C.J. and Fletcher, J.) PANCHOOKAPALI v. JANEWAR MAJHI. 38 I.C. 844 = 32 C.L.J. 9.

——S. 186-A—Scope and Denial of title—Ejectment.

S. 186-A, B.T. Act, does not apply to a suit by landlord in a Civil Court for possession when the tenants thereof have successfully denied his title in a rent suit. (Fletcher and Teunon, JJ.) PROSONNO KUMAR v. KULADA PROSAD. 29 I.C. 472 (Cal.).

——S 186-A—Forfeiture—Denial of relationship by tenant—Decree of the Court.

In cases to which the B.T. Act applies, the mere denial of the relationship of landlord and tenant does not work forfeiture unless the denial was incorporated in a decree of the Court. A suit for arrears of rent was dismissed as the deft. denied the relationship of landlord and tenant. The plaintiff appealed but was allowed to withdraw the suit. He then brought a suit to eject the deft. on the ground that he had denied the relationship of landlord and tenant. Held, that owing to withdrawal, the decree ceased to exist and the landlord could not eject the tenant. ——S. 186-A—Applicability.

Before awarding damages under S. 186-A the Court should decide whether there was reasonable or probable cause and state its ground for coming to that conlusion. (Woodroffe and Carnduff, JJ.) SIBU SANT v. NETAI CHARAN. 9 I.C. 806 = 15 C.L.J. 114.

——S. 188—Applicability—Suit for arrears of rent is not governed by section—Rent suit by manager of joint Hindu family—Other members are not necessary parties.

Provisions of S. 188 have no application to the institution of a suit for arrears of rent. The tendency of modern decisions is in favour of the representative character of the manager, though no doubt, the question must be decided in each individual case or special class of cases subject to the operation of relevant statutory provisions, if any, such as the one embodied in S. 188 of the B.T. Act. A suit for rent instituted by the managing member of a Joint Mitakshara family cannot fail merely because the infant co-parceners have not been placed on the record as joint plaintiff or as pro forma defendants. ——S. 188—Suit in ejectment of trespassers—Section does not apply.

S. 188, B.T. Act applies only to cases of landlords and can have no application to a suit in ejectment against trespassers. (Sanderson, C.J. and Ghose, J.) REAJUDDIN PATWARI v. SYED ABDUL JOBBAR. 69 I.C. 804 (Cal.).

——Ss. 188 and 158—Applicability of S. 158 to application under S. 188.

17 I.C. 115=16 C.L.J. 127.

———S. 188—Co-sharer landlords—Suit for rent by one, when lies.

Where a tenant makes a contract by which he is liable to pay rent to several co-sharers jointly, one co-sharer cannot maintain a suit for the whole rent. S. 188 of the B.T. Act demands that landlords shall do jointly anything which they are under the Acts required or authorised to do, but there is nothing to prevent one co-sharer from bringing a suit for the whole rent after making the co-sharers who refuse to join as plaintiffs, defendants in the suit. 35 Cal. 331, Ref. Again if a co-sharer can prove that there is a contract express or implied by which a tenant is liable to pay him his share of the rent separately, then he may bring a suit for that part of the rent without joining his co-sharers as defendants, but the decree obtained by him is to be executed as money and not a rent decree. On the other hand, notwithstanding such arrangement for separate collection all the co-sharers may sue jointly for the whole rent. To further facilitate the recovery of arrears of rent due to a co-sharer who is in dispute with his tenants or with his fellow landlords, the legislature enacted S. 148-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The section requires firstly, that the co-sharer shall sue to recover the rent due to all the co-sharer landlords in respect of the entire holding, secondly that he must make all the remaining co-sharers parties to the suit, and thirdly that he must state that he is able to ascertain what rent is due for the whole tenure or holding or whether the rent due to other co-sharer landlords has been paid, owing to the refusal or neglect of the tenant or of the co-sharer landlords, defendants in the suit, to furnish him with direct information on these points or on either of them. In such a case the plaintiff co-sharer will be entitled to proceed with the suit for his share only of the rent and a decree obtained in a suit so framed shall be as effectual as a decree obtained by the sole landlord in a suit brought for the rent due to all the landlords. If in the suit it is found that the co-sharer landlords have realised rent in excess of their shares, then they will be liable to reimburse the plaintiff to the extent of the excess realised by them. 4 Pat. A portion of a permanent Ganti lease at a fixed rent was resumed by the Govt. and re-settled with the proprietor. The rent suit of the transferee from the settlement holder was dismissed by the Privy Council on the ground that the permanent rights of the tenant were not abrogated by the resumption and fresh settlement. After the expiry of the settlement the farming lease granted by the Govt. to the plff. was fixed at a certain rent which was never impugned. Held, that plffs. were entitled to the fair and equitable rent and that the Privy Council decision was not res judicata as the plffs. were not representatives of the proprietor. Where the intention of the parties to the contract was that the lease should comprise all the lands within it and the rent was settled at a lump sum for all the lands leased out, the tenant has a right to the lands settled with the zemindar after resumption by Government. The words "lease or contract in force" in S. 192 of the Bengal Tenancy Act have reference to the words "lease" or "contract" in the opening lines of the section and do not affect contracts entered into before the passing of the Act. S. 192 does not either expressly or impliedly, give power to a Revenue Officer to fix a rent so as to affect contracts entered into, before the passing of the Act. (Chatterjee and Pearson, JJ.) ——Sch. III, Art. 3—Applicability of—Dispossession of tenant—Limitation.

Art. 3 of Sch. III applies only where it is shown that the landlord was taking part in the dispossession which is therein referred to. The landlord or somebody acting in concert with him must have caused the dispossession. 24 C. 40 Rel. (Sanderson, C J. and Chotzner, J.) GOBINDA CHANDRA GOPE v. AKHIL CHANDRA DAS. 64 I.C. 858 (Cal.).

——Sch III, Art. 3—Special period of limitation applies when the relationship of landlord and tenant exist.

Where there is a relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties and the landlord after obtaining a decree for rent attaches the crops and dispossesses the tenant, a suit by the latter for the recovery of possession is governed by Art. 3 of Sch. III of the B.T. Act. Semble:—The special limitation does not apply where the landlord dispossesses the tenant as auction purchaser. 24 C.W N. 38=25 C.W N. 102, Rel. (N.R. Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) BAIKUNTHA NATH GHATAK v. SHEIKH FAZIL.
64 I C. 192 (Cal.).

——Sch. III. Art 3—Dispossession by third person—Article does not apply.

Unless the landlord is shown to have a hand in the ouster, the fact that a tenant was dispossessed by a third person, under the landlord's authority, does not bring the case under Sch. III, Art. 3. N. R. Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) ALOM SHEIKH GAZI v. HARINATH MITRA. 62 I.C. 763 (Cal.).

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), Sch. III, Art. 3.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession of tenant by landlord and by a third person is within the article.

Where a raiyati tenant is dispossessed by a third person, who subsequently obtains a settlement from the land lord, the landlord having no hand in the tenant's ouster, the dispossession is not one by the landlord and the tenant's suit for possession is not governed by Art. 3. Where the landlord granted a settlement of the holding to his peons, and the raiyati tenant was dispossessed by them with the help of landlord's burkundazes and at the landlord's instigation a suit by the tenant for possession is governed by Art. 3. (N. R. Chatterjee and Suhrawardi, JJ.) ARMAN PEEDA v. MANIK SARKAR. 62 I.C. 690 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession—Grant of a new lease is not.

Art. 3 applies only where the dispossession has been effected either by the landlord or by his agent acting within the scope of his authority. The grant of a lease to a new tenant by the landlord is not equivalent to a dispossession by the landlord. (Mookerjee, A.C J. and Fletcher, J.) HARAN CHANDRA BARAI v. HARI CHARAN BARAI.
61 I.C. 899=25 C.W.N. 102.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Landlord taking possession of tenant's holding under agreement and holding over after termination of right to hold—Suit by tenant to recover holding is not within article.

A suit by a tenant against a landlord taking over the tenancy of his tenant under a usufructuary mortgage and holding over after the termination of the right to hold under the mortgage, for recovery of the holding is not governed, as to limitation, by Art. 3 of the Act. (Mookerjee, A.C.J. and Fletcher, J.) KHETRA NATH MONDAL v. LAKHAN SARDAR.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for joint possession—Co-heir of the tenant against co-sharer landlords—Limitation.

Plff. an heir of the original tenant brought a suit for joint possession in respect of his share of the land against the defts. who were co-sharer landlords having a kobala of the entire land from another heir of the original tenant and dispossessed the plff. Held, that the suit was governed by Sch. III, Art. 3 of the Act. When the landlord purchases at a sale held in execution of a decree, possession is delivered to him by the Court as auction purchaser, i.e., on the footing that there is no longer any relation of landlord and tenant and that the possession of the landlord as purchaser cannot be challenged so long as the sale is not set aside or declared ineffective against the tenants. In the case of a private purchase there is a relation of landlord and tenant and the mere fact that a Kobala obtained from one of the heirs of the original tenants cannot take the case out of the purview of Art. 3. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) NABIN CHANDRA v. SHEIKH WAJID.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit to recover possession by a tenant.

A tenant dispossessed by a landlord through inducted tenants, must necessarily make the landlord a party in a suit for possession within the time of limitation prescribed by Article 3. A plaintiff after joining several defendants and proceeding against one only, describing others as pro forma defendants cannot amend in the second appeal so as to leave those proceeded against and to claim relief against the pro forma defendants. (Chatterjee and Panton, JJ.) PEARY MOHAN v. AREINODY.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Licensee—Refusal to vacate on expiry—Suit for possession—Limitation.

Where the licensees of a tenant refuse to vacate on the expiry of the period of their license, such refusal amounts to a dispossession of a licensor within Art. 3 and a suit to recover possession must be brought within the period prescribed by that article. (Newbould, J.) PANCHU v. JAJNESWAR.
53 I.C. 959 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Raiyat's suit for possession against auction purchaser.

The limitation in art. 3, Sch. III does not apply to a suit by a raiyat to recover possession of his holding from an auction purchaser in execution of a rent decree. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) GANESH CHANDRA v. BERAJA SUNDARI. 46 I.C. 975 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession by landlord in execution.

Where a landlord puts a holding to sale in execution of a decree for rent, and purchases it himself and gets delivery through Court, the dispossession of the tenant is not dispossession within Art. 3, Sch. III of the B.T. Act. (Mookerjee and Walmsley, JJ.) RAM KINKER TEWARI v. STHITI RAM.
46 I.C. 221=27 C.L.J. 528.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for possession—Co-sharers.

In a suit by some co-sharers after a ryot was dispossessed by other co-sharers, the Civil Court recognized the ryot's right to recover it. The ryot cannot sue for recovery of possession after two years, (the period prescribed by Art. 3, Sch. III) though his right has been recognized. (Fletcher and Huda, JJ.) GIRISH CHANDRA MITTRA v. GIRIBALA DEB.
45 I.C. 937=28 C.L.J. 219.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession.

In order that special limitation under Art. 3, Sch. III may apply, dispossession need not be by the landlord as such. (Fletcher and Newbould, JJ.) SATISH CHANDRA BASU v. NITTYA GOPAL HALDAR. 40 I.C. 419=21 C.W.N. 918.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession by execution purchaser whether governed by Sch. III, Art. 3.

Dispossession of a tenant by an execution purchaser at a sale held at the instance of the landlord, is not a dispossession by landlord and hence a suit by a tenant to recover possession is not governed by two years' rule of limitation. (Teunon and Sheepshanks, JJ.) DURGAPADA PANJA v. BHUSHAR CHANDRA GHOSE.
39 I.C. 383=21 C.W.N. 373.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession of raiyat holding at fixed rates.

Where a ryot holding at fixed rates was dispossessed by the landlord shortly before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, the limitation applicable to his suit for recovery of possession was twelve years under the law as it stood before the passing of the Amendment Act and not two years under Art. 3, Sch. III of the Act. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) KHALIL RAHMAN v. KAFILUDDIN DALAL. 38 I.C. 643 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Scope of—Limitation.

The special rule of limitation in Art. 3 is not restricted to suits against landlord himself. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) SEKANDAR SHEIKH v. ANU SARKAR. 38 I.C. 69 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession by landlord who was also auction purchaser of holding.

The dispossession referred to in Art. 3 need not be a dispossession by the landlord as such. The dispossession of a tenant by a person having dual capacity of the landlord and auction purchaser of the holding when he dispossesses is governed by Art. 3. 41 Cal. 52; 13 C.W.N. 108 and 24 I.C. 860, foll.; 17 C.W.N. 817, not foll. (Fletcher and Teunon, JJ.) FANI BHUSAN SARKAR v. PULIN CHANDRA MANDAL.
35 I.C. 838=21 C.W.N. 976.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation—Dispossession necessary to deprive tenant of right of suit.

In determining the scope of the Act, the purpose of the Act which governs the relations of landlord and tenant only, must not be lost sight of. To deprive a tenant of his right of suit, there must be a plain dispossession within Art. 3. (Jenkins, C.J. and N. R. Chatterjee, J.) KRISHNA CHANDRA v. SATISH CHANDRA. 35 I.C. 365=20 C.W.N. 872.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Landlord ousting tenant—Forcible possession of the land by landlord.

If a landlord purchased a holding at a rent sale in the name of a former tenant and forcibly took possession thereof without delivery of possession by Court held that Art. 3 applied and that it was immaterial whether the land is purchased in his own name or in the name of a new tenant. (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.) PITAMBAR MAHAPATRA v. BHAGABAT LAL. 24 I.C. 860 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for possession.

Art. 3, Sch. III of Act, as amended, in 1908 does not apply where the dispossession was in 1898 and the suit for recovery of possession was instituted on 25-8-08. The decision in 19 I.C. 793 has not been affected by the decision of the Privy Council. (Jenkins, C.J. Stephen, Woodroffe, Holmwood, and Chatterjee, JJ.) GOPESHWAR PAL v. JIBAN CHANDRA. 41 Cal. 1125=18 C.W.N. 804=24 I.C. 37=19 C.L.J. 349.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession by landlord—Limitation.

Before Art 3 of Sch. III of the B.T. Act is applied in bar of a plff.'s suit within the ordinary period allowed by law, the terms of the Article must be strictly complied with and the question whether there has in fact been a dispossession must be found. (Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J.) RUDRA NARAIN MAITY v. NATABAR JANA. 41 Cal. 52=18 C.L.J. 89=21 I.C. 431=18 C.W.N. 353.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Landlord and tenant—Landlord assisting in dispossessing tenant—Limitation.

Where a landlord assisted the defendant in dispossessing a tenant, the special limitation of 2 years provided by Sch. III, Art. 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was applicable to a suit by the tenant for possession. (Sharfuddin and Richardson, JJ.) DENO NATH DAS v. KOTISWAR BHATTACHARYA. 21 I C. 367 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Amending Act (I of 1907 (B.C.)—Not retrospective.

Art. 3 of Sch. III of the Act as amended by (Act I of 1907) does not apply to cases where dispossession takes place before the Amending Act came into operation. 17 C.L.J. 316, foll. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BUDHU KUMAR v. HAFIX HUSSAIN. 20 I.C. 821=18 C.L.J. 274.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Limitation—Dispossession by landlord—What is.

It cannot be said that because a landlord has favoured the dispossession of the tenant by others, there has been a dispossession by the landlord so as to make Art. 3 of Sch. III of the Act applicable. (Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J.) BASANT KUMARI v. NUNDA RAM. 18 C.L.J. 86=20 I.C. 350=17 C.W.N. 1149.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for possession of raiyati holding after setting aside ex parte decree as fraudulent.

A suit for a declaration of plff. raiyat's right and for possession, after setting aside an ex parte decree is governed by Art. 95. Sch. I of the Limitation Act and not by Sch. III, Art. 3, B.T. Act, as the setting aside of the ex parte decree is the essential feature of the case. (Stephen and Mullick, JJ.) MEHER ABZAL v. RAHAMAN ALI. 19 I.C. 980 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Amendment Act.

Per Mookerjee and Chatterjee, JJ. The special rule of limitation which was extended to under-raiyats in Eastern Bengal by the amendment in 1909 of the third schedule of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply to suits instituted after the commencement of the Amending Act in respect of causes of action which arose before the Act came into force. S. 61 of the Eastern Bengal Amendment Act has no retrospective operation. (Mookerjee, Carnduff and Chatterjee, JJ.) MAHJURI BIBI v. AKKEL MAHMUD. 17 C.L J 316=19 I.C. 793=17 C.W.N. 889.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Dispossession by landlord as auction-purchaser not in the course of law—Special limitation.

The dispossession by delivery of possession by the Court is not dispossession by the landlord. Whether he be fractional landlord owing to auction-sale or full landlord, the article contemplates dispossession by the landlord otherwise than in due course of law. (D. Chatterjee and N.R. Chatterjee, JJ.) KHAMAL DHARI THAKUR v. RAMESHWAR SINGH BAHADUR. 19 I.C. 545=17 C.W.N. 817.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Possession of landlord as auction purchaser in—Suit by tenant for recovery.

When the whole body of landlords obtain a proper rent decree and purchase the holding in execution and dispossess the tenant, the special law of limitation contained in Art. 3 of Sch. III applies. (Coxe, J.) SATIS CHANDRA GHOSE v. PATU MALLIK. 10 I.C. 54 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for possession.

The Schedule applies to a suit for possession by a tenant dispossessed by another tenant at the instance of the landlord. It also applies where a landlord sells a holding in execution of a rent decree and it is purchased by another ryot. (Coxe, J.) NATABAR, JANA v. RUDRA NARAIN. 9 I.C. 625 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Essentials for—Applicability.

The essential conditions which must be satisfied in order to attract the operation of Sch. III Art. 6 of the B. T. Act are these: First, the decree must be obtained in a suit between landlord and tenant, and secondly, the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act must be applicable to them. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) RAGHUNATH SAHAY v. CHOWA MAHTON, 3 Pat. L.T. 525=67 I.C. 882=1922 P. 602.

BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII of 1885), Sch. III Art. 3.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Applicability of—Suit for possession of portion of holding is within the article.

Art. 3 of Sch. III to the Act applies to suits to recover possession of land claimed by an occupancy tenant and not to suits to recover possession of an occupancy 'holding' and a suit for lands forming a portion of an occupancy holding falls within the article. (Coutts and Ross, JJ.) JOWHAR ALI v. ALARAKHU. 63 I.C. 481=2 Pat. L.T. 615.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Suit for possession by tenant.

A suit by tenant for possession is governed by Art. 3 if the landlord is in any way responsible for his dispossession by a third person; if the landlord has no hand in the dispossession, the suit will be governed by the Limitation Act though landlord is joined as a party. (Jwala Prasad, J.) DWARKA v. ISHWARI.
58 I.C. 46=2 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 233.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Application of.

Per Chamier, C.J. Art, 3 applies to a suit by a raiyat or under-raiyat against his landlord, who dispossessed him, irrespective of any reason or excuse. Per Mullick, J. Art. 3 applies to cases where the relation of landlord and tenant is found to exist whether the plff. and defts. admit their mutual relation as tenant and landlord or not. (Chamier, C.J. and Mullick, J.) KUNTI DAI v. JHARU LAL DAS. 2 P.L.W. 16=40 I.C. 907=2 P L.J. 567=1917 Pat. 247.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Scope.

Art. 3 applies to a suit by a tenant for possession of the holding against the landlord whether dispossession was by him as landlord or as an auction-purchaser of the jote. (Chamier C.J. and Mullick, J.) GOWHAR ALI v. ENAYAT ALI. 40 I.C. 774=2 P.L.W. 45.

——Sch. III, Art. 3—Possession and dispossession.

A suit by a tenant to recover possession of his holding when he has been dispossessed by a co-sharer landlord and not as landlord but claiming to have acquired an independent jote interest in the holding comes under Art. 142 of the Lim. Act. and not under Art. 3 of Sch. III of the B.T. Act. (Atkinson, J.) GAWHAR ALI v ENAYAT ALI.
38 I.C. 777 (Pat.).

——Sch. III, Art. 3 (1)—Dispossession by landlord.

Obiter.—Where the landlord purchases the holding in execution of a rent-decree it merges in the landlord's interest and when he or a lessee from him, proceeds to take possession from the original tenant, the dispossession is one by the landlord, within Art. 3 (1). ——Sch. III, Art. 6—Amending Act—Execution of decree by co-sharer landlord—Limitation.

The three years' rule of limitation in Sch. III, Art. 6 of the B.T. Act is applicable to the execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for a sum not exceeding Rs. 500 after the amendment. 10 C.L.J. 463; 18 C.L J. 81, ref. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) BYOMKESH CHUKERBURTY v. UDAY CHAND. 43 I.C. 737 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 6—Decrees for arrears of rent after cessation of landlord's interest.

The special law of limitation prescribed by the Act for the execution of rent decrees, has no application to a decree in a suit for arrears of rent brought by a landlord after parting with his interest as landlord. In such a case he can execute his decree, under the general law of limitation. 41 Cal. 926 (P.C.), foll. (D. Chatterjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) SATIS RANJAN DAS v. NASARADDI PATWARI. 34 I.C 145 (Cal.).

——Sch. III, Art. 6—Co-sharer landlord obtaining decree for rent without joining another co-sharer—Art. 6, Sch. III applies—Execution.

Art. 6 of Sch. III is applicable to an application presented by one co-sharer landlord in execution of a rent decree obtained by him for his share without making the other co-sharers parties. (Chatterjee and Chapman, JJ.) BYOMKESH CHAKARVARTI v. HALADHAR MANDAL. 31 I.C 700=19 C.W.N. 1271.

BENGAL TENANCY AMENDMENT ACT (II of 1918), S. 49.

——— Sch. III, Art. 6—Applicability—Essentials for.

The essential conditions which must be satisfied in order to attract the operation of Art. 6, Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act are these:—First the decree cannot be obtained in a suit between the landlord and tenant and secondly the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, cannot be applicable to them. A decree-holder not being the landlord of the holding, can, against the will of the judgment-debtor and without the express consent of the landlord, cause a portion of the judgment-debtor's occupancy holding to be sold in execution of a money decree though there is no local custom of transferability. 3 P.L.T. 205 F.B. foll. BERAR.

——Is not British India but not foreign territory.

Berar is not British India and the Limitation Act as such, does not apply to those territories though it has been separately applied to that Province. A Berar Court can hardly be said to be a foreign Court but it is not a Court contemplated by S. 14 of the Limitation Act, namely a Court in British India. (Batten, J.C. and Prideaux, A.J.C.) RAJANNA v, NARAYAN. 76 I.C. 305=1923 Nag. 321.

——Custom—Duty of Mahas to remove carcass.

In Berar, if the owner does not dispose of the carcass of a dead animal in a sanitary way and if he requires the services of village working mahars, their duty is to remove the carcass if left undisposed and to appropriate ordinarily by custom, the hides and flesh as their remuneration for services, otherwise he cannot demand the hides and flesh as of right. Custom gains validity if it is reasonable ; and nothing is more unreasonable than the invasion of other's right without any benefit to common weal. (Batten, A.J.C.) BERAR ELECTORAL RULES.—R. 29 (1).

——Regulation II, Cl. (ii)—Governor can dismiss petition, when security is not deposited.

The Governor can dismiss the election petition where the security for costs is not deposited according to R. 28. In R. 29 (1), the figure 27 is a misprint for 28. Under the Rules, whatever is proposed to be done by the elector, proposer or secondor, cannot be done by agent unless with express authority. Where under the Rules, the nomination paper must be sent to the Returning Officer by the proposer or secondor, its transmission by the candidate, renders the nomination invalid. The certification of facts as required by cl. (ii) by means of two or more certificates given by different officers would not make the nomination paper invalid. But the nomination is invalid if the certificate is obtained and appended by the candidate himself. The declaration of an Election Agent made by a candidate need not be stamped. But to write it on a stamp-paper would not render it invalid. The nomination is not invalid if the paper is posted by a peon at the directions of the secondor instead of by the secondor himself. A member of the Legislative Council constituted under the Govt. of India Act, 1912, may seek election under the Govt. of India Act, 1919. (*Messrs. W. R. Dhoble, M. R. Pathak, and H. P. BERAR INAM RULES (1879).

——Conversion into ordinary estates—Question of fact—Burden of proof—Succession—Nature of inam.

An inam estate in Berar is governed by the Inam Rules of 1879. It is mainly a restricted tenure, but may be converted in certain cases, into an estate of free-hold, governed by the personal law of the grantee. Whether an estate has been so converted, is a question of fact in each case, the burden of proving which rests on the patry who asserts it. Unless the inam estate has been converted into an estate of full ownership, its devolution is governed by the Inam Rules, with the help of the personal law of the Inamdar. A Jagir or other inam estate may be a mere grant for life in the royal share of the revenue, or an absolute estate in the soil and only correct method for the judicial decision of claims upon it, is to ascertain the meaning of grant in each case from the circumstances and objects with which

——Rr. 1 and 5 (2)—Grant of unenfranchised inam.

Grant of an unenfranchised inam under R. V (2) becomes void after the death of the alienor. Lands do not cease to be inam simply because there exists a nominal quit rent. (Mittra, A.J.C.) AMAN ALI v. IMAM BI.
22 I.C. 89=9 N.L.R. 188.

——R. 5, Scope of.

The Berar Inam rules are merely instructions to Revenue officers for the original settlement of claims to Jagirs and they lay down the conditions that shall ordinarily govern each grant. (Hallifax and Prideaux, A. J. C.) SUBHAN ALI v. IMAMI BEGAM.
65 I.C. 194=1922 Nag-129.

——Rr. 5, 9—Impartibility is not a condition under the section.

The condition of impartibility is not one of the restrictions imposed by rule 5, though rule 9, provides that service grants cannot be divided. (Dhobley A, J. C.) KRISHNAJI v. NILAKANTH. 18 N.L.R. 163=69 I.C, 800=5 N.L.J. 25=1922 Nag. 62.

——R. 7 (2)—Deshmukhi cash inam not within the rule.

A Deshmukhi cash inam does not fall under rule VII (2) so as to be governed by rule V (2). The grant is a perpetual hereditary grant for the maintenance of the dignity of the members of the family and each person entitled for the time being to a share must be held to be holding that share for his life only. ——R. 14 (2)—Scope of—Lease of service grants.

Rule 14 (2) of the Berar Inam Rules relates to a permanent alienation such as a gift or exchange and does not apply to a temporary alienation or lease. Therefore such a temporary alienation does not require the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner. (Mittra, A.J.C.) NARASINGHDAS v. ALADADKHAN.

Where the Inam certificate itself does not mention the class and in the certificate the purpose of the grant is stated to be the service of the Kazi and maintenance, and the tenure to be in perpetuity conditional on service. Held, the grant is both a maintenance and a service grant. As a service grant the inam does fall under class II. The main purpose of the inam was the maintenance of the family and the service stipulated for is not necessarily personal service ——Cl. III. R. V—Inam estates in Berar—Succession—Descendants through females—Rights of.

Subject to the special terms, if any, of the grant the devolution and incident of an inam estate in Berar are governed by the Berar Inam Rules 1879. The recognition of a jagir or inam by the Government operates as a fresh starting point to provide conditions for its future enjoyment and devolution. 11 N.L.R. 150, foll. It is the recognition by the Govt. of an inam under the Berar Inam Rules that operates as the real root of title of the grantee as against the Government. The expression "farzandan" means offspring or lineal decendants and includes daughters but not the childern of daughters. (Dhobley, A. J. C.) CHOTU v. AKBAR ALI.

BERAR LAND REVENUE CODE (1896).

—— Pre-emption — Price fixed — Fair market value.

Under Ch. XVIII of the Hyderabad Assigned Districts Land Revenue code, 1896. the price fixed in the sale—deed is prima facie the price for pre-emption, unless it is shown that the price has not been fixed in good faith. In the latter case, the Court has to determine the fair market value of the interest proposed to be sold, or sold, and to fix the price of pre-emption accordingly. In neither case can an apportionment of the purchase money be made. (Mittra, A. J. C.) SHAMRAO v. SHEIK-IMAM. 51 I.C. 731=15 N.L.R. 130.

——Ss. 4 (5), 86, 87 and 205—Pre-emption—Sub division of survey number.

An occupant of a recognised division of a survey number within S. 4 (5) of the Code, has no right of pre-emption with reference to another recognised division of the same survey number. A Sub-division by agreement of parties but which has not been recognised within the meaning of S. 4 (5) of the code is not "Recognised sub-division of a survey number." The officer in charge of the Record of Rights is not an officer authorised under S. 4 (5) to recognise the division of a survey number. (Mittra, A.J.C.) ——Ss. 4 (14) and (15), 60, 72 and 105—Presumption.

Under the practice, and Berar Revenue Law, a registered and an actual occupant may be different persons. No presumption can be made that until a person is shown to be a registered occupant, the occupancy rights in unalienated land are not held by him or that a person newly recognised as the registered occupant must necessarily be the owner of such rights. "Registered occupant" and "actual occupant" are often different persons. (Batten, A.J.C.) KISAN v. HIRALAL. 15 I.C. 899=8 N.L.R. 76.

The confirmation of 1891 does not amount to an alienation within Ss. 223 and 4 (17) of the Code, and that the presumption under S. 78 (2) did not arise as the tenancy was known to have commenced about 40 years ago and there was no uncertainty as to its commencement. 16 Bom. 646; 18 Bom. 221, foll. (Batten, A J.C.) PANDU v. UDHOJI RAO. 11 I.C. 693=7 N.L.R.100.

——S. 56—Forfeiture of rights on non-payment of revenue—Re-grant—Improvement.

If, under the Code, a co-sharer in a holding has caused by his own default a forfeiture of the rights of himself and his co-sharers, and subsequently obtained a re-grant of the holding whether by a timely payment which averted sale or by buying it in an auction-sale, he must hold the estate thus acquired in trust for his co-sharers as well as himself, and cannot use his own neglect to defeat their claim. (Skinner, A. J. C.) SHANKAR LAL v. MULCHAND. 10 I.C. 694=7 N.L.R. 11.

In a forfeiture sale, the purchaser is absolutely protected against incumbrances created by the ex-occupant but if no such sale is made, the effect of the forfeiture and acquisition are to be determined according to ordinary law and are subject to the control of equities. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) DEORAO v. BANAI. 10 I.C. 689=7 N.L.R. 2.

——Ss. 60, 72 and 105—Unalienated land—Occupancy right.

Occupancy rights in unalienated land are not presumed to be held by registered occupant till some other person is recognised as registered occupant nor is it presumed that a newly recognised registered occupant must own rights of occupancy. (Batten A.J.C.) KISAN v. HIRA LAL. 15 I.C 899=8 N.L R. 76.

——S. 69—Transfer of occupancy rights.

Under S. 69 of the Code a registered occupant may, by notice in writing to the Tahsildar give up the occupancy either absolutely or in favour of a specified person. Where the holding had already been mortgaged, such relinquishment would take effect subject to the mortgage. 24 I.C. 868=10 N.L.R. 78.

——S. 69—Registered occupant—Relinquishment—Effect on co-occupant.

S. 69 of the Berar Land Revenue Code does not enable a registered occupant to destroy by relinquishment the rights of his co-occupants. 6 Nag. 78, Diss. (Batten, A.J.C.) KISAN v. RAMCHANDRA. 21 I.C. 851=9 N.L.R. 168.

BERAR LAND REVENUE CODE (1896), S. 76.

——Ss. 76, 4 (15), 72, 73 and 74—Suit for possession of unalienated land.

In Berar, in a suit for possession of unalienated land, it is not necessary for a decree that plff. should be a registered occupant or that the decree should be accompanied by declaration that plff. is eligible to be registered occupant. (Batten, A.J.C.) LAXMAN v. SHEORAM.
15 I.C. 895=8 N.L.R. 73.

——S. 78—Anti-alienation tenancy—What must be proved.

To prove an ante alienation tenancy, a tenant must establish that his ancestors or predecessors-in-title possessed the land prior to the period when the grantee got the village, on payment of a fixed proportion of the revenue. The fact of the tenant having held out at survey rates for a period of forty years is not presumptive of an anti-alienation tenancy. Where there is no proof of an express agreement as to the permananoy of the lease on a fixed rental or to the duration of the lease, it must be presumed that unless the tenant can establish protection against arbitrary eviction, and a right to hold on a just and reasonable rent, the normal incident of the law of the landlord and tenant holds good, and that the landlord is entitled both to enhance rent and eviot after proper notice. (Batten and Prideaux, A.J.Cs.) GANPAT v. SAMBHSHIV. 4 N L.J. 235.

——Ss. 78 and 79—Notice—Lapse of more than one year—Ejectment.

If a notice has been duly served under S. 78, then in the absence of waiver, the person so served can be ejected under S. 79 even more than a year after the service of the notice without a fresh notice. The enhancement contemplated in S. 78 can be decreed only if it appears to the Court to be just and reasonable. A notice to quit under S. 79 unconditionally determines the tenancy but a notice under S. 78, cl. (8) does not have that effect as the tenant has a right to appeal so as to test its reasonability. (Mitra, A.J.C.) NARAYAN v. SYAD BAHADUR. 44 I.C. 723 (Nag.)

——S. 78 (2)—Origin—Unknown.

If it can be proved with certainty that the tenancy did not commence till after a certain point of time then it cannot be said of such a tenancy that evidence of its commencement has been lost by reason of its antiquity. A tenant of such holding is not protected by S. 78 (2). 14. N.L.R. 111 foll. In the absence of any proof that the tenancy was perpetual or that the defendant was an antejagir tenant, it must be assumed that he was an annual tenant. (Dhobley, A J.C.) YESHWANT v. SHIWAPPA. 68 I.C. 178=1923 Nag. 129 (2).

——S. 78 (2)—Agricultural holding—Transfer—Position of transferee.

An agricultural holding is a persoual right, not transferable unless expressly declared to be so by contract or by statute. In Berar there is no law which permits an annual tenant of an agricultural holding to transfer his rights.

BERAR LAND REVENUE CODE (1896), S. 79.

Under the Berar Land Revenue Code a tenant right is heritable and transferable as "property". But a transferee of a tenant right by contract who does not make any fresh contract with the landlord obtains only the right, title and interest of the transferor, and if the transfer is from a woman with a limited interest his right to occupy the land would come to an end after her death or re-marriage. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) HAJI BEGUM v. SHANKAR RAO

——S. 78 (2)—Applicability and effect—"Antiquity—Meaning—Proof of—Commencement of tenancy.

Under S. 78, clause 2, it must be proved that by reason of the antiquity of the tenancy, no satisfactory evidence is forthcoming as to its commencement. The word antiquity in clause (2) must be construed with reference to the nature of the history of the country where the land is situated and to the possibility of getting evidence and not in its commonly accepted meaning of absolute antiquity. S. 78, clause (2) does not contemplate proof of the commencement of the tenancy in a particular year, much less on a particular date. If it can be proved with certainty that the tenancy did not commence till after a certain definite point of time, then it cannot be said that evidence of its commencement has been lost by reason of its antiquity. A tenant of such a holding is therefore not protected by S. 78 (2). S. 78 (2) practically becomes inapplicable to ijara villages as a result of this decision. 18 B. 221; 7 N.L.R. 100, foll. (Mitra, Offg., A.J.C.) PARSHARAM v. BAPU. 42 I.C. 631=14 N.L.R. 111

——S. 79—Notice to quit—Service of—Refusal of post card.

Section 79 of the Code does not lay down any specific mode for the service upon a tenant of a notice to quit. A notice therefore sent to a tenant by means of a registered post card the acceptance of which, upon being tendered by the postal authorities is refused by him, constitutes a proper service. 46 Cal. 458, dist. (Mitra, A.J.C.) RAMCHANDRA KANIRAM v. LAXMAN. 53 I.C. 62 (Nag.)

S. 79 applies to all classes of agricultural tenants in Berar and is not limited to cases of alienated land. (Mitra, Offg. A.J.C.) JANU v. FAKIRA. 42 I.C. 694=13 N.L.R. 181.

——S. 79—Annual tenant—Transfer of rights.

In Berar an annual tenant can transfer his rights and neither he nor his transferee can be ejected without notice under S. 79, by landlord. (Mitra, Offg. A.J.C.) BHIWAJI v. THUKARAM.
39 I.C. 15=13 N.L.R. 11.

——S. 79 (2)—"Annual Tenancy"—Tenancy for a year—Notice to quit.

The expression "annual tenancy" in S. 79 of the Berar Land Revenue Code covers tenancy from year to year and not a tenancy lasting for a year only. No notice by either party to a contract tenancy for one year is therefore, necessary to determine the tenancy. (Kotwal, A.J.C.) KESHAO v. MANSHA. 44 I C. 212 = 14 N.L.R. 129.

BERAR LAND REVENUE CODE (1896), S. 87.

'Survey number' in S. 87 includes recognised division of a survey number. (Mittra, A.J.C.) SURYA BHAN v. RENAI. 42 I.C 447 = 14 N.L.R. 51.

——S. 96 (1)—Record of Rights—Presumption—Suit for setting aside.

S. 96 (1) of the Berar Land Revenue Code lays down that an entry in the Record of Rights shall be presumed to be true until the contrary is proved. This presumption arises even in a suit brought to have the entry set aside and extends to trees standing on land. (Mittra, A.J.C.) MUSSAMMAT BULKI v. DAGDIA. 54 I.C. 331 (Nag.).

——S. 96 (j)—Pre-emption—Recognised sub-division of a survey number—Sale of—Entry in Record of Rights.

The recognised sub-division of a survey number is a holding which has separate assessment fixed for it. The officer in charge of the Record of Rights is not such an officer as is authorised either to recognise a sub-division of a survey number or to form two recognised sub-divisions into one survey number, 14 N.L R 51 Foll. The plff. cannot institute a suit for pre-emption where there has been a revision of such recognised sub-division only. (Mittra, A.J.C.) GADADHAR v. CHUNNILAL. 44 I.C. 541 = 14 N.L.R. 55.

——S 96.B (c)—Record of Rights.

An entry in the Record of Rights regarding maintenance which contains the conditions or liabilities attaching to the interest of holders is admissible in evidence and raises a presumption in favour of the person claiming maintenance. (Macnair, A.J.C.) FAKIRYA v. TULSI. 57 I.C. 271 (Nag.).

——S. 158—Patwari is a public servant.

As a patwari is entrusted with the work of collecting Land revenue and under S. 158 of the L. R. Code cesses can be collected as if they are land revenue, a Patwari is a public servant within the definition in the Penal Code. (Batten, J.) LOCAL GOVT. C.P. v. MADO PATWARI, 68 I C. 157 = 23 Cr. L J. 557.

——S. 160 (iii)—Cess is a payable by—Superior holder.

Under S. 160 the cesses in an alienated village are recoverable from the superior holder, and it lies on him to show, if he throws the liability on another person how the case is taken out of the application of that section. (Kotwal, A.J.C.) RAMCHANDRA v. ISHRABHO. 64 I.C. 202 = 1922 Nag. 168.

BERAR LAND REVENUE CODE (1896), S. 205.

——S. 178 (2)—Ante ijara tenancy—Presumption—Onus.

It is the tenant who wants to remain on the land in spite of the landlord's wishes to the contrary that has to prove the circumstances which entitle him to do so. He has, therefore, to prove, in the case of an ante ijara tenancy in Berar, that no satisfactory evidence of the commencement of his tenancy and of the period agreed upon between the landlord and tenant for its duration is forthcoming. If he fails to do so, no presumption under S. 178 (2) of the Berar Land Revenue Code can be made in his favour. (Kotwal, O. A.J.C.) ABDULLA KHAN v. ABHIMAN. 44 I.C. 831 (Nag.).

——Ss. 201 and 205—Co-occupant may be a temple.

There is nothing in the Berar Land Revenue Code to indicate that the co-occupant who is entitled to pre-empt must be a human being. A temple acting through its trustees can also pre-empt. (Kotwal, A.J.C.) BAKARAM v. RAMCHANDRA MAHARAJ. 71 I.C. 39 = 1923 Nag. 95.

——S. 205—Mehernama for no fixed amount is not within the section.

A Mehernama without indicating the amount of mehr is not a sale or a relinquishment. It is the giving of the land as a family settlement. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) MAHATAP KHAN v. MT. ASHABI. 76 I.C. 668 = 1923 Nag. 330.

A preemptor's right under S. 205 of the Berar Land Revenue Code cannot be defeated by the vendee reselling to the vendor after a pre-emption decree has been passed. 2 N.L.R. 150 Foll. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) BAPU v. BHOMI. 18 N.L.R. 202 = 68 I.C. 493 = 1923 Nag. 26.

——S. 205—Co-occupant—Pre-emption.

Co-occupant means a holder of unalienated land. The holder or occupier of a survey number therefore cannot exercise the right of pre-emption. (Prideaux, A.J.C.) ARJAN v. SITARAM. 57 I.C. 265 (Nag.).

——S. 205—Ante-nuptial settlement by a Co-sharer—Pre-emption—Gift.

An ante-nuptial settlement of the interest of a co-sharer in a survey number does not amount to a sale or relinquishment for valuable consideration within S. 205 but is in the nature of a gift and not subject to pre-emption by other co-sharers. (Mittra, A.J.C.) NARAYAN v. VITHOBA. 28 I C. 355 = 11 N.L.R. 34.

The words co-occupant having a right to pre-empt in S. 211 include only either the persons who are co-occupant on the date of the transfer — the basis of pre-emption suit or their transferees by inheritance and not those entirely strangers, to whom a transfer is made voluntarily by sale or gift subsequent to the sale sought to be pre-empted. Hence a stranger transferee subsequent to the sale cannot get a right of pre-emption, as it is untransferable if once accrued. (Batten, A. J. C.) RAMJI v. MUKTAI. 15 I.C. 570=8 N.L.R. 62.

——— Ss. 206 (1), 209 (2) — Pre-emption — Notice to Manager, if sufficient—Co-parceners, independent rights of pre-emption—Presumption — Several coparceners having equal rights of pre-emption—Procedure.

Notice to the Manager of a joint Hindu family is sufficient under S. 206 (1) of the Code. But where the vendor relies upon a consent of the members of the family, he and his vendees must see that the substituted precaution is such as will bind all concerned. There is no presumption that where a manager does an act he does it as manager. The Code does not militate against the view that every co-parcener has an independent right of pre-emption which he can exercise by himself. All co-parceners should be considered as having equal rights of pre-emption until the contrary is shown. Where two or more co-parceners are equally entitled to pre-empt, the person to exercise it should be determined by lot. (Drake Brockman, J.C.) MOTIRAM v. BHIKAM RAO. 59 I.C. 601 (Nag.).

The expression refers to a co-occupant at the date of transfer which is the basis of pre-emption or a transferee by inheritance from such co-occupant and does not refer to an entire stranger who gets the occupancy right by voluntary transfer after the sale sought to be pre-empted and hence such a transferee cannot pre-empt. BERAR MUNICIPAL LAW (1886), S. 51.

S. 223 of the Berar Land Revenue Code applies only when the tenant has held from a period anterior to the alienation. The fact of the tenant having held out at survey rates for a period of forty years does not necessitate any presumption of an anti-alienation tenancy. Where there is no proof of an express agreement as to the permanency of the lease, on a fixed rental or to the duration of the lease, there is a presumption that unless the tenant can establish protection against the arbitrary eviction, and title to hold on a just and reasonable rent, the normal incident of the law of landlord and tenant is applicable and that the landlord is entitled both to enhance rent and evict after proper notice. The mere fact that a Municipal Committee did not pass any orders, on the application of a person to build, does not place the applicant in the same position as if written permission was accorded to him by the committee as required by S. 86. ———S. 36—Municipal Corporation—Meeting—Right to vote—Disqualification by reason of interest—What constitutes—Validity of votes—Decision by Civil Court—Suit by Councillor.

The interest contemplated by S. 36 (p) and S. 16 sub. S. (1) (f) of Bombay Act III of 1888 must not be too speculative and remote. Again it must not be a mere sentimental interest. It must be a pecuniary or at least a material interest. Where there is a pecuniary advantage or a reasonable expectation of a pecuniary advantage, it must be regarded as an interest within S. 36. If the interest in a contract is pecuniary it is immaterial that the amount involved is trifling. The object to the provision imposing the disqualification is to prevent the conflict between interest and duty that might otherwise inevitably arise. It is clear on the language of S. 36, cl. (p), that a Councillor, whose name stands as a shareholder on the register of the said company, and who has a beneficial interest in the shares, is disqualified from voting or taking part in the discussion of any matter pertaining to the said company. It is also clear that if the shares stand, not in his name but in the name of a nominee of his, the beneficial interest being in him, he is similarly disqualified. The shares again may stand in the name of a Councillor who holds them not in his own right but as a trustee for another. Where the shares stand in the name of a person who has no beneficial interest in them but is a mere trustee, he cannot, it seems vote at meetings of the company in which he holds the shares in a manner inconsistent with the interest of the beneficiaries. The reason is that he derives the position which he holds as a member of the Company from the legal ownership of the shares. But if such person is also a member of the Corporation, he is not, disqualified from voting or taking part in the discussions of any matter relating to the Company at meetings of the Corporation. He is under no obligation to vote at such meetings in a manner beneficial to the interests of the cestui que trust, for he does not owe the membership of the Corporation to the fact that he is a share-holder of that Company. He commits no breach of the trust, if he votes at meetings of the Corporation in contravention of the interests of his beneficiary. It is no part of his duty as a trustee to vote at meetings of the Corporation in matters affecting the company as the beneficiary would have him to do. If no such duty is imposed upon him by law, it cannot be a case of conflict between two duties. Nor can it be a case of conflict between interest and duty, the interest which he has in the beneficiary being no higher than what a father has in the prosperity of his son. The question of the validity of the vote is a question of law and a Court of law has jurisdiction to entertain it. Questions relating to the validity of votes are not questions relating to the internal management of a Corporation. They are questions that can be disposed of only by a Court of law. If councillors disqualified from voting at a meeting of the Corporation vote at the meeting and by so voting create a majority, has a remedy in a Court of law. The question of the validity or invalidity of the votes could only be disposed of by a Court of law. When the question is one of the validity of the votes, it is open to the members of the Corporation to bring an action in their own names. It is open to one or more councillors to bring a suit in their own name without filing a representative suit under O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code. (Mulla, J.) ——Octroi Schedule — Construction—Ad valorem duty.

The Municipality claimed to charge on the plaintiff's goods, which were bales of cloth, an ad valorem rate on the value of the maunds according to their present value and not according to the value, appearing in the schedule of rates. The octroi schedule was divided into three columns ; in the 1st column were the names of various articles ; in the 2nd column was the rate per cent load ; in the 3rd column was the weight in maunds or price. For cloth the rate per cent load was 12 annas per every Rs. 100 or part of it. In the 3rd column the price was to be taken at Rs.500 per cent load of 16 maunds. Held, that Rs.500 was the limit value of a full cart load of cloth of all sorts and articles made of cotton, silk, etc., upon which the rate of 12 annas per cent was to be levied ; otherwise the amount of Rs. 500 in the third column has no meaning. If it is considered desirable in the interests of the Municipality that certain articles should be charged on their actual value ad valorem, it would certainly be necessary to add to the schedule, rules prescribing how the real value of these goods was to be ascertained. It would also be necessary to set up the proper machinery for arriving at such valuation. (Macleod, C.J. and Crump, J.) The suit contemplated by S. 50-A (2) of the Bombay Act III of 1901 is one as between a private party and the Municipality and the Secretary of State is not a necessary party thereto. In the course of a Govt. survey of a municipality under S. 50-A of the Bombay District Municipalities Act the Survey Officer decided that a certain disputed plot of land was a 'street land' within the meaning of S. 3 (2) of the Act and this decision was confirmed by the Collector. ——S. 160 (3)—Order under—Appeal.

The remedy suggested by a statute for the enforcement of the new rights created by it must be followed. Right of appeal cannot be assumed in every matter brought for consideration before a Judge, unless such a right is given by a statute or its equivalent authority. Hence no appeal lies from an order passed by the District Court under S. 160 (3) of the Act as it is not a decree, because it is made under a special jurisdiction created by the Act which does not call it so and not under Civil jurisdiction. ——S. 160 (3)—Acquisition of land—Temporary boom—Fancy value.

In awarding compensation for acquisition of land under S. 160 (3) of the Act a boom in prices of lands existing owing to certain extraordinary circumstances must be taken into account in estimating the market value of the land to be acquired. Where a portion of land acquires a fancy value as being necessary for widening a street, no compensation is allowed for the severance of the same. (Crouch, A.J.C.) ——S. 167—"Anything done or purporting to be done"—Suit for injunction against Municipality—Notice, if necessary.

The expression anything done or purporting to be done in S. 167 applies only where something has been done and not where there is mere apprehension that something will be done; therefore a suit against a Municipality to restrain an apprehended injury is not bad merely because no notice as required by the section was given as in such a case no notice is necessary. (1) of the Bombay District Municipal Act, 1901, gave a model reply, "Permission refused". After waiting for one month, the accused built up his house, for which he was convicted for building his house without permission. Held, reversing the conviction, that the model reply in question was not proper as it refused permission for an indefinite period and all that the Committee could do under the rules was to pass a provisional order directing that for a period, which should not be longer than one month from the date of such order, the intended work should not be proceeded with. The defendants, predecessor-in-title alienated his vatan land to plaintiff and died subsequently. The defendants applied to the Collector to take proceedings for the protection of the vatan. Acting under S. 11 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act the Collector made a declaration on 5-10-1904, that the alienation was null and void. The Collector resolved to assess the land at a full rent and on 6-7-1908, the Collector held further proceedings and assessed the land at a rental of Rs. 75 per annum. On 15-3-1915, the Collector ordered forfeiture of the land owing to the default of the plaintiff in payment of arrears of rent then due. The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the order of forfeiture was invalid on the ground that the rent was due from 6-7-1908 when the assessment was fixed and on that footing, no arrears of rent had become due. Held that the assessment of land was an alternative to the summary resumption of possession and the order that the land was liable to assessment, means assessment from the date of the order; that S. 9, cl. 1 of the Act provided that an order giving the vatandars profits of Under S. 18 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, 1874, a dispute as regards a Maharki Vatan was referred to a Panchayat. The parties however failed to nominate the panchas and thereupon the Deputy Collector asked the Mamlatdar to appoint them but the latter in his turn issued orders to the Head Karkun to get two panchas appointed by each party and himself to act as sarpanch. The Mahars appointed their panchas but the villagers declined to do so. When this fact was brought to the notice of the Mamlatdar, he ordered the Head Karkun to appoint two panchas under S. 18. The panchas were so appointed and the panchayat thus constituted made the award which was submitted to the Mamlatdar and was in due course approved of by the Deputy Collector. In a suit questioning the validity of the award Held, that the Panch was not constituted according to the procedure prescribed by S. 18 of the Bombay Heriditary Offices Act and the award was invalid. ——Rr. 127, 128 and 129—Third party notice—Deft. outside the jurisdiction of the Court—Leave of Courts—Letters Patent (Bom.), Cl 12.

The Court on summons for directions in a third party notice does not decide any question of jurisdiction and from the fact that the Court gave direction it could not be assumed that the Court decided the point of jurisdiction. The order of the summons for directions merely enables the third party to come into the suit as he was an added party deft. and then it was open to him at the trial to raise any issue which an added deft. was entitled to raise. Leave under Clause 12 of the Letters Patent could not be presumed to have been given because, before it could be assumed that leave has been granted under Clause 12, it must be proved that an application was made to the Judge under Cl. 12 and if the Judge made the order, it should appear clearly on the face of it that he was giving leave under Clause 12 of the Letters Patent. A successful deft. is entitled to his costs of the suit and the third party proceedings as well. Per Macleod, C.J. When a deft. asks the Courts to issue a third party notice in a case in which leave has to be obtained under Clause 12 an application should be made to the Judge for such leave to be endorsed on the notice in the same way as it is endorsed on a plaint. The Khoti Settlement Act nowhere provides that the mere entry in the settlement register of the name of a particular person as the occupant of the survey number is either final and conclusive or that it is binding upon all the parties concerned, unless and until it is reversed or modified by a decree of the Civil Court. What is made binding by the provision of S. 21 is the decision of the Recording Officer and not a mere entry of a person's name in the Settlement Register. Preceding sections make it clear that the mere entry of the name of some particular person as occupant was not intended to be included among those decisions of the Recording Officer. Plff. converted his land from agricultural to non-agricultural uses by establishing a brick-kiln in 1872. He was called upon by the Collector to pay this time the assessment as fine for the conversion under S. 35 of Bombay Act (I of 1865.) Plff. thereupon erected some huts on the land. At the revision of survey which took place in 1889 the land was assessed as agricultural. Sometime between 1897 and 1901 plff. erected a substantial building on the land. In 1912, the Collector levied building fine from the plff. Held, that though the levy of additional assessment under S. 35 of the Bombay Act (I of 1865) might have protected the plff. against its enhancement before the Revision Survey of 1889, still S. 48 of the Revenue Code, (1879) rendered him liable to pay extra assessment for the conversion in use which took place, after the date of the Revision Survey of 1889. ——S. 83—Presumption from antiquity of tenancy—Kabuliat, how far rebuts.

When it has been proved that a tenant has been in occupation of certain land for so long that one cannot ascertain the commencement of the tenancy, the mere fact that during the currency of his holding he has signed a Kabuliyat which purports to be in terms an agreement for an annual tenancy, may not be sufficient to displace the advantage he has obtained from his long holding, if he continues in possession for many years after he had signed the kabuliyat on the same rent. But each case of this class must stand entirely on its own facts. At first, the tenant claiming to hold as a permanent tenant must establish the facts which would entitle him to the presumption of S. 83. But that can be rebutted by the landlord by the production of a kabuliyat. Again the effect of the kabuliyat can be destroyed by further evidence on the part of the tenant. The fact of the signing of the kabuliyat as merely an isolated instance in the midst of a long holding at the same rent, will not necessarily prevent the tenant from succeeding. ——S. 83—Presumption does not apply where Origin is known.

The presumption is that a tenant is an annual tenant and the onus is on him to prove that he is something more. If he sets up permanent tenancy, in the absence of any document, he must prove antiquity of his tenure. If he succeeds, the burden is shifted to the landlord to prove the intended duration by agreement or usage. In the absence of any proof, it is presumed that the tenancy is co-extensive with the tenure of the landlord. (Macleod, C.J. and Fawcett, J.) MANEKLAL v. BAI AMBA.

It lies on the parties, who wish to rebut the presumption arising from the antiquity of a tenancy to establish, first, that there is no evidence of the period of its intended duration and secondly, that there is no usage of the locality as to the duration of such tenancy. Where a tenant and his ancestors had cultivated the land as far as memory could go and paid the same amount of rent to his landlord and were in possession all along, the mere fact that he executed a rent note for one year in 1882 does not rebut the presumption of the permanency of the tenancy which arose from its antiquity. Under S. 121 of the Code the enquiry officer must settle the boundary between the lands of adjoining house owners which ordinarily is done by means of a line drawn on a plan and that line determines the rights of the landholders on either side of the boundary. But it does not determine the right which the holder of one number can claim to exercise over the land belonging to the holder of the adjoining number. The section applies also to the survey of land at a time as it applies to agricultural land. In S. 14 of Bombay Regulation V of 1827 it is provided that, if a debtor can prove that he has tendered to a creditor the whole or any portion of the amount due, all further interest shall cease on the amount tendered. The word "debtor" in S. 14 is certainly wide enough to cover a debtor who has given security by way of mortgage, and this is in fact shown by S. 15 of the same Regulation, which deals with the case of a usufructuary mortgage, or pledge and speaks of a creditor of the debt. Similarly in Act No. XXVIII of 1855, which provides for the Repeal of the Usury Laws, S. 6 speaks of the lender and borrower of money upon any mortgage, so that there is no reason to suppose that S. 14 (if literally construed) would not cover the case of a mortgagor and mortgagee. S. 14 of Bombay Regulation of 1827 is still in force in the Presidency Town of Bombay, as well as the rest of the Bombay Presidency. In the case of a mortgagor who seeks to redeem the entire mortgage and tendering only a part of the mortgage-debt really due. Imposing separate fines on the Muhammadan and Hindu residents is without jurisdiction. The responsibility is on the whole community residing within the village and a Magistrate cannot exempt particular hamlets or villages from his order. Nor should he impose separate fines on Muhammadans and Hindus. The exemption from responsibility of particular hamlets or individuals within the bounds of the village is without jurisdiction. ——Sub-tenant of judgment-debtor cannot obstruct landlord.

The sub-lessee of the sub-tenant is not entitled to obstruct the original landlord who has got a decree against the lessor of the sub-tenant as there is no privity of contract between the landlord and the sub-tenant, though the sub-tenant may be entitled to protection against the immediate lessor. By including in 'landlord' a tenant who sub-lets and in 'tenant' a sub-tenant, the benefits of the Act are extended to sub-tenants. The standard rent was not intended to be determined by different standards between landlord and tenant and tenant and sub-tenant. ——S. 2 (1) (b)—Act does not apply to relationship of licensor and licensee.

The distinction between a lease and license is that in the former case there is an exclusive right to possession on the part of the tenant while in the case of a license, the licensee has not got such a right. Plaintiffs owned a stable in which there were open spaces for keeping carriages as they came in and stalls for horses. There were open spaces for motor cars as well as cubicles large and small. Deft. hired stabling accommodation for the horses, carriage and three motor cars. The carriage was kept in the open space, and the horse in the stalls. One of the motor cars was kept in the open space, another in the large cubicle along with other cars and the third in a small cubicle separately. The owner of the stables wanted an enhanced rent. Held, that the relation between the parties was not that of landlord and tenant but merely of licensor and licensee and that the provisions of the Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act were no bar to enhancement of the rent. The first part of S. 9 of Act II of 1918 points to the act of a tenant whose lease has terminated and therefore the subletting must have occurred after the termination of the lease; so also in the second part of the sub-section the term of the lease must be lease fixed before the sub-letting. The object of the sub-section is to put a stop to a statutory tenancy being used as a source of profit by a tenant who does not require the premises for his own occupation. The plaintiff, who carried on business in hardware in a rented shop in the Fort in the City of Bombay, was ejected by the owner of the shop-premises. The plaintiff owned a house, in another locality of the city, known as Tardeo, which had seven compartments on the ground floor. Five of these compartments were already in plaintiff's possession. He sued to recover possession of the remaining two compartments in order to carry on his business in hardware on the ground floor of the house. The area of the whole of the ground floor was less than the area of the rented shop in the Fort. The trial Judge dismissed the suit on the ground that the area already in plaintiff's possession was quite enough for developing a new business in the Tardeo locality:—Held, decreeing the claim for possession that to prevent the plaintiff from occupying a space in his own premises equal to the space previously rented by him on the ground stated by the trial Judge would be going entirely beyond the jurisdiction of the Court in cases falling under the Bombay Rent Act, 1918. Defendants were inamdars of the village and they were grantees of the soil as well as assignees of the revenue. The plaintiffs were mirasi class of peramanent tenants holding under the inamdars under comparatively recent Miraspatra of 1859 and 1864. Survey settlement was introduced into the village at the request of the inamdars and a revised assessment of agricultural land came into effect. Under S. 217 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, all holders of land in the village became liable in respect of such lands to the provisions of the Land Revenue Code. The Collector under rules framed by the Government and at the request of the inamdar purported to levy building fines for the benefit of the Inamdar assignees of the land revenue. The plffs. sued for a a declaration of their rights to hold the land free from building fines and for an injunction restraining the Inamdars from levying such fines. The Inamdars pleaded that the suit was barred under S. 4 (b) of the Bom. Rev. Jurisdiction Act. Held that the suit was not barred by S. 4 of the Bom. Rev. Jurisdiction Act. If without questioning the legality or propriety of the amount or incidence per se the plff., asserts a right independent of and having no relation to it, such as a right to pay a certain fixed amount annually under a contract between him and the Inamdar, he cannot be said to object to the amount of incidence of the assessment within the meaning of S. 4 (b). An objection to come within either of the two heads of cl. (b) of S. 4 must be an objection which reaches them directly (i. e.,) an objection to them per se which admits the liability to pay land revenue on the part of the objector but quarrels with its amount or incidence of the validity and effect of the notification of survey settlement as by themselves objectionable, not because some other right affects them or makes them inapplicable to this particular case. 28 B. 74, Ref. Lands appurtenant to Kaji Vatan were continued by the Inam Commissioner in 1852 as sarva inam to a predecessor-in-title of the plff. Plff., an alienee from a Kaji, held the lands free of assessment, though the service of the Kaji continued to be performed by the descendants of the Kaji. The Collector ordered in 1914 full assessment to be levied for the lands in question and in case of non-payment lands to be forfeited. Plff. sued for a declaration that the Collector's order was illegal and ultra vires. Held, that cognizance of the suit by the Civil Court was not barred under S. 4 (a) (1) of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1876 for, the suit fell within proviso (k.) The Maharajah of Kolhapur who was not a party to the suit took exception and made representation to the Govt. of Bombay that J's adoption was invalid owing to want of consent on his part. The Bombay Govt. then referred the matter to the High Court under S. 12 of the Act, held that the Maharajah had himself a claim against Govt., jurisdiction as to which was excluded under S. 4 and that the matter was therefore referable to the High Court. Certain land which was granted to a mosque was continued at the time of the Survey Settlement in 1879 on payment to Government of an annual quit rent under a sanad. Sixty years before suit, the land was alienated unlawfully by the manager of a mosque to a stranger from whom it was purchased by the piff. in 1900, when the Government levied the full assessment on the land. It was held, by Shah and Hayward, JJ.—(Heaton, J. dissenting) that the provisions of the Act and the terms of the Sanad pointed to the conclusion that the condition that the land must continue to be the property of the mosque in order that the holder for the time being might have the benefit of the exemption from assessment allowed by the Sanad could not be implied; and that the Government did not get any right under the Sanad to levy the full assessment even when the property ceased to be the endowed property otherwise than by lawful alienation. Adoption.

———Adoption — Kittima daughter—Ceremonies.

There is no special ceremony in Burmese adoption, but the adoption must be a matter of publicity and notoriety. It is strong evidence of such publicity and notoriety that the adoptee lived continuously in the house of adopter from her babyhood for twelve or thirteen years, and that he was entered on the register of the school as her parent, and paid the school fees. (Lord Parmoor). MA THAN THAN v. MA PWA THIT. 33 M.L.T. 361 = 2 Bur. L.J. 260 = 1923 P.C. 156 = 46 M.L.J. 334 = 1 Rang. 451.

———Adoption—Proof of—Rights of adopted son—Separation from parents—Forfeiture of inheritance—Intention—Adoption by widow—Competition between sons.

Under the Burmese Bhuddhist Law there is no ceremony for an adoption, but the adoption must be a matter of publicity and notoriety. The fact of the adoption can either be proved as having taken place on a distinct and specified occasion or may be inferred from a course of conduct which is inconsistent with any other supposition. But the amount of proof of publicity required will be greater in case of the latter category when no distinct occasion can be appealed to. 32 I.A. 72; 36 I.A. 197, Ref. A Kittima child may forfeit his right of inheritance by separating from his adoptive parents, this being considered an act of ingratitude. It is, however a matter of intention.

BUDDHIST LAW—BURMESE—ADOPTION.

But where there are no other children with whom the Kitima child seeks to compete or share, the law allows him to inherit in whole or part notwithstanding his separation. Separation working a forfeiture is a matter of intention. If the separation of residence be with the consent of the adoptive parents, and if the child is ready and willing to discharge filial duties after it, the bond is not broken. A child adopted according to the fullest form of adoption and retaining its status as an adopted child, till the death of his adoptive parents is entitled to inherit their estate, as if he were a natural and lawful child either in the absence of other lawful children or in competition with them. Such a child is called a Kittimatha. (Lord Phillimore). MAUNG THWE v. MAUNG TUN PE. 45 Cal. 1= 49 I.C. 863=44 I.A. 251=22 M.L.T. 411= 22 C.W.N. 97=27 C.L.J. 68= (1918) M.W.N. 9=20 Bom. ——Adoption—Ceremonies—Act of Shinbuying—Presumption—Manukye Dhamathat.

Though the act of Shinbuying is, in some cases, prima facie evidence that the donor of the feast regarded the novice as his son, it is by no means a clear indication in every instance that any thing more than a charitable intent sometimes coupled with a love of display, was in the donor's mind. Where several boys are Shinbuyed at the same time, and none of them is a carural-born son, no presumption in favour of adoption can properly arise in the absence of a direct and public declaration of relationship or about the time of the ceremony. The Manukye Dhamathat requires that a Kittima son or daughter should have been adopted with the intention, publicly signified, of taking the adoptee as a son or daughter, who will inherit. His intention may have been expressed at the time of the taking or later; or may be inferred from a long course or conduct making such intention public. (Robinson, C.J. and May Oung, J.) ——Adoption—Adopted son becoming a monk—Subsequent abandonment of monkhood—Effect of—Inheritance to adoptive parents.

Where a person adopted by Burmese parents enters the priesthood he must be held to have severed himself from all family ties. Where after remaining as a monk for some years, he resumed civil life, was received back in his old home on the old status as adopted son and heir, he must be deemed to have resumed his position of Kittima son and the years spent in the monastery do not affect his right to inherit the property of his adoptive father. ——Adoption—Kitima form—Evidence of—Notoriety and publicity.

Under Burmese Buddhist Law in order to prove adoption direct evidence of giving and taking is not necessary. Nor any documentary evidence or ceremony is required. ——Adoption—Married woman.

Under the Buddhist Law, a woman who is divorced from her husband and has divided the joint property with him is in the same position as a single woman. ——Adoption—Is a contract.

Adoption under Buddhist Law, is not a mere contract and is not a grant or other dispositions of property. It need not be in writing and may be proved by any means other than by deed of adoption. Kitima adoption is intended to provide an heir to the adoptive parent. There must be a distinct occasion on which it takes place and there is very often a ceremony. (Mc Coll, A.J.C.) MI CHAN MYA v. MI NGWE YON. 31 I.C. 94=(1915) 2 U B.R. 74.

daughter. Held, that the adoption was amply proved. No inference against adoption can be drawn from the fact that an adopted daughter worked in the fields for her adoptive parents as even children of well-to-do parents often assist in cultivating the family acres. Applicability.

———Applicability — Shan buddhists in Burma—Marriage — Presumption from habit and repute—Strict proof required.

The personal law of Shan buddhist resident in Burma does not appear to be in any way different from that of Burman Buddhist and the ordinary Buddhist Law applies. Shan notions concerning sexual relationship are extremely lax and the term Ma Ya (wife) is indiscriminately applied to women kept as mere concubines as well as those properly married. The presumption of marriage arising from co-habitation must rest on habit and repute and when proof of marriage depends wholly on habit and repute, the conduct of the parties concerned is of a great importance; the alleged husband must be shown to have clearly and unmistakably revealed his intention to confer on her the required status and the alleged wife must be shown to have acted all along in such a manner that it would be patent that she asserted that status. Ecclesiastical Law.

———Ecclesiastical Law—Effect of becoming Monk — Renunciation of monkhood—Effect.

By becoming a monk, a person divests himself of all earthly ties of relationship and property and dies a civil death. Property inherited by either of the parties to a marriage during coverture, is to be divided equally between the parties and the same rule applies to the profits of separate property brought by either party to the marriage. The rule of Nissayo and Nissito does not apply to the profits during coverture of the separate property of either of the parties. A gift of separate property of one of the parties to a marriage must be held to be made out of the separate property of the party to whom the property belonged, though the other's name also is joined as donor. ———Husband and wife—Divorce—Re-union after separation.

When the parties to a divorce re-unite after separation, they stand in the same position as if there had been no divorce. In a case of divorce between a man who had been married before and a woman who had not, the woman must be looked upon as in the same position as if her husband had not been previously married and the partition of property should be regulated accordingly. The status of the parties at the time of the first marriage is to be taken as the starting point in determining their rights on the second divorce. If at the time of the first marriage they were nga lin ngwe-maya (i.e., Bachelor and Maiden) they are to be regarded as such on their re-union. On a divorce by mutual consent between eindaungyis the rules of partition are as follows:—"Each takes his or her payin property. If they were equally matched as regards property at marriage, the property acquired after marriage otherwise than by inheritance is equally divided between them. If one of the parties brought the bulk of the property to the marriage and the other comparatively little, then on the principle of nissayo and nissito, the supporter gets two-thirds of the jointly acquired property and the other one-third. If one of the parties inherits property during the marriage, he or she, gets two-thirds of the property on the same principle. (Mc Coll, A.J.C.). MI SAING v. NGA YAN GIN. 38 I C. 408=11 Bur. L.T. 89=(1916) II U.B.R. 127.

———Husband and wife—Kanwin and payin property.

Kanwin property, i.e., property given by the bridegroom to the bride at the time of marriage for the joint purpose of the married pair is a gift and must be in writing and registered as required by S. 123 of the T.P. Act, otherwise if there is mutual divorce, the property will revert to the husband as being only payin property. (Maung Kin, J.) MAUNG SHWE KHO v. MA MYA. 33 I C. 129=9 Bur. L.T. 87.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Effect on husband's property—Adultery—Presumption.

What is joint property of husband and wife, under the Buddhist Law, becomes the sole property of the husband as soon as he validly divorces his wife. A Court may safely presume adultery if a guilty attachment is found to subsist between the parties and opportunities had occurred when a guilty intercourse might with facility have taken place. Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, the husband can discard an adulterous wife and send her away with only the clothes on her body; if the wife agrees to the proposal to abandon her and leaves the conjugal house, there is a divorce from the time of abandonment. (Maung Kin, J.) MAUNG PYA GYI v MAUNG PO KA. 33 I C. 118=9 Bur. L.T. 74.

———Husband and wife—Widow—Right of disposal of joint property of herself and her husband.

Subject to any claim by the eldest son to a certain specified property, e. g., the father's elephant. pony, etc., and to a quarter share of the joint properties as Orasa son, a Burmese Buddhist widow has an absolute right of disposal over the whole of the joint property of herself and her husband as against their children. (Fox, C.J., Parlett and Twomey, JJ.) MA SEIN TON v. MA SON. 8 Bur. L.T. 203=30 I.C 888=8 L.B.R. 501.

———Husband and wife—Separate living—Custody of child.

In a suit by the mother of a Burmese Buddhist girl of 7 years to recover her from the custody of the father who was living separate, held, that as guardianship was not one of the matters mentioned in S. 13 of the Burma Laws Act, the personal law of Buddhists was not applicable. According to S. 19 (c) of the Guardians and Wards Act, the father was the natural guardian of the minor child under the circumstances of the case. (Parlett, J.) MA THEIN ME v. MAUNG PO GYWE. 29 I.C. 899=8 Bur. L.T. 73.

———Husband and wife—Wife's interest in joint property.

A Buddhist husband and, wife jointly owned properties. The business was however carried on by the husband in his own name. He alone mortgaged the joint properties but the wife knew of the mortgage created by him and acquiesced in the mortgages from the beginning. Held, that the husband had power to bind and did bind the wife's interest in the mortgaged properties. A wife will be estopped in pleading that a mortgage of a certain household property which stood in the name of her husband and in which he conducted a mill-business as his own, is not binding on her half share especially where she herself negotiated the mortgage. She is not a necessary party to the suit on the mortgage. (Fox and Hartnoll, JJ.) MATIN ME v. MAUNG MAUNG. 29 I.C. 881=8 Bur. L.T. 66.

———Husband and wife—Divorce.

According to the Buddhist Law of divorce a suit for bare divorce does not lie. The decision of the Privy Council in Nga Pe v. Mi La Pon Gale, 9 L.B.R. 18 does not affect the ruling in (1910) U.B.R 30. (Shaw, J.C.) MI SAW BWIN v. NGA SAN NYAN. 28 I C. 801=(1914) II U.B.R. 32.

———Husband and wife—Mortgage by husband—Wife's liability.

If a Burmese Buddhist wife acquiesces in a mortgage of property executed by her husband, it binds the wife's interest also though she does not join in the registration of the deed. (Ormond, J.) MA SHWE ME v. P. A. R. M. CHETTY. 27 I.C. 788=8 Bur. L T. 97.

———Husband and wife—Residence for more than one year—Effect.

Where a wife left her husband for 6 years and in the meantime there were suits for divorce both by the husband and wife and 17 months after separation the husband took another wife Held, that it effected a dissolution of marriage. (Hartnoll, C.J. and Ormond, J.) MAUNG THA KADO v. MA THIR MYALING. 25 I C. 93=7 Bur. L.T. 197.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Re-marriage—Affairs settled definitely at the time—Presumption.

In the absence of special circumstances, it is presumed that the affairs of people, divorcing and re-marrying are settled definitely at the divorce or re-marriage and the presumption is very strong where a long period has expired since the divorce and the wife has never laid claim to the property taken by her divorced husband to the second marriage. (Twomey, J.) MI AH PUMA v. MI HUIN LIU. 23 I.C. 948=7 Bur L.T. 83.

———Husband and wife—Imprisonment—Whether amounts to desertion—Dissolution of marriage tie—Whether mere desertion is enough

BUDDHIST LAW—BURMESE—HUSBAND AND WIFE.

—Wife of a convict taking another husband—Effect of.

Under Buddhist Law, a man sentenced to imprisonment, is not regarded as having deserthis wife, nor does mere desertion ipso facto, without further express act of volition dissolve the marriage tie, so that the wife of a convict with sufficient property to maintain herself and her children, cannot take another husband and if she does so, she commits desertion and adultery and the husband on return can treat the marriage at an end and demand all the property. (Hartnoll, Offg. C.J. and Twomey, J.) MA AUNG BYA v. MAUNG THET HNIN. 23 I.C. 940=7 Bur. L.T. 240.

———Husband and wife—Divorce suit—Desertion and cruelty if dissolve marriage.

Under Burmese Buddhist Law, mere desertion for the statutory periods, does not of itself dissolve a marriage tie without a further and expressed act of volition on the part of either party to the marriage, such as beating one's wife and charging her with adultery. An innocent party is entitled to obtain a legal divorce by a suit on the ground of desertion for the statutory period alone. Obiter dictum of Robinson, J. in 22 I. C. 945. ref. (Robinson, J.) MG. YIN KYE v. MA SEIM.

22 I.C. 945 (L.B.)

———Husband and wife—Payin property changing its character—Presumption.

Where payin property changes its character during a marriage, the presumption is that it has become utetpava of that marriage —a presumption which may however be rebutted. (Parlett, J.) MA TAH v. MA KA YIN.

21 I.C. 227=6 Bur. L.T. 174.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Cruelty

Under the Buddhist Law even when the husband has been guilty of cruelty only once, the wife can insist on a divorce and is entitled to get it, subject to the penalty that assets and liabilities of the couple are to be divided equally between them, (Twomey, J) MAUNG PO HAN v. MA TA LOK. 20 I.C. 674= 6 Bur. L T. 134=7 L B.R. 79.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Dissolution of marriage tie—Rights of children.

When there was mutual abandonment o each other by a husband and a wife for more than the prescribed periods and both re-married starting a new home, the marriage tie between them is dissolved. Children lose the right to inherit the property of the parent who has abandoned them, unless filial relations are resumed. (Hartnoll and Young, JJ.) MAYI v. MA CALE. 6 L.B.R. 167=19 I.C. 85= 6 Bur. L.T. 73.

———Husband and wife—Husband's right over wife's payin property—Distinction between maiden wife and eindaungyi as regards husband's control over wife's payin*—Estoppel.*

BUDDHIST LAW—BURMESE—JOINT PROPERTY.

A Buddhist wife, and eindaungyi may alienate her payin property in any way without even consulting her husband provided she does not give it to a paramour. (Mc Coll, A.J.C.) NGA TUN BAW v. NGA KAN. 12 I.C. 200= 4 Bur. L.T. 244.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Cruelty, what is.

The cruelty alleged in a suit for divorce was that the husband visited the petitioner, who was living apart from him on several occasions drunk; he had abused her once in the public street and once about 4 years ago he took her by the throat, threw her down and caused bruises on her body by pushing her against a chair; Held, no legal cruelty has been proved. (Fox, C. J. and Hartnoll, J.) JOSEPHINE HENRIETTA ALEXANDER v. EDWARD PHILLIP ALEXANDER. 11 I.C. 784= 4 Bur. L.T. 168.

———Husband and wife—Divorce—Connivance—Presumption—" volunti non fit injuria".

Connivance amounts to a willing consent to conjugal offence or a culpable acquiescence in a course of conduct likely to lead to the offence being committed. It is covered by the principle "volunti non fit injuria." The Court will not, on presumption, impute connivance nor will it do so unless there is strong evidence to support it. (Fox, C J. and Hartnoll, J.) BENNETT v. BENNETT, 11 I.C. 779=4 Bur. L. T. 161.

Joint Property.

———Joint property—Ancestral property—Presumption.

Buddhist law does not say that ancestral land must be presumed to remain undivided until the contrary is proved. There is no such presumption in Buddhist Law. No general rule can be laid down as to the burden of proving jointness or separation without regard to the facts and circumstances of each particular case. (Maung Kin, J.) MAUNG SHWE LAL v. MA KYWE AND OTHERS. 1 Bur. L.J. 174= 74 I.C. 9=1923 Rang. 92.

———Joint property—Delay in setting up claim.

A claim to a share in a deceased parents' estate should be promptly made after the parent's death. Unreasonable and unexplained delay would defeat the claim. (Parlett, J.) MA E. v. MA THIN. 38 I.C. 147 (L.B.).

———Joint property—Ancestral property—Presumption.

There is no such presumption that ancestral land must be presumed to remain undivided until the contrary is proved in the Buddhist Law. The ruling in such case is to the effect that the burden of proving the division of ancestral property lies upon the party asserting division. (Maung Kin, J.). MAUNG PO U v. MAUNG PO THIN. 38 I.C. 985= 9 Bur. L.T. 164.

Marriage.

———Marriage—Ceremonies requisite for—Mutual consent — Evidence of recognition—Reputation.

In Burma no ceremony is essential for a marriage. Mutual consent is all that is required, which in the absence of direct proof, may be inferred from the conduct of the parties or established by reputation. In Burma where polygamy is lawful, it is not illegal to marry a wife's sister, though it is not quite a respectable thing to do during lifetime of the wife. Eating of the same pot is a sign of social equality rather than a proof of matrimony. (Lord Macnaghten,) MI ME v. MI SHIVE MA.

———Marriage — Polygamy — Rights of junior wives—Presumption—Proof.

Polygamy is undoubtedly lawful under the Burmese Buddhist Law and a man may have at the same time two or more wives who are on equal footing. When a claim to inheritance is made by a junior wife Courts must examine closely the relations that subsisted between her and her spouse, in order to determine her true status. Wives may under the law occupy identical positions or the junior wife may not be endowed with proprietary as well as personal rights. The junior wife has to prove that she was endowed with such rights before she can succeed to her claim. No ceremony of any kind is essential for the purpose of lawful wedlock. Although there may not be sufficient evidence of actual giving and taking the conduct of the parties subsequent to their coming together may raise a strong presumption of marriage, especially when the union has lasted for a long period. ———Marriage — Dissolution — Burden of proof.

Marriage even in Burma is ordinarily a permanent bond, which subsists until it is actually broken and the burden of proving that it has been broken is on the person alleging it. (Heald, and Lentaigne, JJ.) MA LUN ME v. MAKIN.

———Marriage — Re-marriage — Provision for children of first marriage.

Among Burmese Buddhists when the mother dies and the father marries again, it is usual to make a family partition and settle on the children of the first marriage. It is most unusual for a father merely to make gifts on such an occasion but still more unusual to include in these gifts the bulk of his property. (Duckworth and Pratt, JJ.) ———Marriage—Consent obtained by pressure, is not free consent.

There must be free consent of the parties for a valid marriage under the Buddhist Law, and a consent reluctantly given under pressure is not such free consent as is required by that Law. (Robinson, J.) MA TWE v. LWE HAIN.

———Marriage—Consent of guardian.

Under Burmese Buddhist Law consent of the guardian is necessary to the marriage of a minor girl except perhaps when the girl is steadfastly determined to marry against the wishes of the guardian. (Ormond, J.) MA SA v. SAN TUN U. 12 Bur. L.T. 186= ———Marriage—Minor—Contract of marriage—Suit for damages.

The Burmese Buddhist Law must determine the competency of a Burmese Buddhist youth under 18 years of age, to make a contract of marriage, and under that law a promise of marriage by a minor is voidable and the marriage of the minor youth or of a girl under 20 years of age requires the consent of the parents, unless the parties are steadfastly determined to marry. If a young man and a young woman have clandestine intercourse, the parents of the former cannot withhold their consent to the marriage and if the young man divorces the young woman, he must pay her his kobo. ———Marriage — Consent of parties — Promise by parents—Breach—Damages.

A Burmese Buddhist whether male or female, adult or minor, cannot be legally married without his or her consent or against his or her will. Where the parents promise to give a boy in marriage, no damages for the breach of such promise can be recovered either against the son or against the parents. (Saunders, J.C.) Under Buddhist Law the marriage of a minor is not valid without the consent of her father. (Twomey, C.J. and Ormond, J.) MAUNG BA HAN v. MA TIN. 46 I.C. 831 (L.B.).

Where there is divergence between the personal laws applicable to the parties to a marriage, the proper principles to act on, are that the Lex Loci contractus quoad solemnitates determines the validity of a marriage, and the lex domicillii the question of the capacity of the parties to marry. 62 L. ———Marriage — Dissolution — Imprisonment of husband, if desertion of wife by him —Desertion—Right to property.

Under the Buddhist Law, a man sentenced to imprisonment is not thereby to be deemed to have deserted his wife. During the imprisonment of the husband, his wife has no right to take a second husband; if she does so, her conduct amounts to desertion and adultery and she cannot claim a divorce by pleading desertion. The marriage is not dissolved by the desertion but from the day, when the first husband on his release from jail, demands the joint property from her. Where the husband treats the marriage as at an end, on the ground of his wife's desertion and adultery he is entitled to all the joint property of the parties. (Hartnoll, A. C. J. and Twomey, J.)
